U. S. Asks Injunction Against 10 Legislators

FEDERAL SCHOOL AID

Mansfield Urges Separate Bill On Parochial Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted Saturday Congress will resolve the aid - to - education dispute by considering the issue of loans to parochial schools in a separate bill from President Kennedy's school construction bill.

The Montana Democrat, like Kennedy a Catholic, said the two-package approach would let members of Congress "stand up and be counted" and clear the way for a Supreme Court test on the legality of private school aid.

Backers of Kennedy's $2.3 billion measure providing federal grants for school construction and increasing teachers' salaries fear that injection of the private school aid issue may doom the President's bill.

OPPOSE MOVE

Protestant and Jewish denominational spokesmen contended in Senate testimony Friday that loans to parochial and other private schools would definitely violate the constitutional mandate for separation of church and state. Catholic spokesmen, differing with Kennedy's view, hae urged inclusion of long-term, low-interest loan aid in the administration's package bill.

Mansfield, until now, has declined to say anything about the private aid issue other than that he will do his "best" to support the President's program.

But in an interview with United Press International Saturday he gave this appraisal:

"My guess is that we'll be confronted with two education proposals—first, the President's proposal and, second, a bill extending aid to private schools in the form of long-term, low-interest loans.

"Such loans possibly would be applicable to those schools on a construction basis or on a pupil basis or both."

Mansfield added that "in this way the Congress will have assumed the initiative and carried out its responsibility as a co-equal branch of government."

"It will also give members a chance to stand up and be counted," he concluded.

The Democratic leader said that if a separate private loan bill is passed and approved by the President, he would assume that "a constitutional test would follow."

Mansfield said that such a Supreme Court review would "def-

Eight Killed, 20 Injured In Tehran Riots

Political Strife Flares On Eve Of Harriman's Visit

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Reports of political rioting in the interior that left eight persons dead and 20 injured reached Tehran Saturday as the government perpared a welcome for U.S. roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman on his fact-finding tour.

Shah Mohamed Reza Pahlevi personally invited President Kennedy's touring envoy to Tehran and Harriman was due here Sunday from Rome.

RIOTING ERUPTS

Reports from the interior said political rioting which has occurred in Iran during the last several months erupted in the town of Borujan Friday.

Four rioters and four policemen were reported dead. All 20 injured were reported in critical condition.

The rioters set fire to a gasoline station, and the flames spread through six adjoining buildings.

The local governor was forced to flee from the town.

Borujan is a town in south central Iran, 225 miles south of Tehran.

The demonstrators were reported to have been opponents of the West Berlin's Mayor Brandt Arrives In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Berlin's colorful Mayor Willy Brandt arrived in Washington Saturday declaring West Berliners and Americans "are as one in their determination to keep the city free."

Brandt is in the United States for a Monday meeting with President Kennedy, and a series of speeches.

"Berlin today as before places its trust in the American people and their government," he said at the airport.

Brandt said he was "of course looking forward to seeing President Kennedy and high officials of his administration." And he stressed, "I do not come for negotiations."

Newsmen asked Brandt if he felt that anti-German feelings were rising in the United States due to German objections over helping in the U. S. balance of payments deficit and the coming trial of mass killer Adolf Eichmann in Israel.

"How should I know?" Brandt said. "You answer that one."

On Monday, Brandt will begin a series of conferences with State Department officials and lunch with Undersecretary of State Chester A. Bowles. His appointment with Kennedy is for 3 p.m. Monday.

Kennedy Fills Housing Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Saturday selected Marie C. McGuire, of San Antonio, Tex., to be commissioner of the Public Housing Administration.

She has been in the housing field in San Antonio and Houston, Tex., since 1942. Currently she administers 5,134 low-rent public housing units, which the White House described as the largest such program under the directorship of a woman.

Her new federal post will pay $20,000 a year. Mrs. McGuire, 56, is a Democrat. In returning to Washington she will be coming back to the city where she was born.

17 Agencies Abolished By JFK's Order

White House Says Others To Face Same Fate Later

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy issued a "streamlining directive" Saturday eliminating 17 interdepartment committees in an effort to clarify and pinpoint official responsibilities.

The action, affecting more than one-third of the inter-agency groups with which the White House is directly concerned, takes effect immediately, with work of the committees being assigned to specific cabinet level officials.

ISSUES ORDER

Kennedy at the same time directed department heads to end or merge as many of the administrative and technical committees under their respective jurisdictions as they can possibly do without.

"The President's action was taken to clarify and pinpoint executive responsibility and consolidate governmental duties in a number of important areas," the White House said.

The committees ranged from the Presidential Advisory Committee on Water Resources Policy to the Cabinet Committee on Price Stability and Economic Growth.

Morgan Dies Before Cuban Firing Squad

HAVANA (UPI) — Major William A. Morgan, 34-year-old soldier of fortune from Toledo, Ohio, was shot by a Cuban firing squad Saturday night.

The former American who forfeited his U.S. citizenship fighting for Prime Minister Fidel Castro during the revolution was executed shortly after 10 p.m. est.

AIDE ALSO DIES

Major Jesus Carrera, his former military aide, also was executed.

The executions were carried out in grim La Cabana Fortress prison where Morgan had been held prisoner since his arrest last October on charges of helping Castro's enemies.

Morgan was the fourth American to die before a Castro firing squad since last September.

Whether by whim of Cuban military officials or in response to his request to be shot immediately after his appeal for clemency was rejected, the blonde adventurer got his "last request."

He told his jailers that "it would be cruelty" to keep him waiting until dawn to die.

Morgan and Carrera, companions in arms during the revolution, faced the firing squad with the same calm that characterized Morgan's behavior throughout his trial last Thursday and Friday.

They died against the same ancient walls of the Spanish built fortress overlooking the entrance to Havana Harbor where hundreds of other convicted Castro enemies have died since he came to power more than two years ago.

Morgan had asked to talk with Castro before going to his death. But the Cuban leader was a scheduled guest at a reception given by the Chinese Communist embassy here.

He also made requests to be permitted to talk with his mother in Toledo by long distance phone

The Letters of T. H. Phifer

Thomas H. Phifer was a youth in his teens living in Mansfield when on May 11, 1861, he joined the Louisiana Volunteers and became one of the crack Pelican Rifles group fighting in Virginia.

Through the next months, until he was killed in action during the Battle of Sharpsburg on September 17, 1862, he continued to write letters home to his mother, three sisters and little brother.

His father joined the Rebels, too, and fought about four years.

The letters were kept and handed down through the family, until today they are owned by Mrs. Janice Clark of Crossett, Ark., a correspondent for the Morning World and News-Star.

Never published before, the letters are now being run, just as he wrote them, in a daily series in the News-Star. That is, except the letter which follows, which is the 16th in the series.

Thomas' little company of Louisiana volunteers, who had been learning to be soldiers since the first gun was fired on Fort Sumpter, were thoroughly disgusted with green troops from Georgia and Virginia, with nothing more on their minds than souvenir collecting.

N.O. Police Book Pair In Slaying Case

Off-Duty Officer And Friend Held Pending Probe

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Coroner Nicholas Chetta said Saturday a bullet fired from a 38-caliber revolver killed W. Ray Scheuring, manager director of the Municipal Auditorium.

Chetta said he determined this "because of the size and type of the wound."

SERVED AT ACADEMY

Scheuring, 50, a former assistant athletic director at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., was slain late Friday night on an elevated expressway that cuts through the heart of the city.

A bullet tore through his head during a melee involving an off-duty policeman. Ironically, Scheuring did not join in the fight, witnesses said.

Police booked on murder charge both Patrolman Norbert I. Habighorst, 25, and a companion, Arthur D. Glowacki, 23, a chef. Glowacki received a superficial gunshot [illegible]

Millie Oakley, 19, a waitress traveling in Habighorst's car, was held as a material witness.

Police took a .38-caliber service revolver from Habighorst. They found a .22-caliber pistol below the 50-foot expressway where Glowacki admitted throwing it. Glowacki said it belonged to Habighorst but admitted using it.

Each gun had fired one bullet, lice said. But neither Habighorst nor Glowacki believed he fired the fatal bullet, police said.

Scheuering, who-se brother was a former New Orleans police superintendent, served during World War II as an aide to Lawrence Biff Jones, West Point athletic director.

Third Fugitive In Crime Spree Eludes Hounds

GRASSY, Mo. (UPI) — Bloodhounds Saturday night dished the trail of the third desperado sought in the slaying of an auxiliary policeman, wounding of two officers and beating of a farmer.

Missouri State troopers said the dogs crossed the trail of Douglas Wayne Thompson, convict from California's San Quentin prison, in a wooded area near the Castor River. Officers got close enough to hear the fugitive splashing in the river before the bloodhounds lost the trail.

Two other gunmen were captured earlier, one as he waited at a rural service station for a spare tire for the getaway car he had just bought.

Officers said Thompson has relatives in this area and seemed to know the country - side "pretty well."

The two captured men — Sammy Aire Tucker, 26, and Calvin Willis Johnson, 22-were seized after a wild spree in which a policeman was killed, two others wounded and an elderly farmer pistol-whipped.

The trio left a path of robberies and car thefts stretching from California to the Mississippi River after breaking out of the San Luis Obispo, Calif., jail through a ventilator shaft on Feb. 25. California officials described Johnson as a burglary suspect who bragged he never would be taken alive.

Partly Cloudy Skies Expected

Partly cloudy skies are on tap today with the threat of scattered showers hanging over the Twin Cities.

The temperature outlook is for mild readings during the day, turning a little cooler tonight.

Today's expected high ranges from 70 to 76 throughout the state.

The high Saturday was 71 with a low of 50.

Nixon Rules Out '62 Race In California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, California's No. 1 Republican, Saturday removed himself from the state's 1962 race for governor.

He told a group of Republican legislators Friday night and soon passed on the word to friends Saturday that he won't be a candidate for Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown's job.

OFFERS PROGRAM

The former vice president offered his home state party a three-point program and his leadership in a comeback for a GOP political comeback next year.

In his first political speech since losing the presidential election, Nixon avoided any mention of his possible future candidacy for president and didn't touch on the governorship matter. He spoke at a statewide Republican meeting.

But he authorized the legislators to quote him on the question of running for governor: "I am not a candidate. I have no intention to be a candidate or to initiate a draft."

In San Francisco, Roger Kent, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, said, "It seems clear that if he believed he could win he would have run for governor."

And in Miami Beach, Fla., Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., often mentioned as GOP presidential timber, said that if Nixon wants to be a power in the Republican party he should run for something."

"I, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York is re-elected next year he will be in a much better position to win the presidential nomination in 1964," Goldwater added.

Nixon's statement didn't really surprise party leaders. They speculated to see Nixon gamble for future presidential chances on a state campaign.

But it did disappoint the hopes of many Republicans. They figured he should [illegible] in carrying California against a big Democratic organization and

JFK Appoints Denmark Envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Saturday chose William McCormick Blair Jr. of Chicago, law partner of Adlai E. Stevenson, to be U.S. ambassador to Denmark.

Blair resigned as Assistant Secretary in 1950 as executive secretary, and has been associated with him ever since.

This just about completes the dismemberment of the Stevenson law firm, since Adlai Kennedy has drawn several persons. Stevenson himself is the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Blair, 54, is a bachelor with a law degree from the University of Virginia. He got that after serving in World War II with Air Force intelligence, mainly in the China-Burma-India theater.

Train Derailment Blocks Louisville

Action Taken To Restrain N.O. Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department announced Saturday night it had filed a motion for an injunction and temporary order to restrain 10 Louisiana legislators from taking any action to interfere with the Orleans Parish school board.

The motion was filed in New Orleans.

REASON CITED

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy announced the action was filed because of a proposed move by a special committee of the Louisiana legislature to seize administrative records of Shelby Jackson, state superintendent of public education.

A three-judge federal panel has given Jackson until March 21 to release funds to the Orleans Parish school board and take other action or risk being found in contempt of court in the school desegregation situation in New Orleans.

"We have taken this action in this case to protect the integrity and orders of the court," Kennedy said. "We will continue to [illegible] there is danger that the orders of the federal courts will be thwarted."

George Foster, State Official, Dies At Age 81

BATON ROUGE (AP)—George A. Foster, 81, member of the State Forestry Commission, died here Saturday after an illness.

Foster, native of Pollock, was a state political and civic leader, sportsman and president of Guaranty Income Life Insurance Co., a firm he founded here 31 years ago.

He served on the Democratic State Central Committee from 1927-30, representing Grant Parish, and was a member of the 1921 state constitutional convention.

Foster served in the house of representatives from Grant Parish and was a member of the state Wild Life and Fisheries Commission during the administrations of Govs. Earl K. Long and Robert Kennon.

He spent his early years on his father's farm, picking cotton to help earn his way at old Mount Lebanon College, near Gibsland.

He worked in a sawmill store, became a bank cashier, and later returned to enter the insurance business in New Orleans. He moved to Baton Rouge in 1925 to organize his insurance firm.

The firm grew to a multi-million-dollar company with branches in several states. He was active in insurance industry organizations.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. George F., Baton Rouge, and two daughters, Mrs. Jim Miller and Mrs. Jess Barbour, both of Monroe.

But he authorized the legislators to quote him on the question of running for governor: "I am not a candidate. I have no intention to be a candidate or institute a draft."

In San Francisco, Roger Kent, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, said, "It seems clear that if he believed he could win he would have run for governor."

And in Miami Beach, Fla., Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., often mentioned as GOP presidential timber, said that if Nixon wants to be a power in the Republican party he should run for something."

"If Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York is re-elected next year he will be in a much better position to win the presidential nomination in 1964," Goldwater added.

Nixon's statement didn't really surprise party leaders who hesitated to see Nixon gamble his future presidential chances on a state campaign.

But it did disappoint the hopes of many Republicans. They figured he showed his strength in carrying California against a 3-2 Democratic registration last No-

Train Derailment Blocks Louisville

Three engines and one car were derailed Saturday morning when two trains rammed into each other at the Congo Washington street crossing. No one was injured in the collision.

Traffic on five streets was blocked for approximately two and one half hours while police and train officials worked to clear tracks to allow traffic flow to resume.

The freak accident happened around 11 a.m. Saturday when a south-bound Missouri Pacific train pulling 82 cars was hit by an east-bound AL&M freight engine pulling 25 cars. The MoPac train was also pulling an extra engine.

According to Fletcher W. Ashcraft, president of the AL&M line, the accident occurred when the AL&M flag man opened the gate to signal his train to come on through the intersection.

BEARING DOWN

After opening the gate, which is the only visible means either train has of knowing if the track is clear, the flagman saw the MoPac freight bearing down on him.

He told Ashcraft that he tried to flag the train down, but when that failed, he tried flagging the oncoming AL&M engine down. He failed in stopping either of them and the AL&M engine struck the other train between the two engines.

All three engines were jolted from the tracks by the impact. Diesel fuel leaked from the No. Two engine of the MoPac train and police warned spectators from going near the scene. Units of the fire department were dispatched to the scene as a precautionary measure in case fire broke out. The incident occurred in the heart of Monroe's Negro district.

The MoPac train extended north

Boy Is Saved From Death In Food Freezer

CHICAGO (AP) — "It was awful dark and cold and I couldn't find the handle."

That was 4-year-old Johnny Cleary's account Saturday of his brush with death when he was trapped for 1½ hours in his family's food freezer.

The lad later was reported well along the road to recovery in Holy Cross Hospital. He was alert, lively and absorbed in a jig-saw puzzle.

Standing on a chair, Johnny was examining the freezer contents Friday when apparently he lost his balance and fell in. The heavy lid dropped shut above him.

His mother telephoned police when she was unable to find him. His father, Martin, 37, who had just returned home from work, spotted the chair in front of the freezer in the basement of their South Side home. He found Johnny crouched in with the vegetables, half conscious and half frozen.

The boy's temperature was 95, nearly 4 degrees below normal, when doctors examined him at the hospital.

George Foster, State Official, Dies At Age 81

BATON ROUGE (AP)—George A. Foster, 81, member of the State Forestry Commission, died here Saturday after an illness.

Foster, native of Pollock, was a state political and civic leader, sportsman and president of Guaranty Income Life Insurance Co., a firm he founded here 34 years ago.

He served on the Democratic State Central Committee from 1932-56, representing Grant Parish, and was a member of the 1921 state constitutional convention.

Foster served in the house of representatives from Grant Parish, and was a member of the State Wild Life and Fisheries Commission during the administrations of Govs. Earl K. Long and Robert Kennon.

He spent his early years on his father's farm, picking cotton to help earn his way at old Mount Lebanon College, near Gibsland.

He worked in a sawmill store, became a bank cashier, and later resigned to enter the insurance business in New Orleans. He moved to Baton Rouge in 1925 to organize his insurance firm.

The firm grew to a multi-million-dollar company with branches in several states. He was active in insurance industry organizations.

Survivors include his widow, a son, George Jr., Baton Rouge, and two daughters, Mrs. Jim Malone and Mrs. Jim Balfour, both of Monroe.

That we have here a fast expanding college numerically is shown by the announcement that Northeast State has doubled its figures in the past six years.

The college registrar, Dr. Lake Oxford, gives as present figures of attendance 2,374 students and the outlook is that the next few years, with the extensive expansion of buildings and facilities generally, this college will loom higher than ever.

Two important changes are in the air. The present library building is declared too

West Berlin's Mayor Brandt Arrives In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Berlin's colorful Mayor Willy Brandt arrived in Washington Saturday declaring West Berliners and Americans "are as one in their determination to keep the city free."

Brandt is in the United States for a Monday meeting with President Kennedy, and a series of speeches.

"Berlin today as before places its trust in the American people and their government," he said at the airport.

Brandt said he was "of course looking forward to seeing President Kennedy and high officials of his administration." And he stressed, "I do not come for negotiations."

Newsmen asked Brandt if he felt that anti-German feelings were rising in the United States due to German objections over helping in the U. S. balance of payments deficit and the coming trial of mass killer Adolf Eichmann in Israel.

"How should I know?" Brandt said. "You answer that one."

On Monday, Brandt will begin a series of conferences with State Department officials and lunch with Undersecretary of State Chester A. Bowles. His appointment with Kennedy is for 3 p.m. Monday.

Kennedy Fills Housing Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Saturday selected Marie C. McGuire, of San Antonio, Tex., to be commissioner of the Public Housing Administration.

She has been in the housing field in San Antonio and Houston, Tex., since 1942. Currently she administers 5,154 low-rent public housing units, which the White House described as the largest such program under the directorship of a woman.

Her new federal post will pay $20,000 a year. Mrs. McGuire, 56, is a Democrat. In returning to Washington she will be coming back to the city where she was born.

The Letters of T. H. Phifer

Thomas H. Phifer was a youth in his teens living in Mansfield when on May 11, 1861, he joined the Louisiana Volunteers and became one of the crack Pelican Rifles group fighting in Virginia.

Through the next months, until he was killed in action during the Battle of Sharpsburg on September 17, 1862, he continued to write letters home to his mother, three sisters and little brother.

His father joined the Rebels, too, and fought about four years.

The letters were kept and handed down through the family, until today they are owned by Mrs. Janice Clark of Crossett, Ark., a correspondent for the Morning World and News-Star.

Never published before, the letters are now being run, just as he wrote them, in a daily series in the News-Star. That is, except the letter which follows, which is the 10th in the series.

Thomas' little company of Louisiana volunteers, who had been learning to be soldiers since the first gun was fired on Fort Sumpter, were thoroughly disgusted with green troops from Georgia and Virginia, with nothing more on their minds than souvenir collecting.

Third Fugitive In Crime Spree Eludes Hounds

GRASSY, Mo. (UPI) — Bloodhounds Saturday night flushed the trail of the third desperado sought in the slaying of an auxiliary policeman, wounding of two officers and beating of a farmer.

Missouri State troopers said the dogs crossed the trail of Douglas Wayne Thompson, convict from California's San Quentin prison, in a wooded area near the Castor River. Officers got close enough to hear the fugitive splashing in the river before the bloodhounds lost the trail.

Two other gunmen were captured earlier, one as he waited at a rural service station for a spare tire for the getaway car he had just bought.

Officers said Thompson has relatives in this area and seemed to know the country - side "pretty well."

The two captured men — Sammy Aire Tucker, 26, and Calvin Willis Johnson, 22-were seized after a wild spree in which a policeman was killed, two others wounded and an elderly farmer pistol-whipped.

The trio left a path of robberies and car thefts stretching from California to the Mississippi River after breaking out of the San Luis Obispo, Calif., jail through a ventilator shaft on Feb. 27. California officials described Johnson as a burglary suspect who bragged he never would be taken alive.

Partly Cloudy Skies Expected

Partly cloudy skies are on tap today with the threat of scattered showers hanging over the Twin Cities.

Today's expected high ranges from 70 to 76 throughout the state.

The high Saturday was 71 with a low of 50.

JFK Appoints Denmark Envoy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Saturday chose William McCormick Blair Jr. of Chicago, law partner of Adlai E. Stevenson, to be U.S. ambassador to Denmark.

Blair temmed up with Stevenson in 1950 as executive secretary, and has been associated with him ever since.

This just about completes the dismemberment of the Stevenson law firm, from which Kennedy has drawn several persons. Stevenson himself is the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Blair, 54, is a bachelor with a law degree from the University of Virginia. He got that after serving in World War II with Air Force intelligence, mainly in the China-Burma-India theater.

SHOT DOWN IN TUNISIA

Air Force Seeking Pilot Named In Will

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Air Force is looking for a World War II fighter pilot shot down in Tunisia by a German pilot reported to have included the American in his will.

The Air Force Times says the family of Anton Hafner, a pilot in the Luftwaffe, is seeking to find the U.S. Army Air Force flier shot down by Hafner and taken prisoner near Tunis late in 1942.

The Hafner family does not know the name of the American.

The Times obtained a picture of the man, taken after his capture. It shows him to be a lieutenant and the Times believes he may have come from Philadelphia.

The Air Force said Saturday it is attempting to help locate the man, but that in the absence of any serial number, specific date of the incident and other details it has been unable to find any clue up to now.

A spokesman said the best chance for identification might be in the possibility that some reader would recognize the picture.

It shows a young, thin-faced man, straight-lipped, with two black eyes, perhaps suffered in the crash of his plane.

The only other evidence is a small metal plate, bearing the number 1815040, which the German family believes might have been attached to the P38 flown by the American.

The Times said this numbered plate was checked with the Air Force and the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which produced the P38s, but that both believe the number was not for the airplane itself.

ported, the department said, that the committee intends to investigate the public school system in New Orleans for the sole purpose of obstructing and interfering with the school desegregation orders of the courts.

The motion asserted that the committee was created Feb. 26 by a Senate resolution which restricted and confined part of a resolution passed by the Senate in last November, which the court had declared null and void.

The committee has subpoenaed certain documents relating to certain acts which Jackson has been ordered by the court to carry out or face action for contempt of court, the motion said.

The subpoenaed records include those which related to reports of the Orleans Parish school board to Jackson, attendance, budget actions and salary matters, and qualification of teachers, which Jackson has not complied, the motion noted.

Besides asking that the records be released from inspection by the Orleans Parish school board, the Justice Department wants it also requested that the 10 be required to make available to Jackson a document the committee has subpoenaed from him.

17 Agencies Abolished By JFK's Order

termination of the inter-agency committees was the latest in a series of actions aimed at tightening White House control over administration activity while also clarifying responsibilities of high-ranking officials in the executive branch.

The President already had abolished the Operations Coordinating Board, created during the Eisenhower administration to implement National Security Council policies, and had merged the Government Employment Policy Committee and the Defense Contracts Committee which are assigned to work against racial discrimination in federal or government-contracted jobs.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the 17 committees were not being abolished for economy reasons but that the move would save the government $301,375. He said this would include $237,000 which had formerly been budgeted, plus $64,375 in estimated salaries for staff assistants.

Salinger said there were 32 such assistants involved and that they were being transferred to other full-time and part-time activities. But he said the salary savings still would apply, since their transfers would avoid the need to hire other personnel.

He said the directive was issued in line with the President's desire "to try to get the clearest possible lines of action." He said a study is still under way and "there are going to be other committees eliminated."

passed on the expressway with two men and a woman. One occupant flashed identification that appeared to have the wording "police."

Scheuering stopped. Two men—both in civilian clothes—got out of the other auto and advanced with guns, Oster said.

Stahl, 46, told police he thought it was a holdup. He got out and one man shoved a gun in his chest, Sthal said.

Stahl said he grabbed him and the man lurched against the expressway railing. As they struggled, someone fired a shot. Almost immediately, there was a second shot, Stahl said.

Scheuering was lying on the blacktop, Stahl said.

"He was bleeding from the nose," Dr. Oster said. "I knew there was nothing I could do for him."

Habighorst, a slight man with four years police service, told investigating officers Scheuering's car had nearly caused a collision.

The patrolman said he stopped the Scheuering car, flashed his police identification and attempted to interview the occupants.

Stahl forced him back by closing the door upon him, jumped out of the car and started scuffling with him near the rubber, Habighorst said.

"I thought he was trying to throw me over," Habighorst said.

He drew his gun and it went off in the scuffle, the patrolman said. Habighorst said he was trying to shoot Stahl.

Glowacki said he followed Habighorst out of the car, taking the .22 revolver for protection.

After he saw Scheuering fall, Glowacki said he moved in intending to hit Stahl with the gun. Then, he told police he realized he had the gun in his hand and Habighorst "had told them not to get caught with it." He tossed it over the rail.

Later, he noticed he had been shot in the leg and figured he "must have shot himself."

Besides his widow and a brother, Scheuering's survivors include two daughters attending Louisiana State University. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

Furman was very cool. He ordered us back into our ambush to form. It was obeyed by all except a couple of the Pelican Grays our nearest neighbors in Camp, who said they were going to carry back a Yankee canteen and gun and so they started off full in the faces of the Yankees to where the dead Yankees lay. When they on the dead list" who was not dead, so applying a bayonet to his back they brought him out of the wet in double quick. When we had formed we looked around for our neighbors to see what they were doing. All that we could see of them was their over coats and canteens. All that we could hear of them was the noise that a drove of frightened hogs would make in running through the woods. Lieut. Furman looked rather discomfited, but it was no time for parley, so he said he thought we would have to retreat. The Pelicans exchanged strange looks just then, but not one of them moved a foot — he finally saw it was the only chance, and gave the reluctant order. As we followed the footsteps of our predecessors we found them so exceedingly liberal that they bestowed their accoutrements upon the stumps and bushes in every direction. We at last came up with them — about a half a mile down in the woods — surrounded by a large marshy swamp they were standing around in groups of ten or a dozen every one talking at the top of his voice and no one listening to his tale.

With much difficulty Lieut. Causey succeeded in getting them to rally behind the Lea-detachment and we then marched back to Lees store — in one hour about twenty - five field Officers, three hundred Cavalry, and four companies from one Reg, among which was the gallant old Pelican Rifles, reinforced us, but it was too late, the Yankees had gone back.

I have just told Jack Yarbrough friends in Mansfield in a few days. I feel strange at seeing him leave, but his health is bad and he cannot stand camp life. We have just received intelligence of a great victory at Leesburg. I can write no more at present, as I am in a hurry to send this off. We are all well and in fine spirits. We have heard nothing of our clothes lately — farewell. You son termination of the inter-agency committees was the latest in a series of actions aimed at tightening White House control over administration activity while also clarifying responsibilities of high-ranking officials in the executive branch.

The President already had abolished the Operations Coordinating Board, created during the Eisenhower administration to implement National Security Council policies, and had merged the Government Employment Policy Committee and the Defense Contracts Committee which are assigned to work against racial discrimination in federal or government-contracted jobs.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the 17 committees were not being abolished for economy reasons but that the move would save the government $301,375. He said this would include $237,000 which had formerly been budgeted, plus $64,375 in estimated salaries for staff assistants.

Salinger said there were 32 such assistants involved and that they were being transferred to other full-time and part-time activities. But he said the salary savings still would apply, since their transfers would avoid the need to hire other personnel.

He said the directive was issued in line with the President's desire "to try to get the clearest possible lines of action." He said a study is still under way and "there are going to be other committees eliminated."

passed on the expressway with two men and a woman. One occupant flashed identification that appeared to have the wording "police."

Scheuering stopped. Two men—both in civilian clothes—got out of the other auto and advanced with guns, Oster said.

Stahl, 46, told police he thought it was a hold-up. He got out and one man shoved a gun in his chest, Sthal said.

Stahl said he grabbed him and the man lurched against the expressway railing. As they struggled, someone fired a shot. Almost immediately, there was a second shot, Stahl said.

Scheuering was lying on the highway, Stahl said.

"He was bleeding from the nose," Dr. Oster said. "I knew there was nothing I could do for him."

Habighorst, a slight man with four years police service, told investigating officers Scheuering's car had nearly caused a collision.

The patrolman said he stopped the Scheuering car, flashed his police identification and attempted to interview the occupants.

Stahl forced him back by shoving the door open, then jumped out of the car and started scuffling with him near the railing, Habighorst said.

"I thought he was trying to throw me over," Habighorst said.

He drew his gun and it went off in the scuffle, the patrolman said. Habighorst said he was trying to shoot Stahl.

Glowacki said he followed Habighorst out of the car, taking the .22 revolver for protection.

After he saw Scheuering fall, Glowacki said he moved in intending to hit Stahl with the gun. Then, he told police, he realized he had the gun in his hand and Habighorst "had told (him) not to get caught with it." He tossed it over the rail.

Later, he noticed he had been shot in the leg and figured he "must have shot himself."

Besides his widow and a brother, Scheuering's survivors include twin daughters attending Louisiana State University. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

U.N. May Act On Red China Seat In Fall

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —Nine out of 10 heads of U. N. delegations were reported Saturday to be convinced that the General Assembly will take up the question of seating Comunist China next fall despite any opposition the United States may offer.

An expert on international relations said that in recent interviews with those in charge at 84 of the 99 delegations, he found that more than 90 per cent believe the assembly will put the question on the agenda of its regular 1961 session starting Sept. 19.

Since 1951, the United States has stopped successive Soviet and Indian moves to get the issue on the agenda by inducing the assembly to vote at each annual session not to consider any proposals at that session for the ouster of Chinese Nationalist or the seating of Chinese Communist delegates.

But the margin by which such resolutions have been adopted has shrunken gradually from 37-11 in 1951 down to 42-34 last year. So proponents of a China debate now need only eight more votes to get a tie that would stop any U. S. proposal for another year's moratorium.

The interviewer, a college professor who has made the subject a research project, said the following factors were involved in the general belief that any such proposal would fail if put forward next fall:

1. Brazilian President Janio Quadros' recent announcement that Brazil would vote to debate the China issue next time, and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home's remark that the facts of international life require Communist China's presence at the United Nations.

2. A widespread opinion that the absence of the Chinese Reds from U. N. counsels is damaging to the United Nations.

3. An almost universal desire among delegates to get the Chinese Reds into big-power disarmament negotiations—and a general feeling that they would boycott any such negotiations until they were given China's U. N. seat.

4. A current campaign of African and Asian countries to get U. N. councils enlarged so there will be more places for them on the councils. The Soviet Union has served notice it will veto council enlargement until the Chinese Communists are seated in the United Nations.

The researcher said such things as these had eroded the strong sense of attachment which many countries have felt for the United States—and which has enabled the United States to get the annual moratoriums.

Consequently, he said, a debate is expected in the fall assembly on whether to seat the Chinese Communists. But he also said nearly all the delegates interviewed think the United States can muster the votes then to keep them from being seated this year.

White House Barbs Target Of Military

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A military service journal aimed barbs at the White House Saturday and asked Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to stop "what appears to be the start of an open season" on the prestige of military officers.

Citing a recent White House announcement that President Kennedy had disapproved a $200,000 addition to the European Command's officers' club near Paris, the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal said this tended to undermine the prestige of the highest ranking officers at home and abroad.

"There is no question that President Kennedy has complete authority to stop such a project, but there is much room to question the manner in which White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger made the decision known," the Journal said.

"If Mr. Salinger's objective was to capture headlines, he succeeded. He also succeeded in pushing Secretary McNamara completely out of the picture."

The unofficial service publication said Salinger did nothing to safeguard the prestige of Gen Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander-in-chief for Europe, "who happened to have been involved in the necessary paper work leading to Pentagon approval of the (officers' club) project."

If the White House had quietly given McNamara a chance to suggest to Lemnitzer and Norstad that the club project should be delayed to conserve gold dollars, the Journal contended "the suggestion would have been acted on immediately."

"Such a procedure," it said, "would have accomplished every objective except one: It would have made no headlines."

The magazine also criticized the manner in which Maj. Gen. Raymond E. Bell, chairman of the U.S.-Brazilian Military Commission, and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, were criticized in public instead of in private.

Bell ran into White House disapproval when he suggested that the Army band be sent on a $200,000 tour of Latin America, while one of Burke's speeches was declared too strong for the administration's policy of leaving all diplomatic statements to the State Department.

WORST IN HISTORY

Federal Agency, Airlines Feud Over Air Disaster

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A powerful federal agency and one of the nation's leading airlines are engaged in a bitter feud over history's worst air disaster.

The airline is United, which is openly accusing the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) of being at least partially responsible for the collision of a UAL jetliner with a Trans World Airlines Constellation over New York last December.

FAA, in turn, accuses United of being more interested in avoiding any legal responsibility for the tragedy than in determining the real cause of the accident.

Both charges were aired just after the collision. They were renewed recently at Senate hearings on air safety—much to the surprise of some observers who never dreamed United would repeat its angry charges against the powerful FAA.

But United is understandably sensitive on the subject of air collisions. No airline in the world is regarded as more safety-conscious than United, yet there have been four major collisions since 1956 and three of them involved UAL planes.

United contends that weaknesses in the government's air traffic control system were responsible for all three accidents. That is why a UAL vice president, Charles F. McErlean, showed up at a Senate subcommittee hearing on air safety recently and once more blasted the FAA for "refusal to accept responsibility." McErlean added that the government also had disclaimed any responsibility in the previous two collisions even though the official findings in both accidents had directly implicated the ATC system and found UAL blameless.

United's case in the New York accident rests on two contentions:

—That Idlewild air traffic control center should have spotted the UAL jet off course and beyond its intended holding pattern in plenty of time to warn it.

—That the FAA itself has misled not only United but all airlines into believing there is more radar surveillance of jets than there actually is.

United's first contention is the chief mystery surrounding the December disaster. The center's radar was supposed to be watching the jet (and it was the only jet in the area) up to the time it advised that "radar surveillance is terminated" and it "handed off" the UAL plan to Idlewild approach control. Yet a time-sequence reconstruction showed that at the very moment the Idlewild center ended its radar observance, the jet already was far past its holding pattern. United's obvious and still unanswered question: "Why didn't the center's radar spot the UAL plane off course if it actually had the jet under surveillance?"

On the second point, United charges that FAA has issued more than one statement to the effect that all jetliners are radar-tracked from take-off to touchdown. UAL says as recently as last November, only one month before the New York collision, former FAA administrator Elwood R. Quesada reiterated the same "take-off to touchdown" claim in a speech before the national press club.

United says the New York tragedy alone demonstrated that the jetliners are not getting the radar protection of which FAA has boasted. The airline adds that FAA itself admitted this in sworn testimony before the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on the crash. It cites a statement by FAA's chief expert on air traffic control, David D. Thomas, who told the hearing:

—FAA requires continuous radar coverage of commercial jets only above 24,000 feet.

—At lower altitudes, radar is provided at the discretion of the individual controller, depending on his workload at the time.

The FAA, both in the New York hearings and the more recent Senate hearings, sharply denied any laxity in its ATC system. FAA's position is that the United jet, for reasons unknown (United has suggested failure of a ground navigation signal), roared through a holding pattern like a motorist running a red light. It also noted that the UAL plane failed to report to ATC the fact that one of its radio navigation receivers was out of order. FAA's only corrective actions taken since the collision were (1) an order to require all pilots to report such malfunctions to ATC and (2) its announced intention of imposing drastic speed limits for jets entering high-density terminal areas. There have been no changes in ATC procedures.

Hodges Asks Changes In BAC Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — The club-like organization of corporation presidents, the Business Advisory Council of the Commerce Department, such will be losing some of its secrecy, exclusivity, and big business flavor.

The Kennedy administration and, more particularly, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, quietly have requested several changes in the 28-year-old advisory body, it was learned Saturday.

One change was made without asking. Ralph J. Cordiner, board chairman of General Electric Co., resigned the chairmanship. His company and 28 others pleaded guilty last month to federal charges of price-fixing and bid-rigging.

Other leaders of the BAC now are reported to be drafting proposed changes in the council's operating and membership rules to make them more palatable to the new secretary of commerce.

Hodges had serious reservations about certain BAC techniques when he took office, and he voiced some of them.

Since then, he has been embarrassed by attacks in Congress on the big business coloration of the council. This has been cited as one reason for not giving the Commerce Department responsibility for running the pending depressed areas aid program.

Even before the latter incident, Hodges had consulted with leaders of the council and made known his desire for some changes.

Labor Unions To Hold Clinic Here Tuesday

A free instructional clinic for officers of labor organizations in the Monroe area, who are required by the Labor - Management Reporting and Disclosure Act to file financial reports with the U.S. Department of Labor, will be held Tuesday at 124½ South Grand.

This announcement came from Donald H. Williams who is Area Director for the Bureau of Labor-Management Reports in Louisiana and Arkansas.

Williams said that invitations to attend the clinic have been sent to all labor organizations in the Monroe area. He will be available to them at any time between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Most of the labor organizations in Louisiana and Arkansas end their fiscal year on December 31 and must file financial reports, either LM-2 or LM-3, by March 31. Unions must file two copies of their financial reports annually with the Bureau's Washington office, and Mr. Williams pointed out that 85 per cent of the reports filed by unions last year contained errors of one sort or another.

He said the financial reports are not his only concern and that he wanted to aid in any way he could. Williams said he would welcome union people who have uncertainties pertaining to any part of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act, including such areas as union elections, bonding requirements, and trusteeships.

Louisiana Feed Grain Acreage Reports Sought

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee Saturday advised feed grain growers to report their 1959 and 199 acreages to their parish ASC offices immediately if they want to use the 1961 price support program.

C. E. Slack, state administrative officer for the ASC, said the new feed grain program is on its way through Congress and is considered virtually certain of passage.

The program provides for price supports, acreage limitations and a bonus for growers who make an extra acreage reduction. Grains included are all corn planted and all oats, barely or grain sorghums harvested for grain.

Slack said to take part a grower must report his planting of these crops for the past two years. The program is voluntary but those who don't take part will be unable to get price supports for their grain.

Labor Unions To Hold Clinic Here Tuesday

A free instructional clinic for officers of labor organizations in the Monroe area, who are required by the Labor - Management Reporting and Disclosure Act to file financial reports with the U.S. Department of Labor, will be held Tuesday at 124½ South Grand.

This announcement came from Donald H. Williams who is Area Director for the Bureau of Labor-Management Reports in Louisiana and Arkansas.

Williams said that invitations to attend the clinic have been sent to all labor organizations in the Monroe area. He will be available to them at any time between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Most of the labor organizations in Louisiana and Arkansas end their fiscal year on December 31 and must file financial reports, either LM-2 or LM-3, by March 31. Unions must file two copies of their financial reports annually with the Bureau's Washington office, and Mr. Williams pointed out that 85 per cent of the reports filed by unions last year contained errors of one sort or another.

He said the financial reports are not his only concern and that he wanted to aid in any way he could. Williams said he would welcome union people who have uncertainties pertaining to any part of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act, including such areas as union elections, bonding requirements, and trusteeships.

Louisiana Feed Grain Acreage Reports Sought

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee Saturday advised feed grain growers to report their 1959 and 199 acreages to their parish ASC offices immediately if they want to use the 1961 price support program.

C. E. Slack, state administrative officer for the ASC, said the new feed grain program is on its way through Congress and is considered virtually certain of passage.

The program provides for price supports, acreage limitations and a bonus for growers who make an extra acreage reduction. Grains included are all corn planted and all oats, barely or grain sorghums harvested for grain.

Slack said to take part a grower must report his planting of these crops for the past two years. The program is voluntary but those who don't take part will be unable to get price supports for their grain.

Hodges Asks Changes In BAC Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — The club-like organization of corporation presidents, the Business Advisory Council of the Commerce Department, such will be losing some of its secrecy, exclusivity, and big business flavor.

The Kennedy administration and, more particularly, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, quietly have requested several changes in the 28-year-old advisory body, it was learned Saturday.

One change was made without asking. Ralph J. Cordiner, board chairman of General Electric Co., resigned the chairmanship. His company and 23 others pleaded guilty last month to federal charges of price-fixing and bid-rigging.

Other leaders of the BAC now are reported to be drafting proposed changes in the council's operating and membership rules to make them more palatable to the new secretary of commerce.

Hodges had serious reservations about certain BAC techniques when he took office, and he voiced some of them.

Since then, he has been embarrassed by attacks in Congress on the big business coloration of the council. This has been cited as one reason for not giving the Commerce Department responsibility for running the pending depressed areas aid program.

Even before the latter incident, Hodges had consulted with leaders of the council and made known his desire for some changes.

First Anniversary For Women's Exchange Near

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
World Staff Writer

All the charm of old-time hand-made goods is found again in the original articles offered for sale at "The Woman's Exchange."

Many talented area residents, who would have gone unnoticed otherwise, are creating some of the best examples of Southern arts and crafts for the Exchange.

Located in an ante-bellum brick cottage at 520 S. Grand St. the Woman's Exchange celebrates its first anniversary next Friday, March 17, with open house.

Refreshments will be served throughout the day.

The Exchange has grown from 23 members and 32 consignors in 1960 to 53 members and 145 working consignors today.

Based on the operation of the Pinehurst, N. C. Woman's Exchange, the Monroe unit was organized by volunteers, who realized that some of the finest skill available is found in the housewife, the partially disabled person, or the elderly.

NOT RETAILED

"We offer hand made items that you can't find in retail stores ... we're not in competition with downtown business," volunteers explain.

Consignors set what they think is a fair price on the goods which they make, the Exchange adds a few cents to help pay for the cottage's maintenance and utilities bills.

The Ouachita Parish School Board owns the cottage and approved of the Exchange's request for its use as a base of operations.

The Exchange's card pretty well describes it: "Home of handicrafts, gifts and homemade goodies. We help others to help themselves."

Take a "guided tour" of the Exchange, one of the oldest houses in Ouachita Parish, and you'll find it still keeps its atmosphere of the 1800's.

In the long front room are crafts ranging from candle holders and tea tables to original ceramics and pecan dolls.

Original craft — not copies of other objects — is the Exchange's aim.

Pottery is on display by Mrs. William Kastl of Alexandria, who is taking advanced art courses at Northwestern State College.

Prints of old homes in Louisiana are available, by Mrs. Drew Hayes of Ruston and Mrs. John Crump Jr. of Synope Plantation on the Columbia highway.

A "tried and true" recipe box offers recipes "guaranteed to be a jewel in your chef's cap," for only 10 cents each.

Hand made fish bait attracts the fisherman.

"GOODIES"

'Goodies' not offered in grocery stores — red Indian pickled peaches, hot pepper jelly, pear conserve, muscadine and mayhaw jelly and pear preserves are fast selling items.

Books published in Ouachita Parish are available: "Upon Returning" by May Smith White, "Audubon Trail" by Peggy Windsor Garnett, "Along the Ouachita" by the League of Women Voters, and a Historical Map of Ouachita Parish, giving a legend of all the old homes, by Mrs. Hilda Colbert.

Wooden, hand carved barbecue sets, scoops, candle holders, cheese shakers are next to a needlecraft assortment, which includes babies' christening bonnets, dainty crib sheets and pillow slips, sets of aprons for mother, daughter and doll.

Pecan dolls include the plantation mammy and Uncle Elijah, dressed in hand-sewn period clothing.

Mosaic coffee tables contrast with hand - caned chairs. Tea sets and hand painted ceramic dishes similar to those found in the old homes at Natchez are eye-catching.

Mrs. Linda Jones of Alexandria contributes original dolls. No doll ever duplicates another. Each has the surprising qualities of character and personality — from can can dancers, mammys, pioneers, clowns and monkeys to grotesque creations resembling Aztec art.

Items which appeal to the youngsters occupy one room. Tea tables have mosaic tops with hand painted storybook rhymes depicted in imaginative panels. A circus tent, paintings of clowns, bean-bag stuffed animals, frogs, clowns, silk alligators are included.

Some of the other Exchange specialties include colorful afghans, hooked rugs, tatting and polished Ouachita rock jewelry.

E. T. CARTER of Monroe finishes work on hand-caned chair. He is one of 145 contributors to the Woman's Exchange. Original, hand made items by talented area residents are the Exchange's stock in trade. (Staff photo by Ben Bradford)

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE, 520 S. Grand St., observes its first anniversary next Friday with open house and refreshments. Eye-catching items on the porch of the ante-bellum cottage include Easter bunnies, Raggedy Andy doll, wagon train doll and "mammy" who moved up and down at her 'washing' as the wind blew. Northeast To Send Delegate To Convention

Northeast Louisiana State College will be represented at the thirty-fifth annual Louisiana Library Association convention, which opens in New Orleans Thursday for a three - day session at the Jung Hotel.

Going from the college will be Mrs. Maud Merritt Bentrup, head librarian and vice president of LLA, Miss Emily Blomquist, Miss Barbara Meades and Mrs. Zanona Flinn, all members of the library staff.

President of the Louisiana Library Association is Kate Wallach.

The conference will include general and sectional meetings, exhibits, presentation of awards, library tours, and various social affairs.

Dr. Jesse Hawk Shera, dean of Western Reserve University's School of Library Science, will address Thursday's first general meeting on "Automation without Fear." He also will speak on "What Is Librarianship" at Friday's college and reference section conference.

A panel discussion scheduled Thursday will emphasize "Partners in Progress," moderated by Mrs. Marian G. Gallagher, professor of law and law librarian at the University of Washington, Seattle.

The night social event will be the presidential reception honoring American Library Association president - elect, Mrs. Florinell F. Morton.

Featured during Friday's sectional meetings will be Dr. Shera, Miss Eleanor E. Ahlers, executive secretary of American Association of School Libraries; Mrs. Morton, Miss Jane Ellen Carstens, librarian of Hamilton Training School, University of Southwestern Louisiana; Mrs. Lena Y. DeGrummond, state supervisor of school libraries; and Miss Elizabeth Enright, author and illustrator, New York City.

Daniel Melcher, publisher of the "Library Journal," will address the convention at Friday's luncheon, and Dr. Essae M. Culver, University State Library, will present the Modisette awards.

Mrs. Bentrup Friday will preside at the book dinner at which Dr. Herbert E. Longenecker, Tulane University president, will be guest speaker. The LLA Scholarship and other awards will be given at this time.

Saturday's speaker at the general session will be Clarence "Skip" Graham, director of Louisville Public Library, who will discuss "New Frontiers in Library Cooperation."

N.Y. Youth Dodges Tuition At Oxford

OXFORD, England (AP) — A beatnik-bearded New York youth said Saturday he has been an undercover yank at Oxford for the past six months.

Alfred Raedel, 24, explained to newsmen he has been wearing the traditional cap and gown and attending university classes, but never bothered to enroll or pay tuition fees.

"It was six months of free education," said Raedel. "I just bought the proper student attire and walked in. Nobody paid the slightest attention. I worked on the side as a janitor in a hospital and earned $22.40 a week."

Raedel said he was a graduate, with a mathematics major, of Columbia University.

"I had always wanted to go to Oxford," he said, "but I had only $135 when I arrived in England and a couple of terms here can cost you around $4,000. So I went in under cover, for free."

Raedel said he browsed around among various classes, "just soaking up the academic atmosphere. It has been a lovely experience."

He added that he plans to leave next week for Germany to become — officially this time — a physiology student at the University of Bonn, working part time at whatever jobs he can find.

Raedel declined to give his New York address, but said his father is a cook and that his parents live in the borough of Queens.

Said an English friend at Oxford: "Alfred has really got a lot of nerve but we realized that it wouldn't be a difficult thing to do. Nobody ever checks up on you at Oxford."

C. O. Groves Sr. Dies; Funeral Remains Pending

Clyde Olen Groves Sr., 83, died in a local nursing home yesterday.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night but will be under the direction of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home in Alexandria. Local arrangements were handled by Hixson Brothers here.

Survivors include three sons, Clyde O. Groves, Jr., Robert W. Groves, Jr., Robert W. Groves, both of Willows, Calif., and W. E. Groves, New Orleans; four daughters, Mrs. E. S. Morrison Jr., New Orleans, Mrs. Wayne C. Pittman, Madison, Wisc., Mrs. Basil Cockran, Wrens, Ga., and Mrs. Margaret G. Turner, Colfax; one half-brother, Blyss Poynter; two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Cantrell, and Mrs. Mona McClellon, both of Olathe, Kan.; 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Committee Gets Probe Request On Freed Fliers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican demands for an investigation of the RB 47 plane incident and the release of two surviving crew members were referred Saturday to the Senate preparedness subcommittee for possible action.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee designated the preparedness subcommittee as the group to conduct an inquiry, if any is to be held. He said he would be glad for the subcommittee to hold hearings if preliminary investigation indicates that they would be "constructive."

Circumstances surrounding the release of the two fliers on Jan. 25, and their subsequent isolation from Newsmen for more than a month, have been the target of criticism by several GOP spokesmen. After the fliers told their story to newsmen last week, Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N. H., wrote Russell formally requesting a committee inquiry.

Variety Show Is Scheduled At Northeast

Top-drawer entertainment will be offered Thursday and Friday nights when "Redskins on Parade," Northeast State Variety show, presents its annual edition, according to Kirby Mooney, chairman of the current production.

Curtain time in Brown Auditorium is 8 p.m.

Fun and showmanship will come from all branches of the campus for the performance, the chairman said. The production is the outcome of auditions on a competitive basis during the past few months. Only the best acts were selected for the show. Although entrants were recruited through campus organizations, individual acts also will be featured.

VARIED PROGRAM

The night's program is varied enough to entertain almost any one, the "Redskins" committee declared. There will be the girls' chorus line, numerous dance numbers interspersing other attractions, singing groups, skits, and the Northeast Jazz Ensemble, directed by Del Sawyer, which will provide special background and accompanying music for the acts of the show.

Forming the chorus line will be Ann B. Clark, Sandy Edwards, Betty Gibbs, Charlotte Goodrum, Kathy Harbert, Margie Lancaster, Kati McKenzie, Delia Miller, Pansy Riser, Mary Virginia Sontina, Tommie Stockstill, Betty Shirley, Karen Strozier and Murff White.

Skits will include Phi Mu's version of "Lil Liza Jane," Phi Delta Chi's take-off on daily happenings at Northeast in a "You Are There" type setting, Alpha Omicron Pi will present a melodramatic skit set to a new beat, and the Veterans' Club will present a rollocking minstrel, which bids to delight the audience.

A novelty tap dancing routine and a football players' ballet are receiving fine response at rehearsals.

LeRoy McHenry will be featured as a guitar soloist, and Charles Cagle and George Owen, "The Gents," will offer vocal numbers.

W. J. Haddad will come in for an important share of the program.

The Jazz Ensemble will give full force to "Redskins." The musicians will be playing, among other numbers, an overture and an opening selection written especially for the show by Alf Bartels, a well known jazz composer from New York. He also wrote the music for the chorus line.

All other music for the performance has been written and arranged by Ray Carroll, senior composition major and trumpet soloist with the Jazz Ensemble.

Choreopgrapher is Curtis Rape, who has appeared in several Little Theatre productions, "South Pacific," recent Northeast Production, and in last season's "Redskins."

Dickie Aycock, Franklin junior, will emcee the show.

Serving with Miss Mooney on the variety performance committee are Ceilia Mantrozos, Clarice Brown Fluitt, Curtis Rape, Jack Fryday, Wilmer "Slick" Lawson, Ted McDaniel, Bill Brodie, Joyce YelDell, W. J. Haddad, and Del Sawyer, assistant professor of music and faculty adviser for the group.

Two Are Injured In Separate Car Wrecks Saturday

Two persons received minor injuries in separate automobile accidents yesterday and one man was charged with driving down a one-way street the wrong way by Monroe police.

Samuel D. Powell, 27 of 1906 Spencer St. was taken to a private doctor with minor injuries after being involved in an accident with Terry D. Fields, 23 of Sterlington.

Police reports showed that Powell was going east on Wood Street which is a one way street west and failed to stop at Sixth Street. Fields, driving south on Sixth Street struck the left front fender of Powell's car.

Powell was charged with driving down a one-way street the wrong way. The accident occurred at the Sixth Street - Woods Street intersection at 9 a.m.

A Negro, Lee Thomas, 33 of 3617 Cooper St., complained of pains suffered when he ran into the rear of a car driven by Ezra J. Adams of Route Two, Winnsboro. Both vehicles were traveling east on DeSiard at 12:12 p.m. during the time that traffic was heavily congested as a result of the train wreck at the Washington - Congo streets crossing.

No charges were made in the accident.

JFK Plans New Latin, Cuba Steps

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy plans to issue on Monday a major statement outlining his new administration's policy toward Latin America.

At the same time, aides were working Saturday on an order aimed at clamping down on U. S. purchases from Cuba, which they figure now pour $65 million a year into the coffers of the pro-Communist Fidel Castro regime.

Kennedy's statement, to be made Monday evening following a White House reception for ambassadors from Latin-American countries, will be a major effort to outline what he calls "Alianza para progress"—"Alliance for progress" between this country and its sister states in the hemisphere.

Kennedy is expected to stress that a major ingredient in progress must be willingness of aid-receiving countries to help themselves, and in doing so to nurture economic-social conditions in which economic advance means a gain for many, rather than more wealth for a few elite.

Authorities said Kennedy sees his alliance for progress program as a long-range affair which will require years of effort and in which U. S. aid will be used only to tip the scales where needed, not as the major source of Latin-American income for development.

Officials said further that the president would not include any specific new money figure in his statement. The administration is already committed to $500 million which it wants Congress to appropriate for Latin-American development.

Other items on the Kennedy agenda include strengthening of American States, the agency in which all American republics are members, and a new hemisphere drive to improve education and wipe out illiteracy.

The action against the anti-American Cuban regime would be a follow-up to an Eisenhower administration move which has already knocked out the major foundation of U.S. trade with Cuba.

Reasons Given For Uncertain Sales Outlook

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Consumer uncertain about economic conditions."

This was the chief reason for a so-so sales outlook given by two thirds of 56 builders polled by the National Housing Center.

Other reasons mentioned by one third or more of the builders were "resistance to high interest rates, cost advantage of buying over renting has narrowed, shelter market nearing saturation and prospects unable to qualify."

The poll was taken at the center's annual Builders' Intentions Conference. It disclosed that the builders:

—Expect their own production volume, and presumably sales, to jump 30 per cent in 1961.

—Look for home building nationally to advance less than 10 per cent this year from 1960's 1,257,700 non-farm housing starts. The industry has said 1960 was a poor year. Starts were down 20 per cent from 1959.

Why the discrepancy between the builders' forecasts for themselves and for the industry?

The reason, says the Housing Center, is that the builders invited to the Intentions Conference "are generally among the more successful businessmen, and usually do somewhat better than their fellow builders." Most are committee chairmen and regional vice presidents of the National Association of Home Builders.

The builders' predictions may not be right to the last 10,000 housing starts but their forecasts do indicate the general trend, according to association economists.

In their written answers to the poll and in comments at a group press conference the builders made it clear they believe they must pay more attention to the low-price market to expand sales.

Several also mentioned housing for the elderly as untapped market potential and several indicated they expected to do more repair and remodelling work.

For the first time in years there was talk of a revival of VA-guaranteed mortgages, thanks to relative abundance of home loan money. Fifty-five per cent of the builders reported the supply of mortgage money was "decidedly better" and 42 per cent said "some improvement."

Only 24 per cent listed interest rates as "decidedly better", and 45 per cent replied "some improvement" in rates. This reflects the stickiness of borrowing costs—their tendency to move slowly.

Backing up their comments on the importance of selling in the low-price market, the builders reported aggregate plans to more than double their own construction of homes selling for under $10,000.

CAR WASHERS FACE FINES

PARIS (AP)—Motorists caught washing their cars along the Rivers Seine or Marne are subject to court fines under a new law.

Bicycle, Auto Thefts Probed By City Police

The thefts of a bicycle and an automobile were under investigation by Monroe police last night.

The bicycle, owned by T. R. Henry of 1707 Emerson, was reportedly taken from Robert E. Lee Junior High school sometime Friday night.

It was described as a 26-inch Hercules English type boys bike, black with silver fenders and a basket.

The automobile was reported taken from the 300 block of Oak Street sometime between 5 p.m. Friday and 7:15 a.m. Saturday.

The two - door maroon and white car with California plates is owned by R. L. Yossett of route three, Monroe.

Hoffa Probe Sleuths Join U.S. Agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—A battery of former sleuths who probed into affairs of the Teamsters Union and its President James R. Hoffa is now working in the Justice Department. There are indications they still are on the same trail.

A well-placed source outside the department said Saturday a special unit has been established informally to concentrate on hunting down new leads and reinvestigate old ones dealing with Hoffa and the Teamsters.

Department officials denied any such squad has been set up, but said that a section in existence a long time—and charged with investigating organized crime and racketeering in general—is being strengthened considerably under atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Kennedy is former counsel to the Senate rackets committee which devoted a large portion of its hearings to questioning operations of Hoffa and other Teamsters officials. The committee no longer is in operation.

New faces around the Justice Department include those of Herbert J. Miller Jr., former attorney for court-appointed Teamsters Union monitors, who now heads the criminal division; John Cassidy, former executive secretary of the monitors, and Walter Sheridan, former rackets committee specialist on Hoffa.

Edwin O. Guthman, former Pulitzer Prize-winning Seattle newspaperman credited by Kennedy with providing leads in the Senate Teamsters investigation, is now the Justice Department public information chief.

It is recalled that President Kennedy, brother of the attorney general, said in one of his campaign debates with Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon that a lot of situations needed correcting.

License Charges Filed On Peddler

According to police, William H. Crawford, 27 of 412 Clayton St., West Monroe, was peddling fish without a license.

Negro Woman Cut In Fight

A Negro woman was taken to the hospital late Saturday night with cuts on the arm, face and back which she received in a fracas at 14th and Washington Streets.

Booked in connection with the cutting was Ira Clay Newton, 31-year-old Negro of 1403 DeSiard St. He was charged with aggravated battery and use of a dangerous weapon and held in lieu of a $500 bond by Monroe police.

Jean Newton of 119 South 28th St. told investigating officers that she and Newton were having a friendly family argument, that it got worse and he jumped on her and cut her. She was taken to the hospital with a cut on the left forearm, one between the eyes and two cuts on the back. None of the wounds were considered serious.

AT GRIDIRON CLUB DINNER

New Frontier Team Gets Roasting In Song, Skits

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and his "New Frontier" team got a good-natured scorching in song and skit Saturday night at the 76th annual dinner of newsdom's celebrated Gridiron Club. Republicans also suffered a satirical hot foot.

Kennedy was present along with 500 other diners in the high echelons of official and private life.

Democrats suffered their musical hazing against an "austere" backdrop of a Middleburg, Va., colonial mansion resembling the Kennedy retreat Glen Ora. The "New Frontier" was spoofed as being steeped in relatives, culture, muscle-building, and luxurious sacrifice. And it was roasted for attempted chef-stealing, "fast" vote-counting, and missile-gap goofing.

Music for the banquet at the Statler-Hilton Hotel was provided by the U. S. Marine Band under the direction of Lt. Col. Albert Schoepper.

Presidential cronies and members of the Kennedy clan paraded the plush horse country scene in a gay and lilting mood in the skits. New Frontiersmen made noble sacrifice for the cause, ridling to hounds in pink riding coats.

There also was a stage version of Frank Sinatra, dressed like a Dead End kid, giving his all as a "culture vulture," and Frankie's cultural sponsor, poet Robert Frost, prancing in chartreuse slacks and mackinaw.

And there were the Kennedy brothers, sisters, in-laws and cousins—by the dozens—properly attired for any old game.

Gridironers being strictly nonpartisan, they needled Republican leaders in a deluxe hobo jungle setting in Palm Springs, Calif., where former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is spending a golfing vacation. Besides Eisenhower, those lampooned were former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

In line with tradition, there was only one toast at the dinner—to the president of the United States. Kennedy's reply was off the record, as were remarks by speakers for each political party, Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the Republican national chairman, and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn.

Gridiron President Robert L. Riggs of the Louisville Coujit-Journal, sounded the high-jinks keynote with this quip: "We gather at this frontier not to count our blessings but to gloat over our tribulations. On this austere setting, we rejoice that never have so many reaped so much benefit from such large doses of misery."

This was jibe at the Democratic campaign cry of dwindling prestige, declining economy and the need for sacrifice.

Riggs couldn't resist a comment about the President's 3-year-old daughter Caroline.

"Servants at the White House are required to promise they won't write memoirs," Riggs said. "But what precautions are being taken about 3-year old Caroline? She's already peddling inside stuff such as, 'Daddy's just sitting there with his shoes off, doing nothing.' Her father and Uncle Bobby will find her stiff competition in the hunt for publishers."

In a jibe at the Republicans, Riggs said: "If the Democrats have given us no breathing spell, so are the Republicans caught up in stirring events. Nelson Rockefeller is trying to rush through the 20th century before Barry Goldwater repeals it."

In keeping with the gloomy note sounded by Riggs, the fun got under way with a performer bouncing on stage and proclaiming:

"Mr. President! There's bad news tonight. They're fighting in Laos! They're fighting in the Congo! They're fighting in the U. N.! They're fighting in Congress! Unemployment's up. Revenues are down, and Half of General Electric is in jail."

Then, to the music of "Good News," soloists and chorus sang a new twist:

Bad news! Everything's awful bad;

That's how we like it, bad news,

And then:

Ill news! We're sliding fast down hill.

Isn't that fit-to-kill news?

The Illinois vote count came in for roasting by characters playing the roles of Jacob M. Arvey of Cook County, and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago. To the tune of "Tea For Two," Daley explained the formula in song:

Two for you, and three for me,

And here's a few; they all are free—

And counting fast, I see they're cast for Jack.

Nobody's near us to see us or hear us;

No cops or computers to stop or refute us.

The vote will be mounting for we'll do the counting.

Out back, so . . .

In the Republican skit set in Palm Springs, a servant remarked that Eisenhower was sure catchin' up on doin' nuthin.' He added the former president "stopped over in Gettysburg just long enough to collect his soil conservation check."

When an actor representing Chairman Morton asked Eisenhower if he had anything to say, the former president's stand-in addressed his remarks to Nixon and sang to the tune of "Don't Blame Me":

I fought hard, I did what they told me to.

You met your fate, in TV debate—

So don't blame me!

Sen. Goldwater's stage double came on scene with the crack: "Down where Barry comes from, everything is on the right. They milk the cows on the right, all the automobiles have right-hand drive and the baseball pitchers are northpaws."

Initiated as active members of the 50-member club were Ernest L. Barcella, Washington bureau manager of United Press International, and Rudolph Kauffmann II of the Washington Star.

JAMES J. O'REILLY, a test pilot for Hughes Aircraft company, peers through an aluminum target which was hit dead-center from more than a mile away by a heat-seeking Falcon missile at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M. The 36-inch disc was one of a number suspended from a tower and heated to simulate a jet aircraft's exhaust. Then F-106 Delta Dart interceptors flew target runs at them, firing GAR-4A air-to-air Falcons such as the one at left. The result speaks for itself. (AP Wirephoto)

Rep. Passman Against JFK Housing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., said Saturday he is "not about to support" President Kennedy's recommendations for urban housing development.

He said in a statement he is aware of the housing problems of cities "but I just cannot go along with some of these wild spending plans of the President."

"It is high time, in fact, it is urgently necessary, for all of our people to come to a full understanding that it is their own tax money which is being spent for each and every federally financed activity, project and program," Passman said.

"And these dollars from the people, to Washington, and then back to the people, are greatly reduced in value before they finally are used for the intended purposes.

"Furthermore, our country, overburdened by confiscatory taxation and a crushing debt-load, just cannot afford to undertke to carry out every program which may be labeled 'desirable.'"

The President's housing message, including a 10-point proposal for making better homes available to millions and helping cities solve their housing problems, was sent to Congress on Thursday.

7,500 Officials On State Roster

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A revised roster of Louisiana officials contains 7,500 entries. Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. said Saturday.

The new 214-page publication, corrected through Jan. 16, lists names, titles and addresses of all elected and appointed state, district and parish officers.

The indexed booklet, arranged by parishes, also carries designations of congressional, judicial, state senatorial, public service commission, supreme court and court of appeal election districts.

NOW AT GEORGIA U.

Prized Confederacy Constitution Saved

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—A shouted warning that the Yankees were coming set off action in Chester, S.C., in 1865 that saved the permanent construction of the Confederate states from destruction.

The handwritten, 12-foot-long document, signed 100 years ago Saturday in Montgomery, Ala., now is one of the most prized holdings in the University of Georgia library. It is kept in a special silver-lined copper cylinder in the library vault.

The university got the constitution along with a large and valuable collection of Georgia material more than 20 years ago when it brought the DeRenne Library of Savannah.

The elaborate care now given the document is in contrast to the rough treatment it received just four years after it was signed by representatives of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

Chester, located on the railroad between Charlotte and Columbia, became a sort of headquarters for stragglers, deserters and tramps. Leather, salt, cotton and army provisions were stored there and the prizes for looters were tempting.

A Chester citizen, F. G. deFontaine was sitting in his yard smoking a pipe when an old Army acquaintance galloped up, shouted that the Yankees were coming. He added that a large amount of freight shipped from confederate departments in Richmond was down at the depot.

"I don't know what it is," he said. "Ain't going to stay to find out; the boys are looting the place already and I'm off for Augusta. The game's up. If you stay here, take a look at the ruins."

DeFontaine wrote later that he galloped to a nearby cotton warehouse where he found a Negro with a four-mule team and a large cotton truck. The two of them went to the depot nearly a mile distant.

"Soldiers and civilians were looting the place; two or three men had been shot and the bodies tumbled on the railroad track. The freight we wanted consisted of 20 to 30 iron-bound boxes that evidently had been opened. One of these we loaded on the wagon together with several other huge boxes fastened with iron clasps and padlocks and a number of small packages."

In the six boxed he found a mass of English bond paper. In the oak and padlocked boxes were the real prizes: the provisional and permanent constitutions of the confederacy; the treaties made with Indian tribes west of the Mississippi by Gen. Albert Pike; a goodly portion of the patent office library and the decisions of the attorney general from 1861 to 1865.

In time the collection became scattered, some of it lost, some of it sold. The permanent constitution was bought by the DeRenne family in 1863 from George T. Hanning of New York, acting for deFontaine, and a little more than half a century later it was acquired by the university.

The last long trip the constitution made was 10 years ago when W. W. DeRenne, at that time university archivist, took it to the 61st and final reunion of Confederate soldiers in Norfolk, Va. It was heavily guarded on the trip and as an additional precaution, was insured for $50,000.

A Yankee firm wrote the policy.

Forger Receives Prison Sentence At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A 27-year-old man who fleeced several banks here prepared Saturday to serve 10 years in prison.

James Harry McCann pleaded guilty to two counts of forgery and theft Friday and was sentenced by Dist. Judge Jess Johnson to serve five years on each count.

Officers said McCann admitted pulling similar schemes in several cities in Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Virginia. He had been "on the road" nine years since leaving his parents in Rhode Island.

McCann was arrested with a 22-year-old woman, Janice Neth Rich, of Miami, Fla., Wednesday.

McCann admitted taking $455 from four local banks in a forgery scheme. Officers said he would deposit a forged check in the bank under the name of a person chosen from the telephone book and later cash a smaller check on the account.

Poster Award Winner Will Enter National

Richard Medaries, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Medaries, of 236 Bawcom street, West Monroe, will enter his award winning "Charters of Freedom" poster in the national contest in Washington, D. C.

The youth, a sixth grade student at Crosley Elementary School was winner of a state poster contest sponsored by the Junior American Citizen's Club.

Chief Tusquahoma Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution sponsors the JAC in West Monroe. Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the DAR's JAC committee presented Medaries with an award recognizing him for taking state honors.

The poster Richard presented gave his conception of the government's protective attitude towards the oppressed and carried out the theme of the year, "Our Charters of Freedom."

Richard's sixth grade teacher, Mrs. Geneva Cloutier, is director of his JAC club in West Monroe.

IN MISSISSIPPI

Parade To Open Centennial Fete

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi will open its official commeration of the 100th anniversary of its secession from the union with a day-long program here on March 28.

The program will include cannons booming, bells ringing and troops marching, with pageants and balls following.

The parade will feature more than 150 units of the Mississippi Greys, the Confederate-uniformed army in memorium drawn from all sections of the state.

The marching units, which will also include bands and floats, will require more than two hours to pass the reviewing stand.

At 1 p.m. a dramatic production based on the secession convention that severed Mississippi's ties with the federal union will be staged in front of the restored old Capitol building, where the original secession convention met in January, 1861.

A costumed cast of 100 will take part in the program under the direction of Lance Goss, professor of speech and drama at Millsaps College here.

The pageant was written by Dr. Louis Dollarhide of Mississippi College. It will include a medley of Civil War tunes sung by the madrigal singers of Millsaps, under the direction of Richard Fairbanks of the college faculty.

The old capitol, now home of the State Historical Museum, will be open to visitors after the pageant and Gov. and Mrs. Ross Barnett will hold an open house at the governor's mansion at 3 p.m.

Shortly afterward, dedication ceremonies will be held at Battlefield Park, where the breastworks used during the seige of Jackson may still be seen.

The Confederate Balls will be staged at the city auditorium and a downtown hotel at night.

AT GRIDIRON CLUB DINNER

New Frontier Team Gets Roasting In Song, Skits

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and his "New Frontier" team got a good-natured scorching in song and skit Saturday night at the 76th annual dinner of newsdom's celebrated Gridiron Club. Republicans also suffered a satirical hot foot.

Kennedy was present along with 500 other diners in the high echelons of official and private life.

Democrats suffered their musical hazing against an "austere" backdrop of a Middleburg, Va., colonial mansion resembling the Kennedy retreat Glen Ora. The "New Frontier" was spoofed as being steeped in relatives, culture, muscle-building, and luxurious sacrifice. And it was roasted for attempted chef-stealing, "fast' vote-counting, and missile-gap goofing.

Music for the banquet at the Statler-Hilton Hotel was provided by the U. S. Marine Band under the direction of Lt. Col. Albert Schoepper.

Presidential cronies and members of the Kennedy clan paraded the plush horse country scene in a gay and lilting mood in the skits. New Frontiersmen made noble sacrifice for the cause, riding to hounds in pink riding coats.

There also was a stage version of Frank Sinatra, dressed like a Dead End kid, giving his all as a "culture vulture," and Frankie's cultural sponsor, poet Robert Frost, prancing in chartreuse slacks and mackinaw.

And there were the Kennedy brothers, sisters, in-laws and cousins—by the dozens—properly attired for any old game.

Gridironers being strictly nonpartisan, they needled Republican leaders in a deluxe hobo jungle setting in Palm Springs, Calif., where former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is spending a golfing vacation. Besides Eisenhower, those lampooned were former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Kennedy Not Yielding On China Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is going to find the Kennedy administration considerably tougher on the issue of admitting Communist China to the United Nations than some pre-inaugural speculation indicated.

Kennedy and his State Department aides, it can be reported, are ready to fight to keep the U.N. from accepting Communist China's terms for membership—ouster of any independent Formosa delegation.

Furthermore, they believe that when the votes are counted next fall the majority will support the United States on this, even if Macmillan cannot be convinced.

The Kennedy administration has streamlined the argument against admitting Peiping to this single issue: "Do you want to throw out Formosa and surrender its 10 million prosperous and independence minded people to Communist rule?"

There have been strong indications that the administration would like to see a "two Chinas" settlement, with both the mainland and Formosa independently in the U.N. but officials here call this a practical impossibility now and for the forseeable future, because neither China will accept.

There is realistic acceptance here of the probability that the United States could not succeed again this fall in pushing through the annual resolution to postpone the China membership issue another year. But the State Department has not yet decided whether to try it anyway.

The U.S. policy offers no encouragement to the idea of getting Communist China into the U. N. until and unless Peiping gives up its ambition to rule Formosa. No one here expects that for many years.

Meanwhile the administration has reassured Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa government that it will not let the people of Formosa down and is as determined as the Republican administration of the past eight years to defend Formosa from Communist assault.

Third Finch Murder Trial Dragging To Weary Close

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With most of its box office appeal faded, Finch murder trial No. 3 is dragging toward a weary close—like a movie seen too often on TV.

Once countless housewives speculated about the fate of star-crossed lovers Carole Tregoff and Dr. R. Bernard Finch—and the fatal shooting that led to their trial on charges of murdering the socialite surgeon's wife.

Once hundreds fought for courtroom seats. Newspapers eagerly printed movie stars' impressions of the trial. And reporters scurried for details about Carole's jail diet and Bernie's high school dates.

But like a rubber band stretched too far, too often, the trial's tension has snapped. The glamor and suspense have been replaced by an air of weariness that makes it hard to believe two lives still are at stake.

The third courtroom drama is being re-enacted in the gray, old Hal of Justice, a marked contrast to the modern county courthouse where the first trial was held in a 300-seat room. Less than a hundred spectators now watch the daily sessions. Half of the press seats are empty.

Even the principals seem to have lost their appeal.

The prosecution says Dr. Finch was fatally attracted to Carole's beauty—and she to his wealth and social standing. They say it was true love.

After long months on a jail diet, Carole, willowy model who became Dr. Finch's receptionist and later his lover, now is puffy-faced, wide-hipped and sullen. Her hair is dull and rusty instead of tawny and her once-creamy skin is pasty. She appears far older than 24.

Finch, 43, once an athletic, crew-cut surgeon, an admitted Lothario, now is a paunchy, balding man sitting tensely in a rumpled blue suit, listening with unblinking concentration to testimony he's heard all too often. His fortune, once reckoned at $750,000, reportedly has melted.

Do Carole and Bernie still love each other?

They hardly exchange glances in court—and then only with blank stares that seem to reflect only boredom.

When the story first broke nearly two years ago, it had the ingredients of a high-class thriller—charges of sex, violence and greed in a country club setting.

It happened the night of July 18, 1959—

Barbara Jean Finch, 36, sultry, tennis-playing socialite, was found shot to death, her trim body crumpled in a bloody white cocktail dress on a lawn near her luxurious home in suburban West Covina.

Investigators found Carole and Bernie in a Las Vegas, Nev., love nest. Both were charged with murder and conspiracy.

'Speakeasies' Finally Reach Fabled Tashkent

MOSCOW (AP) — That old institution born in the United States during the prohibition era has finally reached fabled Tashkent—speakeasies.

The newspaper Truth of the East reports with indignation that kitchen bars are springing up everywhere in that old citadel in central Asia whose history dates back to the 7th century.

"Some individuals have opened their private bars where they sell vodka and all the rest," the provincial newspaper complains in an issue which has not reached more cosmopolitan Moscow.

"15 visitors were served there within 10 minutes."

In the Soviet Union, vodka and other hard liquors are sold only in restaurants. Bars as such — strictly for sloshing out drinks—are forbidden. But, says Truth of the East, some people in old Tashkent seem to forget the law.

Why, the journal complains, not only are speakeasies operating defiantly but vodka is even being ladled out in dining rooms of state farms.

And booze is being sold in stores and refreshment stands which are supposed to limit their drinks to soda pop.

What makes things worse, the newspaper says, is that these places sell vodka "openly and sometimes in the presence of militiamen."

PROPOSE EIGHT STATES

Congo Leaders Plan Federation

TANANARIVE, Malagasy Republic (AP)—Congolese political leaders Saturday blocked out eight Congo states for a loose confederation organized roughly along tribal lines in hopes of restoring stability to their chaotic African nation.

Delegates to the round-table conference of Congolese leaders here reported this as their main discussions ended. A brief session is scheduled Sunday morning to work out details and sign agreements, but a spokesman said the delegates had reached "complete accord" on all major points of the agenda.

In an effort to squeeze out Antoine Gizenga, Moscow-backed leader in Stanleyville who refused to attend the meeting, a new leader was chosen for Gizenga's Oriental Province.

He is Sylvere Bondekwe, a political unknown who apparently will head an exile regime until the rebel regime collapses or Gizenga's men can be forced out of Stanleyville, the capital of Oriental.

The rebel regime, which controls the northeastern Congo, is composed of political heirs of Patrice Lumumba, the Slain Congolese leader.

Delegates said that if Gizenga's regime opposes the new arrangement it would be labeled "an outlaw regime." Gizenga's whereabouts—he has been variously reported in Cairo, Stanleyville and Leopoldville — seemed of secondary importance here.

The idea of eight provinces, worked out after what was obviously a good deal of political horse trading, replaces the six provinces marked out by the Congo's former Belgian rulers.

Leopoldville, once the central capital and source of most important decisions, will become a neutral federal capital, while the provinces will take control of their own affairs as much as possible.

This is the plan favored even before independence June 30 by Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu and President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province.

Aside from the struggle for power, the fight against a strong central government was their main quarrel with Lumumba, who tried and failed to unite the Congo's crazy-quilt of tribal and political groupings during his brief and tumultuous term as premier last summer.

In addition to Oriental, delegates said the confederation's seven other provinces and their leaders will be:

Leopoldville, headed by Cleophas Kamitatu, once a supporter of Lumumba.

Katanga, headed by Tshombe.

South Kasai, headed by Albert Kalonji, a local chief who has long held out for recognition of his fiefdom and appears to have won.

North Kasai, headed by Barthelemy Mukenze, a newcomer to national politics.

Equator, headed by Jean Bolikango a Kasavubu ally and leader of Equator's Bangala tribe, who will be vice president of the federation under Kasavubu.

Kivu, headed by Antoine Omari, who broke with Gizenga last month and set up an exile government under Tshombe's guidance.

Central Africa, headed by Vital Moanda. This will consist of the Bakongo (lower Congo) region around Leopoldville where Kasavubu's tribal political machine, the Abako, operates with an efficiency matched only by Tshombe's organization. Moanda is vice president of the Abako.

New names discussed for the Congo included "The Community of the Associated States of the Congo" or "The Confederation of States of the Congo."

Kasavubu, president of the Leopoldville regime now recognized by the United Nations, will remain as the titular head of the new confederation. Tshombe, however, has been the dominant political figure at this conference. All delegates have followed his lead.

FOR CHARITY CASES

State Hospitals Ask Extra Funds

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Budget estimates in the state department of hospitals Saturday called for an extra $10 million next fiscal year to care for Louisiana's unfortunates.

Charles Rosenblum, state hospital director, said Louisiana unemployment had increased charity general hospital work while faster, improved treatment added to mental hospital expenses.

"A jobless family doesn't have the money to go to a private hospital" he said.

There are seven state charity hospitals in the department and three mental institutions. The seven charity units do not include the largest charity hospitals—in New Orleans and Shreveport.

Rosenblum said budget estimates for the coming fiscal year, which starts July 1, total $33,908, an increase of $10 million over current spending.

But he emphasized about $1,200,000 is for capital outlay which will be scratched out of the budgets if the money is provided, as scheduled, through Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' $60 million bond issue.

All state agencies are preparing budget estimates for the fiscal legislature in May.

This, then, would lower to less than $9 million the increase in operating budgets.

"Unemployment has had a widespread impact on our charity hospitals and our charity contract bed program in private hospitals," Rosenblum said.

But this does not hold true for the big three mental hospitals, he continued, for an entirely different factor is involved.

"We are decreasing the mental patient load every month now, but we are treating more mental patients," Rosenblum said.

"What we are succeeding in doing is cutting down on the bed patient load at the mental institutions because improved treatment with better trained personnel is turning them out faster.

For instance, he said, in 1956 the average patient population at East Louisiana State Hospital, Jackson, the state's largest mental institution, was 4,833, compared with only 4,700 in 1960.

At the same time, Rosenblum said, the 1956 admission total of 1,293 at the Jackson Hospital was nearly doubled four years later to 2,140.

In 1956, the state hospitals director said, the average stay at Jackson was 197 days at $2.25 a day, for a total hospital expense of $443.

In 1960, this was cut to 71 days at $3.70 a day, or a total patient expense of $211.

And, while East Louisiana has three trained psychiatrists now, when the new fiscal year begins it will have nine.

Rosenblum said the extra help shows Louisiana's mental hospital training program "is paying off"

Among other needs, Rosenblum said, increasing use of state charity ambulances for service between Baton Rouge and New Orleans required extra vehicles and drivers.

Six N.O. Men Are Charged In 33 Burglaries

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Six New Orleans area men have been charged with burglary following their arrest for 33 burglaries in Orleans and Jefferson Parishes that netted more than $100,000 worth of property since November.

New Orleans Police Supt. Joseph I. Giarrusso and Jefferson Parish Sheriff John G. (Jack) Fitzgerald announced smashing of the ring Friday.

Charged were William D. Vondra, 22, Alanzo Patterson, 64, and Richard A. Rosen, 18, of New Orleans; Joseph Bonicard, 32, and an unidentified juvenile, 15, of Jefferson Parish, and Charles Smith, currently under arrest in Kansas City, Kan.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sallie Heard; two daughters, Mrs. Floyd Fincher, Homer; Mrs. Thompson; one son, T. B. Heard Jr., San Antonio, Tex.

Funeral services will be held 3 p.m. Sunday at the Homer Funeral Home. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery at Homer.

State Industry Board To Meet In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The State Board of Commerce and Industry will meet at 10 a.m. Thursday in the House Chamber here.

Guy C. Billups, chairman, said a closed session will be held at 9 a.m. followed by an open meeting. He said the board will consider several policy changes.

Dollar value of applications for property tax exemptions on new and imorved industry, Billups said, will be announced later this week.

The board members will be guests of the Copolymer Rubber and Chemical Co. at a luncheon at the Baton Rouge Country Club.

Jack Bark, Baton Rouge, will meet with his five-man economic development steering committee.

Herbert Hoover Rejects Post In Peace Corps

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover won't be able to accept an invitation to head an advisory committee for the country's new Peace Corps. But he still wants to be "of any feasible public service."

The White House announced that the 86-year-old ex-president had declined a bid by President Kennedy to serve as honorary chairman of the committee.

The post has since been filled, it was learned, and the chairman will be announced shortly.

Hoover issued a statement in which he said had been prompted by many inquiries from friends throughout the country who wondered why he had not accepted the chairmanship.

AIRPLANE PILOTS & STUDENT PILOTS

Here's a simple, informative course to insure you passing the FAA Written examination and to give licensed pilots a new education in air safety!

Fleeman Flying Service brings you another modern, simple new "all 1961" service to help pilots and prospective pilots pass their written tests and do a better, safer job of flying. This is a 10-week, Wednesday and Friday night, audio-visual instruction course held in the club room of the Ouachita Parish Library on North 18th street at 7:30 each evening.

It makes the following "musts" in flying easy to learn and simple to completely understand — pre-flight facts, navigation, meteorology, flight computer, radio navigation, cross country flying, civil air regulations and others. The course is taught by FAA certified ground school instructors. This course makes the private pilots written examinations easy . . . it helps experienced, licensed pilots to do a better job . . . it gives private pilots a solid groundwork to make passing commercial pilot license test, easier and quicker and is a valuable refresher course in air safety for experienced pilots.

We invite you to attend the Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. session this week to see for yourself how much this course can help you. Phone FA 5-8002 for full information and a reservation for this session at no obligation.

PROPOSE EIGHT STATES

Congo Leaders Plan Federation

TANANARIVE, Malagasy Republic (AP)—Congolese political leaders Saturday blocked out eight Congo states for a loose confederation organized roughly along tribal lines in hopes of restoring stability to their chaotic African nation.

Delegates to the round-table conference of Congolese leaders here reported this as their main discussions ended. A brief session is scheduled Sunday morning to work out details and sign agreements, but a spokesman said the delegates had reached "complete accord" on all major points of the agenda.

In an effort to squeeze out Antoine Gizenga, Moscow-backed leader in Stanleyville who refused to attend the meeting, a new leader was chosen for Gizenga's Oriental Province.

He is Sylvere Bondekwe, a political unknown who apparently will head an exile regime until the rebel regime collapses or Gizenga's men can be forced out of Stanleyville, the capital of Oriental.

The rebel regime, which controls the northeastern Congo, is composed of political heirs of Patrice Lumumba, the Slain Congolese leader.

Delegates said that if Gizenga's regime opposes the new arrangement it would be labeled "an outlaw regime." Gizenga's whereabouts—he has been variously reported in Cairo, Stanleyville and Leopoldville — seemed of secondary importance here.

The idea of eight provinces, worked out after what was obviously a good deal of political horse trading, replaces the six provinces marked out by the Congo's former Belgian rulers.

Leopoldville, once the central capital and source of most important decisions, will become a neutral federal capital, while the provinces will take control of their own affairs as much as possible.

This is the plan favored even before independence June 30 by Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu and President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province.

Aside from the struggle for power, the fight against a strong central government was their main quarrel with Lumumoa, who tried and failed to unite the Congo's crazy-quilt of tribal and political groupings during his brief and tumultuous term as premier last summer.

In addition to Oriental, delegates said the confederation's seven other provinces and their leaders will be.

Leopoldville, headed by Cleophas Kamitatu, once a supporter of Lumumba.

Katanga, headed by Tshombe.

South Kasai, headed by Albert Kalonji, a local chief who has long held out for recognition of his fiefdom and appears to have won.

North Kasai, headed by Barthelemy Mukenge, a newcomer to national politics.

Equator, headed by Jean Bolikango, a Kasavubu ally and leader of Equator's Bangala tribe, who will be vice president of the federation under Kasavubu.

Kivu, headed by Antoine Omari, who broke with Gizenga last month and set up an exile government under Tshombe's guidance.

Central Africa, headed by Vital Moanda. This will consist of the Bakongo (lower Congo) region around Lepoldville where Kasavubu's tribal political machine, the Abako, operates with an efficiency matched only by Tshombe's organization. Moanda is vice president of the Abako.

New names discussed for the Congo included "The Community of the Associated States of the Congo" or "The Confederation of States of the Congo."

Kasavubu, president of the Leopoldville regime now recognized by the United Nations, will remain as the titular head of the new confederation. Tshombe, however, ha sbeen the dominant political figure at this conference. All delegates have followed his lead.

Herbert Hoover Rejects Post In Peace Corps

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover won't be able to accept an invitation to head an advisory committee for the country's new Peace Corps. But he still wants to be "of any feasible public service."

The White House announced that the 86-year-old ex-president had declined a bid by President Kennedy to serve as honorary chairman of the committee.

The post has since been filled, it was learned, and the chairman will be announced shortly.

Hoover issued a statement in which he said had been prompted by many inquiries from friends throughout the country who wondered why he had not accepted the chairmanship.

FOR CHARITY CASES

State Hospitals Ask Extra Funds

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Budget estimates in the state department of hospitals Saturday called for an extra $10 million next fiscal year to care for Louisiana's unfortunates.

Charles Rosenblum, state hospital director, said Louisiana unemployment had increased charity general hospital work while faster, improved treatment added to mental hospital expenses.

"A jobless family doesn't have the money to go to a private hospital" he said.

There are seven state charity hospitals in the department and three mental institutions. The seven charity units do not include the largest charity hospitals—in New Orleans and Shreveport.

Rosenblum said budget estimates for the coming fiscal year, which starts July 1, total $33,908, an increase of $10 million over current spending.

But he emphasized about $1,200,000 is for capital outlay which will be scratched out of the budgets if the money is provided, as scheduled, through Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' $60 million bond issue.

All state agencies are preparing budget estimates for the fiscal legislature in May.

This, then, would lower to less than $9 million the increase in operating budgets.

"Unemployment has had a widespread impact on our charity hospitals and our charity contract bed program in private hospitals," Rosenblum said.

But this does not hold true for the big three mental hospitals, he continued, for an entirely different factor is involved.

"We are decreasing the mental patient load every month now, but we are treating more mental patients," Rosenblum said.

"What we are succeeding in doing is cutting down on the bed patient load at the mental institutions because improved treatment with better trained personnel is turning them out faster.

For instance, he said, in 1956 the average patient population at East Louisiana State Hospital, Jackson, the state's largest mental institution, was 4,833, compared with only 4,700 in 1960.

At the same time, Rosenblum said, the 1956 admission total of 1,293 at the Jackson Hospital was nearly doubled four years later to 2,140.

In 1956, the state hospitals director said, the average stay at Jackson was 197 days at $2.25 a day, for a total hospital expense of $443.

In 1960, this was cut to 71 days at $3.70 a day, or a total patient expense of $211.

And, while East Louisiana has three trained psychiatrists now, when the new fiscal year begins it will have nine.

Rosenblum said the extra help shows Louisiana's mental hospital training program "is paying off."

Among other needs, Rosenblum said, increasing use of state charity ambulances for service between Baton Rouge and New Orleans required extra vehicles and drivers.

Six N.O. Men Are Charged In 33 Burglaries

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Six New Orleans area men have been charged with burglary following their arrest for 33 burglaries in Orleans and Jefferson Parishes that netted more than $100,000 worth of property since November.

New Orleans Police Supt. Joseph I. Giarrusso and Jefferson Parish Sheriff John G. (Jack) Fitzgerald announced smashing of the ring Friday.

Charged were William D. Vondra, 22, Alanzo Patterson, 64, and Richard A. Rosen, 18, of New Orleans; Joseph Bonicard, 32, and an unidentified juvenile, 15, of Jefferson Parish, and Charles Smith, currently under arrest in Kansas City, Kan.

AIRPLANE PILOTS & STUDENT PILOTS

Here's a simple, informative course to insure you passing the FAA Written examination and to give licensed pilots a new education in air safety!

Fleeman Flying Service brings you another modern, simple new "all 1961" service to help pilots and prospective pilots pass their written tests and do a better, safer job of flying. This is a 10-week, Wednesday and Friday night, audio-visual instruction course held in the club room of the Ouachita Parish Library on North 18th street at 7:30 each evening.

It makes the following "musts" in flying easy to learn and simple to completely understand — pre-flight facts, navigation, meteorology, flight computer, radio navigation, cross country flying, civil air regulations and others. The course is taught by FAA certified ground school instructors. This course makes the private pilots written examinations easy . . . it helps experienced, licensed pilots to do a better job . . . it gives private pilots a solid groundwork to make passing commercial pilot license tests easier and quicker and is a valuable refresher course in air safety for experienced pilots.

We invite you to attend the Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. session this week to see for yourself how much this course can help you. Phone FA 5-8002 for full information and a reservation for this session at no obligation.

WHITE HOUSE PLAYGROUND

Caroline Kennedy Full Of Surprises

WASHINGTON (AP) — The little girl who says, "Hi, Daddy" to the President of the United States is getting a big bang out of life in the White House.

A 3-year-old scene stealer, Caroline Kennedy has obviously made the presidential mansion her playground.

She's full of surprises — packing a toy pistol, blithely helping her father play host to world leaders.

Although Mrs. Kennedy says she would like Caroline kept out of the public spotlight, the President seems willing enough to have his blonde daughter share public appearances with him.

Some of the most appealing photographs of Caroline were taken perched on her father's office desk, while ostensibly working on affairs of state.

Caroline is as full of spirit and questions as any 3-year-old. Right now, she seems to observers to be unspoiled by the unusual life into which she had been thrust.

She obviously has taken to it with delight.

Although she is in the charge of a British nurse, Caroline manages to get off on her own for unexpected appearances.

Clattering in her mother's high-heeled shoes, she broke up an important news conference her father was conducting in Palm Beach, Fla. In a flash, she had turned the television cameras from the then president-elect to make her own TV debut in pink pajamas.

Caroline isn't averse to giving out secrets, either. She wandered into the White House communications room one Sunday and, when asked what her Daddy was doing, candidly replied: "He's not doing anything. He's just sitting up there with his shoes and socks off doing nothing."

Caroline is meeting some of the world's most famous people.

Eleanor Roosevelt reports the President's daughter is the type that likes to "tag along."

Caroline goes on tours of the private family quarters with her father and his friends.

She takes the interest of a grown-up hostess, too.

"Isn't it said Mommy isn't here," she told Mrs. Roosevelt, referring to Mrs. Kennedy's absence on a Palm Beach, Fla., visit.

And, then, when Kennedy turned to two men in the group and asked whether they wanted a drink, Caroline piped up: "They've already had a drink, Daddy. There's their glasses."

Much of the little girl's time probably will be spent now at Glen Ora, the presidential country retreat in Middleburg, Va., where Mrs. Kennedy can keep Caroline in more normal surroundings and let her play with friends of her own age.

The Kennedys apparently believe in letting Caroline be one of the presidential family at home and taking part in what's going on in their mansion home.

Caroline doesn't seem to be aware that there's anything unusual about living in the White House.

And Mrs. Kennedy would like to keep it that way.

Envoy Hopes For Release Of Americans

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy official returned Saturday from a leftist bastion in the interior with "encouraging signs" that pro-Lumumba Congolese will release nine Americans held virtual prisoner in Kivu Province.

Embassy Second Secretary Frank Carlucci reported he was courteously received by the Soviet-backed regime of Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville, although in the past Western diplomats there have been abused and one British woman consular official even was slapped by leftists who unzipped her dress.

Carlucci sought to win the immediate release of two American missionary familes, members of the World Grace Testimony group caught with some 300 Europeans in a grim Congolese power fight in Kivu Province.

The Americans are:

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Vinton, of Ebensberg, Pa.; their son, Frederick, of Lynwood, Calif.; Frederick's wife and 8-month-old son, Frederick, Jr.; and Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Anderson, of Chicago, and their daughters, Sally and Elaine.

Gizenga troops, all loyal to the memory of slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, refused to let the Americans or any other of the whites leave on grounds their skills and training were needed there.

Carlucci said he flew to Kivu and had "encouraging signs" from the Gizenga regime that the Vintons and Andersons would be permitted to leave. Gizenga's army chief, Gen. Victor Lundula, flew with Carlucci to Kivu from Stanleyville.

The event will be hosted by their children, Mrs. Ben Ward, Mrs. Dan Nyegaard, Mrs. Elgin Dean and Bill Skains of Farmerville and Mrs. Edmond Guice and Robert L. Skains of Downsville..

PAR Luncheon Speakers Named For Conference

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The conference on Louisiana Government to be held here March 17 under sponsorship of the Public Affairs Research Council will have two luncheon speakers.

They are Charles Keller Jr., president of PAR, a private research organization, and Max Fetty, Baton Rouge advertising executive.

The day-long conference will end with a banquet, at which Gov. Jimmie H. Davis and James D. Zellerbach, former U.S. Ambassador to Italy, will be the speakers.

Morning and afternoon panels will be devoted to appraisals of Louisiana's "economic and governmental balance sheet."

Both Parties Pleased With JFK Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's "take charge" tactics in his two months in office are pleasing to both Democrats and Republicans — for different reasons.

Democrats say Kennedy's determination to have a personal hand in nearly everything that goes on in his administration makes for the kind of a strong presidency they believe the voters will endorse in 1964.

Republicans are quietly pleased to have Kennedy assume personal responsibility for not only his administration's general course but for individual actions and operations they think may come back to plague the President politically.

The Republicans think Kennedy will never be able to stand above the political fray to the degree that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower did.

Democrats were largely reluctant or unable to pin any administration failures directly on the President in 1956, but GOP strategists think they can saddle Kennedy with the burden for errors that may accumulate in the next four years.

The difference, of course, is that Kennedy will have behind him a party that generally is regarded as representing a majority among voters.

The Republicans, as a party, couldn't keep up with Eisenhower. When he won by a landslide in 1952 they barely nosed into control of Congress. After that Eisenhower and the Democratic party were the election winners.

Despite the inclination of voters to give a president a second chance if he has done at all well in his first term, Republican strategists think there will be factors in the 1964 election favoring them if they come up with a strong candidate of their own.

One they don't mention publicly is the current controversy over proposed federal aid to parochial and private schools. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, is against it on the grounds that he believes it is unconstitutional.

The Roman Catholic Church hierarchy has come out for it, on the ground that to limit aid to public schools would be a discrimination against students in privately operated institutions and their taxpaying parents.

While this issue may not be of proportions to divide Catholics politically in the 1964 elections, some Republicans count on a certain measure of disillusionment with what critics might regard as the President's effort to lean over backwards in not showing any favoritism to his church.

No one can be certain of it, but there is a feeling among GOP leaders that Catholic Republicans stirred by the religious issue in the last campaign may have helped provide the margin in some big electoral vote states that gave Kennedy his narrow victory over former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

It is the hope of these strategists that, having proved the point that a member of their church can be elected president, these Catholics will tend to go back to their Republicanism in 1964.

New Officers Of League Are Elected

New officers of the Junior Classical League to serve for the 1961-62 school year were elected yesterday at the annual state convention held here.

Eleven offices were filled from over 500 Louisiana secondary junior and high school students who arrived in Monroe Friday for the meeting.

The newly - elected state officers are Bruce Jones of St. Matthews, president; Jo Henson of Ouachita Parish, vice president; Cynthia Leigh of Neville, recording secretary; Stanley Ellington of Opelousas, treasurer; Gail Cain of Dominican, parliamentarian; June Anderson of Byrd, public relations; Dennis Organ of Fair Park, editor-reporter; Chris Asby of Ouachita, national delegate; Gayle Bangert of Byrd, national delegate; Charlotte Mince of Dominican, national delegate and Carolyn Thompson of Neville, national delegate.

AWARD WINNERS

Winners of the individual competitions in oratory, posters, special projects and scrapbooks were also announced last night. Built around the theme "In Rome's Proud Steps," the porgram of events consisted of discussion groups, a banquet and dance and speakers from throughout the state.

In the scrapbook contest, first place was won by Fair Park and second place by Broadmoor Junior High, both of Shreveport. First place in the poster competition was won by Given Talbot of Byrd. The handicraft first place award went to John Wood of Sulphur High School.

In the costume contest first place in the girl's division went to Meradith Tillberry of Fairpark; first place in the boy's division was won by Dockie Miller, Youree Drive Junior High in Shreveport.

Finally, the oratory contest ended in a tie for first place between Andy Houg of Sulphur and Amanda Miller of Youree Drive, second place went to Carol Beamon of Fairpark.

Among those who addressed the delegates were Dr. Mary Sollman, of Cleveland, Ohio, now associate professor of classical languages at Newcomb College in New Orleans; and R. M. Frazer Jr., a Tulane University classics instructor. Dr. Sollmann displayed slides made on several trips to Greece and the Mediterranean area, and Frazer conducted an analysis of Roman literature.

Students attending the convention came from Neville, Ouachita Parish, West Monroe, St. Matthew's, Bastrop, Baton Rouge, Bossier City, Byrd, Fairpark, Istrouma, LaGrange, Minden, Opelousas, Spring Hill, and Sulphur High Schools, as well as the Brothers' School of Opelousas, Broadmoor Junior High, St. Mary's Dominican of New Orleans, St. Vincent's Academy of Shreveport and Youree Drive Junior High.

1888 Blizzard Gets Rehashing

NEW YORK (AP)—The blizzard of '88 was rehashed all over against the Statler Hotel Saturday.

The 100 persons gathered in a banquet room there felt to a man, or woman, that the weather this winter was a mere puff. Child's play.

The group calls itself the Blizzard Men and Ladies of 1888. It meets about this time every year to swap yarns about the rigors of that winter when 20.4 inches of snow fell in 62 hours and drifted into piles 20 feet high.

Electric Firm Charges Union With Attacks

NEW YORK (AP)—The General Electric Co. accused officials of the International Union of Electrical Workers Saturday of waging a "massive and thoroughly reckless" effort to destroy public confidence in the company.

The company said James B. Carey, president of the international union, began "a campaign of villification immediately after the collapse of his October strike."

Now, it said, he "has stepped up his attacks by seizing on the recent antitrust cases and using them as a springboard for a whole new series of charges."

GE was one of 29 electrical manufacturing companies recently convicted of conspiring to rig prices on some heavy equipment.

It held that "there is absolutely no connection between the antitrust cases and collective bargaining between General Electric and the IUE. Fabricating such a connection is merely a transparent device to reinforce continuous efforts to blacken the reputation of the company."

ACTIVITIES PLANNED

Mothers' Weekend Set At Northeast

Mothers of resident women at Northeast State will return to school on March 18-19 for a fun-filled schedules of activities, including a style show, reception, an overnight stay in a dormitory, and a Sunday morning breakfast.

They also may look forward to Saturday night serenades by Circle K Club, men's leadership organization.

Mothers' Weekend is being sponsored by the Council of Resident Women Students, Miss Alma Lufcy, counselor to women, announced.

The affair will be the first of what the organization hopes to make an annual event at Northeast. Whether or not this becomes a reality depends upon this initial program, Miss Lufcy said.

Sharing a big part of the council's responsibilities are Martha Stockstill, president of Casper Hall; Shirley Gary, president of Harris Hall, and Sandra Johnson, representative of the Panhellenic House.

All women students and their mothers are invited to the style show and reception which will follow.

Official activities will begin with the style show Saturday at 3 p.m. in Gunby Dining Hall. Sixteen coeds will model clothing appropriate for the various activities that may occur in a day on the campus. Special social events will not be overlooked in the college girl's wardrobe.

Linda Clark, who has written the script, will serve as narrator for the fashion display in which local merchants have cooperated.

Following the clothing parade will be a reception in Ouachita Hall honoring all mother of Northeast students.

In addition, mothers of resident women are invited to spend the night in the Panhellenic House, Cosper Hall or Harris Hall. They will have the same Saturday night privileges as their daughters in attending a movie, having supper off the campus, watching television or enjoying some other entertainment.

Mother and daughters spending Saturday night in the dormitories will rise early enough Sunday morning to attend a special breakfast at 8 o'clock in the dining hall.

Shaughnessy Is In Sterlington

Francis X. Shaughnessy has been appointed assistant station superintendent at Louisiana Power & Light Company's Sterlington Steam - Electric Generating Station near Bastrop.

Shaughnessy returns to Sterlington, where he was a member of the staff for many years, from LP&L's nearly completed Little Gypsy Station in St. Charles Parish, 25 miles up river from New Orleans. At the South Louisiana Station, he was head of results and control.

Shaughnessy's appointment was announced by W. T. Hess, vice-president and chief engineer of LP&L in New Orleans. He is scheduled to report for work at Sterlington April 1, according to W. B. (Bill) Jordan, station superintendent at Sterlington.

He is married to the former Miss Nell York of Wisner. They have four children — Francis X., Jr., 19; Jean, 17; Kathleen, 9; and Michael, 5. His mother, Mrs. Mary Lou Shaughnessy, lives at 1702 Jackson Street in Monroe.

Engineers Ask Waterway Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said Saturday the Army engineer chief told him more information was needed before a favorable preliminary recommendation could be given the proposed $227 million Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway.

The report was made to Stennis by Lt. Gen. E. C. Itschner following a conference here Friday. However, an assistant to Itschner was quoted as saying the information required was probably already on hand, and might not result in any unnecessary delay.

A 3-year-old scene stealer, Caroline Kennedy has obviously made the presidential mansion her playground.

She's full of surprises — packing a toy pistol, blithely helping her father play host to world leaders.

Although Mrs. Kennedy says she would like Caroline kept out of the public spotlight, the President seems willing enough to have his blonde daughter share public appearances with him.

Some of the most appealing photographs of Caroline were taken perched on her father's office desk, while ostensibly working on affairs of state.

Caroline is as full of spirit and questions as any 3-year-old. Right now, she seems to observers to be unspoiled by the unusual life into which she had been thrust.

She obviously has taken to it with delight.

Although she is in the charge of a British nurse, Caroline manages to get off on her own for unexpected appearances.

Clattering in her mother's high-heeled shoes, she broke up an important news conference her father was conducting in Palm Beach, Fla. In a flash, she had turned the television cameras from the then president-elect to make her own TV debut in pink pajamas.

Caroline isn't averse to giving out secrets, either. She wandered into the White House communications room one Sunday and, when asked what her Daddy was doing, candidly replied: "He's not doing anything. He's just sitting up there with his shoes and socks off doing nothing."

Caroline is meeting some of the world's most famous people.

Eleanor Roosevelt reports the President's daughter is the type that likes to "tag along."

Caroline goes on tours of the private family quarters with her father and his friends.

She takes the interest of a grown-up hostess, too.

"Isn't it said Mommy isn't here," she told Mrs. Roosevelt, referring to Mrs. Kennedy's absence on a Palm Beach, Fla., visit.

And, then, when Kennedy turned to two men in the group and asked whether they wanted a drink, Caroline piped up: "They've already had a drink, Daddy. There's their glasses."

Much of the little girl's time probably will be spent now at Glen Ora, the presidential country retreat in Middleburg, Va., where Mrs. Kennedy can keep Caroline in more normal surroundings and let her play with friends of her own age.

The Kennedys apparently believe in letting Caroline be one of the presidential family at home and taking part in what's going on in their mansion home.

Caroline doesn't seem to be aware that there's anything unusual about living in the White House.

And Mrs. Kennedy would like to keep it that way.

Envoy Hopes For Release Of Americans

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy official returned Saturday from a leftist bastion in the interior with "encouraging signs" that pro-Lumumba Congolese will release nine Americans held virtual prisoner in Kivu Province.

Embassy Second Secretary Frank Carlucci reported he was courteously received by the Soviet-backed regime of Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville, although in the past Western diplomats there have been abused and one British woman consular official even was slapped by leftists who unzipped her dress.

Carlucci sought to win the immediate release of two American missionary familes, members of the World Grace Testimony group caught with some 300 Europeans in a grim Congolese power fight in Kivu Province.

The Americans are:

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Vinton, of Ebensberg, Pa.; their son, Frederick, of Lynwood, Calif.; Frederick's wife and 8-month-old son, Frederick, Jr.; and Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Anderson, of Chicago, and their daughters, Sally and Elaine.

Gizenga troops, all loyal to the memory of slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, refused to let the Americans or any other of the whites leave on grounds their skills and training were needed there.

Carlucci said he flew to Kivu and had "encouraging signs" from the Gizenga regime that the Vintons and Andersons would be permitted to leave. Gizenga's army chief, Gen. Victor Lundula, flew with Carlucci to Kivu from Stanleyville.

Skains will be observed with an open house on Sunday, March 19, from 2 to 5 p.m. honoring them at their home in Downsville. The event will be hosted by their children, Mrs. Ben Ward, Mrs. Dan Nyegaard, Mrs. Elgin Dean and Bill Skains of Farmerville and Mrs. Edmond Guice and Robert L. Skains of Downsville..

PAR Luncheon Speakers Named For Conference

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The conference on Louisiana Government to be held here March 17 under sponsorship of the Public Affairs Research Council will have two luncheon speakers.

They are Charles Keller Jr., president of PAR, a private research organization, and Max Fetty, Baton Rouge advertising executive.

The day-long conference will end with a banquet, at which Gov. Jimmie H. Davis and James D. Zellerbach, former U.S. Ambassador to Italy, will be the speakers.

Morning and afternoon panels will be devoted to appraisals of Louisiana's "economic and governmental balance sheet."

Both Parties Pleased With JFK Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's "take charge" tactics in his two months in office are pleasing to both Democrats and Republicans — for different reasons.

Democrats say Kennedy's determination to have a personal hand in nearly everything that goes on in his administration makes for the kind of a strong presidency they believe the voters will endorse in 1964.

Republicans are quietly pleased to have Kennedy assume personal responsibility for not only his administration's general course but for individual actions and operations they think may come back to plague the President politically.

The Republicans think Kennedy will never be able to stand above the political fray to the degree that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower did.

Democrats were largely reluctant or unable to pin any administration failures directly on the President in 1956, but GOP strategists think they can saddle Kennedy with the burden for errors that may accumulate in the next four years.

The difference, of course, is that Kennedy will have behind him a party that generally is regarded as representing a majority among voters.

The Republicans, as a party, couldn't keep up with Eisenhower. When he won by a landslide in 1952 they barely nosed into control of Congress. After that Eisenhower and the Democratic party were the election winners.

Despite the inclination of voters to give a president a second chance if he has done at all well in his first term, Republican strategists think there will be factors in the 1964 election favoring them if they come up with a strong candidate of their own.

One they don't mention publicly is the current controversy over proposed federal aid to parochial and private schools. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, is against it on the grounds that he believes it is unconstitutional.

The Roman Catholic Church hierarchy has come out for it, on the ground that to limit aid to public schools would be a discrimination against students in privately operated institutions and their taxpaying parents.

While this issue may not be of proportions to divide Catholics politically in the 1964 elections, some Republicans count on a certain measure of disillusionment with what critics might regard as the President's effort to lean over backwards in not showing any favoritism to his church.

No one can be certain of it, but there is a feeling among GOP leaders that Catholic Republicans stirred by the religious issue in the last campaign may have helped provide the margin in some big electoral vote states that gave Kennedy his narrow victory over former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

It is the hope of these strategists that, having proved the point that a member of their church can be elected president, these Catholics will tend to go back to their Republicanism in 1964.

TRAFFIC TOLL RISES

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway had 309 traffic fatalities last year, a 5 per cent increase over 1959.

New Officers Of League Are Elected

New officers of the Junior Classical League to serve for the 1961-62 school year were elected yesterday at the annual state convention held here.

Eleven offices were filled from over 500 Louisiana secondary junior and high school students who arrived in Monroe Friday for the meeting.

The newly - elected state officers are Bruce Jones of St. Matthews, president; Jo Henson of Ouachita Parish, vice president; Cynthia Leigh of Neville, recording secretary; Stanley Ellington of Opelousas, treasurer; Gail Cain of Dominican, parliamentarian; June Anderson of Byrd, public relations; Dennis Organ of Fair Park, editor-reporter; Chris Asby of Ouachita, national delegate; Gayle Bangert of Byrd, national delegate; Charlotte Mince of Dominican, national delegate and Carolyn Thompson of Neville, national delegate.

AWARD WINNERS

Winners of the individual competitions in oratory, posters, special projects and scrapbooks were also announced last night. Built around the theme "In Rome's Proud Steps," the porgram of events consisted of discussion groups, a banquet and dance and speakers from throughout the state.

In the scrapbook contest, first place was won by Fair Park and second place by Broadmoor Junior High, both of Shreveport. First place in the poster competition was won by Given Talbot of Byrd. The handicraft first place award went to John Wood of Sulphur High School.

In the costume contest first place in the girl's division went to Meradith Tillberry of Fairpark; first place in the boy's division was won by Dockie Miller, Youree Drive Junior High in Shreveport.

Finally, the oratory contest ended in a tie for first place between Andy Houg of Sulphur and Amanda Miller of Youree Drive, second place went to Carol Beamon of Fairpark.

Among those who addressed the delegates were Dr. Mary Sollman, of Cleveland, Ohio, now associate professor of classical languages at Newcomb College in New Orleans; and R. M. Frazer Jr., a Tulane University classics instructor. Dr. Sollmann displayed slides made on several trips to Greece and the Mediterranean area, and Frazer conducted an analysis of Roman literature.

Students attending the convention came from Neville, Ouachita Parish, West Monroe, St. Matthew's, Bastrop, Baton Rouge, Bossier City, Byrd, Fairpark, Istrouma, LaGrange, Minden, Opelousas, Spring Hill, and Sulphur High Schools, as well as the Brothers' School of Opelousas, Broadmoor Junior High, St. Mary's Dominican of New Orleans, St. Vincent's Academy of Shreveport and Youree Drive Junior High.

1888 Blizzard Gets Rehashing

NEW YORK (AP)—The blizzard of '88 was rehashed all over against the Statler Hotel Saturday.

The 100 persons gathered in a banquet room there felt to a man, or woman, that the weather this winter was a mere puff. Child's play.

The group calls itself the Blizzard Men and Ladies of 1888. It meets about this time every year to swap yarns about the rigors of that winter when 20.4 inches of snow fell in 62 hours and drifted into piles 20 feet high.

Electric Firm Charges Union With Attacks

NEW YORK (AP)—The General Electric Co. accused officials of the International Union of Electrical Workers Saturday of waging a "massive and thoroughly reckless" effort to destroy public confidence in the company.

The company said James B. Carey, president of the international union, began "a campaign of villification immediately after the collapse of his October strike."

Now, it said, he "has stepped up his attacks by seizing on the recent antitrust cases and using them as a springboard for a whole new series of charges."

GE was one of 29 electrical manufacturing companies recently convicted of conspiring to rig prices on some heavy equipment.

It held that "there is absolutely no connection between the antitrust cases and collective bargaining between General Electric and the IUE. Fabricating such a connection is merely a transparent device to reinforce continuous efforts to blacken the reputation of the company."

ACTIVITIES PLANNED

Mothers' Weekend Set At Northeast

Mothers of resident women at Northeast State will return to school on March 18-19 for a fun-filled schedules of activities, including a style show, reception, an overnight stay in a dormitory, and a Sunday morning breakfast.

They also may look forward to Saturday night serenades by Circle K Club, men's leadership organization.

Mothers' Weekend is being sponsored by the Council of Resident Women Students, Miss Alma Lufcy, counselor to women, announced.

The affair will be the first of what the organization hopes to make an annual event at Northeast. Whether or not this becomes a reality depends upon this initial program, Miss Lufcy said.

Sharing a big part of the council's responsibilities are Martha Stockstill, president of Casper Hall; Shirley Gary, president of Harris Hall, and Sandra Johnson, representative of the Panhellenic House.

All women students and their mothers are invited to the style show and reception which will follow.

Official activities will begin with the style show Saturday at 3 p.m. in Gunby Dining Hall. Sixteen coeds will model clothing appropriate for the various activities that may occur in a day on the campus. Special social events will not be overlooked in the college girl's wardrobe.

Linda Clark, who has written the script, will serve as narrator for the fashion display in which local merchants have cooperated.

Following the clothing parade will be a reception in Ouachita Hall honoring all mother of Northeast students.

In addition, mothers of resident women are invited to spend the night in the Panhellenic House, Cosper Hall or Harris Hall. They will have the same Saturday night privileges as their daughters in attending a movie, having supper off the campus, watching television or enjoying some other entertainment.

Mother and daughters spending Saturday night in the dormitories will rise early enough Sunday morning to attend a special breakfast at 8 o'clock in the dining hall.

Shaughnessy Is In Sterlington

Francis X. Shaughnessy has been appointed assistant station superintendent at Louisiana Power & Light Company's Sterlington Steam - Electric Generating Station near Bastrop.

Shaughnessy returns to Sterlington, where he was a member of the staff for many years, from LP&L's nearly completed Little Gypsy Station in St. Charles Parish, 25 miles up river from New Orleans. At the South Louisiana Station, he was head of results and control.

Shaughnessy's appointment was announced by W. T. Hess, vice-president and chief engineer of LP&L in New Orleans. He is scheduled to report for work at Sterlington April 1, according to W. B. (Bill) Jordan, station superintendent at Sterlington.

He is married to the former Miss Nell York of Wisner. They have four children — Francis X., Jr., 19; Jean, 17; Kathleen, 9; and Michael, 5. His mother, Mrs. Mary Lou Shaughnessy, lives at 1702 Jackson Street in Monroe.

Engineers Ask Waterway Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said Saturday the Army engineer chief told him more information was needed before a favorable preliminary recommendation could be given the proposed $227 million Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway.

The report was made to Stennis by Lt. Gen. E. C. Itschner following a conference here Friday. However, an assistant to Itschner was quoted as saying the information required was probably already on hand, and might not result in any unnecessary delay.

Huffene and Mrs. Ida Evans, charter members of the church group; R. H. Thompson, member of building committee, and George Bonner, committee member and church treasurer. The new church name will replace the Cleft Rock Baptist Church title when the congregation moves to the location, Oaklawn Drive at Creswell Drive. (Staff Photo by Davis Roane)

REV. WILLIAM SUMMERS

Evangelistic Services Due During Week

A week of daily evangelistic services will be conducted at the Covenant Presbyterian Church here by the Rev. William F. Summers, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Tyler, Texas.

His first service here will be held this evening at 7:30, and will continue each evening at that hour through Friday.

Special music will be a part of each service, with the Ouachita Parish High School Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Jerry Thomas, singing Monday night.

Rev. Summers is a native of North Carolina and was educated at Davidson College and Union Theological Seminary of Richmond, Va.

The subjects for his sermons will be:

Sunday, "Who Touched Me?", Monday, "Two Unwanted Men"; Tuesday, "An Old Man's Advice"; Wednesday, "Throw Away the measuring Line"; Thursday, "Who is this Man

List Speakers For Meet On Government

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Luncheon speakers for the Conference on Louisiana Government to be held here March 17 under sponsorship of the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) will be Charles Keller, Jr., president of PAR, and Max Fetty, of Fetty, Hundemer and Associates of Baton Rouge.

The conference is a day-long event, opening at 9:30 in the morning and concluding with a banquet when speakers will be Gov. Jimmie Davis and James D. Zellerbach, former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

The public is invited to all sessions of the conference.

Keller will give a report on the past year's work of PAR and an appraisal of some of the governmental issues facing the state. He is an active civic leader in New Orleans and has been for many years a member of the Executive Committee of PAR.

Fetty is a well known Baton Rouge advertising and public relations executive who mixes up humor and philosophy when he addresses a group. Subject of his talk for the luncheon is "Folks, Food, Fertilizer, Faith, and a Little Dab of Rain."

Morning and afternoon panels of the conference will be devoted to appraisals of Louisiana's "Economic and governmental balance sheet."

MILITARY BALL queen at Louisiana Tech was Maud Ella Hollis of 1840 Harvard, Alexandria. She was elected by vote of the cadets in the Air Force ROTC at the college. Miss Hollis is a junior, majoring in speech and education.

Congo Keeps U.N. Ships Out Of Ports

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—The U.N. Command Saturday sought in vain to talk its way back into the two Atlantic coast supply bases it lost to Congolese troops in combat. Friction increased between both sides.

The U.S. naval transport General Eltinge nosed into Congo waters with 300 tons of badly-needed supplies, but was ordered to anchor at Pointe Noire in the neighboring (former French) Congo Republic pending settlement of the United Nations - Congolese quarrel over the return of U.N. troops to the Atlantic port bases of Matadi and Banana.

Increasing tension was the disclosure that Congolese soldiers seized a Swedish soldier Thursday while he was visiting his missionary father northeast of Leopoldville.

The Congolese defended the arrest of Per Olof Collden on grounds he had no Congolese travel permit. He still was being held prisoner.

Congolese officials conferred with acting U.N. Chief Makki Abbas.

It was presumed they discussed the Congolese protest against the scheduled arrival in the Congo next week of a 4,700-man Indian army brigade to bolster the U.N. Command. U. S. Air Force transports were to ferry in the Indinas.

The Congolese in Leopoldville charged that India had leaned toward the leftist rebel regime in Stanleyville.

Attempts to return U.N. troops to Matadi—the main port for bringing in supplies by sea—and Banana, 80 miles to the east on the Congo River mouth, awaited final action by Congo President Joseph Kasavubu.

He still was in Tananarive, ending a "Congo summit conference" with Katanga Province leader Moise Tshombe and Baluba tribal chieftain Albert Kalonji both self - proclaimed territorial "presidents."

U. N. officials were insisting that U.N. supply officers and troops be allowed back into Matadi before more supplies for the Congo are brought in there.

The Sudanese troop detachments in Banana and Matadi were driven out by superior Congolese forces last weekend.

Kennedy Receives Gift Of Salamander

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House now possesses a seven-inch salamander—the gift of Robert F. Kennedy Jr., 7, to his uncle, President Kennedy.

Bobby appeared at the White House Saturday for a formal appointment which he had arranged in advance by means of a "Dear Jack" letter to his uncle.

Bobby didn't reveal in the letter what he wanted to see the President about. Apparently, he hadn't even told his father, the attorney general. But when he showed up—scrubbed and brushed to a fare-thee-well, the answer was obvious. He was carrying a large-mouthed jar containing the salamander, a particularly unlovely specimen.

Reporters called into the President's office found the two deep in conversation.

"Pick him up," suggested the President.

"No, he bites," said Bobby.

"How do you know?" asked the President.

Bobby said he had found the gray and white-spotted creature in his family's swimming pool at their estate in nearby Virginia.

He apparently felt that this was just what the White House needed to complete its decor. He revealed that the salamander's name was Shadrach.

Bobby thought it should go in the fish room—a conference room near the President's office that was decorated with illuminated fish tanks in Franklin D. Roosevelt's time.

"It's too good for the fish room," said the President. "Maybe you'd better put it back in the swimming pool."

But when Bobby left with his mother he was empty-handed — Shadrach the salamander remained behind in the White House, at least for the time being.

FATTEST MAN FOUND

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Zagreb newspaper says it has found the fattest man in Communist Yugoslavia, 472-pound Stjepan Krznar, 22, of the Croatian town of Sisaki. The paper said Stjepan, who weighed 119 pounds when he was three, feels fine-particularly when eating.

Tallulah Man Resigns ASC Chairmanship

TALLULAH (Special) — George R. Kimbrough of Tallulah has resigned his position as state chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

Kimbrough submitted his resignation to U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman yesterday.

He said he was resigning the post "due to the change in administration."

He had served on the state committee since 1956 under the Republican administration.

Kimbrough said he would serve any way he can "at the pleasure of the secretary."

The ASC is a representative of the farmers to the federal government, acting on farm policy matters.

Phone Numbers In Ferriday To Be Changed

FERRIDAY (Special) — S. Lamar Water, local telephone manager of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, announces all Ferriday telephone numbers will change to seven numerals March 19.

Manager Water announced that at 1:01 Sunday morning March 19, all local numerals will change to seven, the kind of numbers he said that would eventually be used everywhere.

The new telephone directory which contains all the new numbers will be mailed during the week. The manager said he would like to request that subscribers not use the new directory before March 19.

Water declared that the new numbering system will eliminate misunderstanding, misspelling and paves the way for future growth by providing more usable number combinations.

Organize Board Of Health In East Carroll

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —Dr. W. A. Harris was elected chairman of the board for the newly organized East Carroll Board of Health, at a recent organizational meeting.

Other board members include Dr. Frank Cain, Dr. W. A. Paris, Jack Brown, farmer, and M. M. Walsworth, parish superintendent of schools.

Dr. Andrew Hedmeg, with the State Board of Health in New Orleans, was present at the meeting.

This is the first time the parish has had a board of health, which plans to draw up a charter at its next meeting, date not set.

The board's first order of business is to establish a rabies control program. Also, its function will include making recommendations to the parish police jury for ordinances it may consider concerning the health of parish residents.

The cash awards for the winning Soil Conservation Exhibits will be presented along with the regular awards given winners in the Science Fair.

Kennedy Selects Portrait For Official Picture

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has selected a full face, unsmiling, "looking straight at you" portrait of himself for distribution as his official picture.

It's the one that will hang on literally thousands and thousands of office walls in this country and around the world.

Already, various government agencies have started running off their own prints in batches totaling somewhere around 50,000, a White House official said Saturday.

The White House itself is having about 4,000 prints made; the Post Office and Interior departments started last week, and the armed forces started over three weeks ago. Each agency pays for its own prints, Andrew Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, told a reporter.

Also, the Democratic National Committee is having thousands printed with private funds.

Kennedy personally selected the new official picture recently, but it was taken last summer while he was still a senator.

Navy To Probe Cause Of Fatal Bomber Crash

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The Navy said Saturday it plans to reassemble a P2V-7 Neptune bomber in an effort to determine the cause of a crash at Lake George which killed all eight men aboard.

Divers searched the windswept lake, about 80 miles south of here, for the bodies of five of the victims. Three bodies were recovered late Friday. A Navy official denied reports other bodies were found Saturday morning.

A Navy salvage vessel, the Mary Ann, was on the scene to help recover parts of the two-engine plane. The wreckage will be carried back to Jacksonville by truck to be reassembled as much as possible.

The plane crashed and exploded Thursday night while making a simulated anti-submarine bombing run against a sunken World War II craft used as a target in Lake George.

Baby-Sitter, 19 Is Found Shot

CHICAGO (AP)—A baby-sitter was beaten and shot twice early Saturday by a man who accosted her on a street as she was returning home.

The victim, Miss Eileen Malave, 19, was reported in fair condition in a hospital. She was wounded in the body and one thumb.

Sam Siciliano, 25, was questioned. A witness said he followed the assailant, who fled on foot, and pointed out Siciliano to a policeman who was sent to investigate the shooting.

Siciliano denied knowledge of the assault.

A cash award of five dollars for the winning Soil Conservation Exhibit in each school went to the following: Billy Parent, Ferriday Junior High, exhibit on "Regular Cultivation;" Judie Baggett, Ferriday Junior High, exhibit on "Concordia Parish Soils;" Bonnie Robinson, Ferriday Elementary School, exhibit on "Value of Contour Farming;" Vidalia High School ,Frances Gerbisn and Joan Aaron project on "Before and After Erosion," tied with Bruce Chandler and Kenneth Nolan's project on "Drainage on Grassland and Bare Land."

For the winning exhibit in Concordia Parish, an additional five dollars went to Billy Parent, Ferriday High School for his exhibit on "Regular Cultivation, Strip Cropping and Contour Cultivation."

The cash awards for the winning Soil Conservation Exhibits will be presented along with the regular awards given winners in the Science Fair.

Kennedy Selects Portrait For Official Picture

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has selected a full face, unsmiling, "looking straight at at you" portrait of himself for distribution as his official pcture.

It's the one that will hang on literally thousands and thousands of office walls in this country and around the world.

Already, various government agencies have started running off their own prints in batches totaling somewhere around 50,000, a White House official said Saturday.

The White House itself is having about 4,000 prints made; the Post Office and Interior departments started last week, and the armed forces started over three weeks ago. Each agency pays for its own prints, Andrew Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, told a reporter.

Also, the Democratic National Committee is having thousands printed with private funds.

Kennedy personally selected the new official picture recently, but it was taken last summer while he was still a senator.

Navy To Probe Cause Of Fatal Bomber Crash

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The Navy said Saturday it plans to reassemble a P2V-7 Neptune bomber in an effort to determine the cause of a crash at Lake George which killed all eight men aboard.

Divers searched the windswept lake, about 80 miles south of here, for the bodies of five of the victims. Three bodies were recovered late Friday. A Navy official denied reports other bodies were found Saturday morning.

A Navy salvage vessel, the Mary Ann, was on the scene to help recover parts of the two-engine plane. The wreckage will be carried back to Jacksonville by truck to be reassembled as much as possible.

The plane crashed and exploded Thursday night while making a simulated anti-submarine bombing run against a sunken World War II craft used as a target in Lake George.

Baby-Sitter, 19 Is Found Shot

CHICAGO (AP)—A baby-sitter was beaten and shot twice early Saturday by a man who accosted her on a street as she was returning home.

The victim, Miss Eileen Malave, 19, was reported in fair condition in a hospital. She was wounded in the body and one thumb.

Sam Siciliano, 23, was questioned. A witness said he followed the assailant, who fled on foot, and pointed out Siciliano to a policeman who was sent to investigate the shooting.

Siciliano denied knowledge of the assault.

Hobbies Exceed Time

By JANICE CLARK
Correspondent

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Otto Klick, of Beekman, La., has more hobbies than he can really find time for, and is a perfectionist with every one of them.

In his woodwork shop behind his home he has turned out furnishings of all kinds for his home, goblets, and almost anything that can be made of wood. He is a tremendously successful fisherman, who seems to have figured out just what a fish is thinking at a given time, and so provides it with the proper lure to bring it to the boat. He also hunts, and with his family he bowls in Bastrop bowling lanes.

But above all else, he enjoys camellia growing. A logging contractor, Klick caught the "camellia bug" by accident, when he went down to Monroe in about 1948 to buy some azaleas for his new home. While at the nursery he happened to see some camellias in bloom, "and I thought they were about the prettiest things I'd ever seen." So he brought some home to plant in his side yard, and a new hobby was born.

INCREASING VARIETIES

For several years he enjoyed an increasing number of varieties as he added to his collection, marvelling as the hard green buds opened into the wondrously complicated, yet perfect camellia blooms. Then came the freeze of 1950. As he lay in bed listening to limbs snap in the cold outside, and knowing that the thermometer was dropping lower and lower during the night, he knew the opening buds on his precious plants would be killed. The next morning he went out to find every plant frozen to the ground.

As Klick says, "I was disgusted with trying to do anything with flowers outdoors," so he built first a slat house which has grown into a temperature and humidity - controlled greenhouse.

GRAFTING

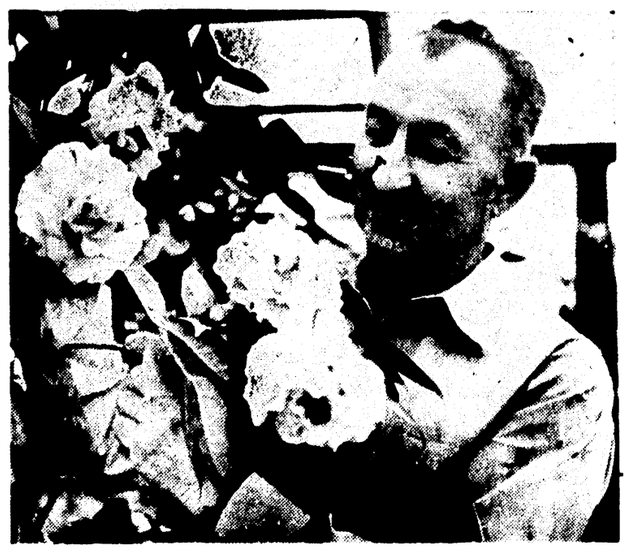
He started out grafting stock from Mobile, Ala., onto healthy roots of less rare plants, and kept a few choice plants in the hothouse rather than many plants outside. According to Klick you "work yourself to death," trying to maintain a camellia garden outdoors, and then it is always subject to extremes in weather.

His first hothouse plants were placed directly in the ground. He found this was not a good idea, as with the special weather conditions and extra care, they soon outgrew the greenhouse. Then their root spread made transplanting unsatisfactory. So he now keeps about 50 of his more special plants in the hothouse in cypress tubs. In this way, he can root - prune them, and keep their size controlled as long as he wants the plant indoors.

When he is ready to try another species in his house, he can transfer the older ones outdoors without damage to the root system. In his outdoor camellia garden he has well over 100 plants which bloom profusely during a "good camellia year," and do like everyone else's during a freeze — turn black and lose their buds and blooms.

People come in a steady stream to see Klick's camellias when they're in bloom, and continually marvel over the saucer - sized blooms. But no one marvels over each bloom more than does Otto Klick himself, who never fails to feel that he has witnessed a new miracle, every time one of those hard, round, drab buds begins to open and the beauty of a new camellia unfolds and grows into the perfect flower its heritage promised.

Klick's flowers were shown recently along with those of his brother - in - law, Howard Keahey, of Bastrop, when the Rose Garden Club had a silver tea and camellia show in the Municipal Building in Crossett.



OTTO KLICK admires a spray of Betty Sheffield camellias — white with pink stripes. Nearby were saucer-sized blooms on the Jullio Nuccio and Mathotiana Supreme bushes. The hothouse also had a miniature orange tree loaded with dozens of oranges, and a lemon tree with grapefruit-sized lemons.

Salvation Army Opens Building Drive

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

A $115,000 building fund campaign is being waged here by Salvation Army officials and workers, to provide adequate local army facilities.

Capt. W. E. Grantham has pointed out that a "highly successful" campaign of a similar nature was conducted in Natchez, Miss., four years ago, and added, "I feel sure that Monroe can do as well."

Spearheading the local drive are co - chairmen David Agnew and Hugh Balfour. Division heads are John Rudisill, advance memorial gifts; F. C. McConnell, special gifts; Don Weil, general gifts, and Mrs. Hettie Strauss, women's division.

"It is generally conceded that Natchez has one of the best, small Salvation Army operations in the South," Grantham commented. With a population of some 23,000, the city raised $85,000, with a goal of only $80,000.

GOAL CITED

"Considering that Monroe is much larger, we should have no trouble reaching our goal," the captain added.

In explaining what he termed a dire need for better facilities here, Grantham pointed out that the present structure was built 10 years ago. "In the light of today's needs, our facilities are grossly inadequate," he commented.

"Situated as we are on a main crossroads of the country with major routes out in all directions, we are confronted with more people needing aid than we are able to help."

"In short," he added, "we know local residents want us to help these unfortunates. To do so, we must have larger and better facilities."

Terming gifts to the Salvation Army " an investment in a better community," the captain noted that the group performs many and varied services.

ALL TYPES

Transients, young people, stranded women and children and many other types of people are helped toward a new and better life by the Salvation Army.

Since coming to Monroe 35 years ago, the army has helped thousands and thousands of people to find hope where they had once found only hunger.

Among many other facilities which will be included in the building plans are a dormitory, kitchen with dining area, several bedrooms, a young people's hall, auditorium, patio area, nursery, play area and choir room.

Current facilities encompass only a recreation room, several offices, supply rooms and a chapel.

"We don't even have a kitchen," Gantham said. "We try to do our cooking in a little building next door, but right now the floor is rotted out and the roof is about to cave in."

Some of the services performed during the past year are outlined below.

SERVICES NOTED

A total of 267 adult meetings were held, with about 8,000 people attending. Purpose of these meetings is to lead men and women into a proper understanding of their relationship with God.

Emergency aid was extended to local families, with 530 being given food, 29 receiving help to pay utility bills, 6,071 pieces of used clothing dispatched, 355 pairs of shoes given, 89 prescriptions filled and 55 getting help on paying rent.

Also last year, 436 youth meetings were held to help prepare the young people for leadership tomorrow, and 3,436 transients were given aid.

The Christmas program saw 3,000 meals given, 600 bags of candy dispatched, 5,000 toys provided, 10 pairs of shoes handed out and 615 pieces of clothing dispatched.

"It is easy to see that performing all these services in our cramped quarters is a real problem," the captain commented.

"All we are asking is that local residents give to the fund drive in order that we may better serve those who need help, and, ultimately, the community itself."

Referring once more to the Natchez undertaking, Grantham pointed out that the drive there was held in the spring of 1957 while he was captain.

"Fine, new facilities in that city today are a monument to the generosity of Natchez residents. Truly, the buildings show that Natchez cares about the unfortunates who are with us always."

Grantham heaped praise on local citizens who are giving of their time and effort to help in the fund drive. "With dedication such as these men and women have, we cannot fail to have a good drive here," he added.

To date, the campaign is "going well," Grantham said. "I am confident that the fine people of Monroe, like the Natchez residents, will do their best to help."

Small Group Key To Safety Of First Astronaut

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — When the first U.S. astronaut is rocketed toward an orbit around earth, his safety will depend heavily on a dozen little groups of men living in a unique technological austerity between three continents.

These are scientists and technicians who banished themselves, in the interests of science, to some of the most remote, barren spots of land the Atlantic Ocean has to offer.

Their homes are the islands that make up the Atlantic missile range, a string of 13 stations running from Cape Canaveral to South America and Africa.

This is a 7,000 - mile space-age "shooting gallery." Cape Canaveral pulls the trigger on the rockets — and the task of the downrange stations is to find out where the multi-ton bullets go.

When the first man is launched into orbit, the downrange stations will train radar, cameras and optical instruments on the rocket, gleaning information which computers can digest to give the spaceman his exact speed and orbit — data essential if he is to return alive.

LONG TIME

Hundreds of hours of tracking military missiles to their precise targets and satellites into orbit have gone into training the men-and-machinery teams from the Cape to Practoria, South Africa. Man-into-space will be more important, but hardly anything new.

If ever there was a spot where a man eats, sleeps and breathes his job, the average range station is it — primarily because there is little else to do. To some who have spent months at these points, even the additional money — the prime lure — seemed hardly worth it.

Cape Canaveral is "Station No. 1" on the range, and Jupiter, Fla., is the second. Third in line is Grand Bahama Island, about 152 miles southeast of the Cape and one of the more pleasant stations.

After G.B.I. comes Eleuthera Island, a hot little strip of land subjected to bad weather; then San Salvador, about like Eleuthera only less of it; Mayaguana, a swampy island almost devastated by Hurricane Donna last year; Grand Turk, where salt-making is the prime industry.

OTHER LIVABLE

Two more livable stations are those at the Dominican Republic — still operating despite the furor in U.S.-Dominican relations — and Puerto Rico. After that is dry, picturesque St. Lucia Island and volcano-born Fernando de Noronha, off the coast of South America.

Near the tail-end of the chain is Ascension Island, a barren, rocky patch of land that has been called "the most God-forsaken spot on earth."

Last on the range is a newly established station in Practoria, South Africa — a facility which the Air Force has publicized very little on orders of the State Department, because of the current African crises.

The men for these stations undergo a rigorous physical and psychological examination to see whether they can take the monotonous existence. Some come back after only a few weeks; others have stayed for months and years.

Camel Age Dims

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The age of the camel is fast coming to an end in the Arab world.

For 3,000 years the picturesque ship of the desert has been so important to this part of the world that it still is hard to imagine the Arab without his camel. Domestication of the beast was as revolutionary to the desert world as the steamship was to the high seas.

It was the camel that made the realm of the Queen of Sheba a great power. It was the camel that established contact between distant oases.

During the past decade, the 20th century has penetrated the desert, and the camel is losing his position. Better roads are being built and bigger and better motorized transport is rolling across desert sands which once were the camel's monopoly. If the trend continues, the camel will no longer be needed for long-range transport and will be reduced to the level of the donkey or the ox as a draft animal.

STARTLED

Arabs mounted on camels in southern Arabia have been startled to see American trucks pulling air-conditioned trailers into regions so remote that even few camels ever got there. Teams of the Arabian - American Oil Co. have penetrated the forbidding empty quarter of southern Arabia, so remote and inhospitable that for thousands of years even camel caravans avoided it.

A few months before he died last year, the famed British explorer of Arabia, H. St. John Philby, told me: "The camel is headed for extinction. We don't need him any more. There is not an oasis left in all Saudi Arabia which cannot be reached by a motor truck. And the roads are getting better all the time."

Philby recalled that 40 years ago, it had taken him three months to cross Arabia from the Persian Gulf to the Red Sea. Now you can make the same trip by air in three hours.

Another sign of the times is in Saudi Arabia's neighboring state —where airmail now moves out on airplanes instead of camels. Until five years ago, if you mailed an airmail letter from Taiz, Yemen, to London, it would travel the first leg of the trip by camel. It would take the "mail camel" three days to reach the British colony of Aden, from where the letter would be transported by an airplane.

Commercial airlines now have begun flying into Yemen, and the camel has lost out again. An airmail letter now actually leaves by air.

In Arabia, the age of the camel began around the 13th century, B. C. Other pack animals, like the donkey, could never get far from the water holes or oases. But the camel could travel for days without food or water.

This made possible, for the first time, overland trade routes between the realm of the Queen of Sheba on the Indian Ocean and lands on the eastern Mediterranean like Palestine and Syria. These southern Arabian kingdoms became rich exporting myrrh and frankincense and transshipping spices from India by the land route northward to Palestine, Syria and Egypt.

To the desert area, it appeared Allah had created the camel especially for long-range desert transport. He stores up water and food in the fat hump, which grows smaller as a long fast continues. He is fast and strong, able to carry a load of around 400 pounds over a long desert haul.

The camel is specially-equipped for the desert climate. He has a transparent eyelid which he drops over his eye during a sandstorm. He can close his nostrils as tightly as his mouth, to keep out the dust. His wide, soft feet flatten out when he steps on the sand, making walking easy on sand dunes.

As the camel caravan gives way to the truck-and-trailer for long-distance desert transport, the animal loses his distinctive allure to the Arab. Except for his long-range value, he is no more important than a donkey or horse.

"It is easy to see that performing all these services in our cramped quarters is a real problem," the captain commented.

"All we are asking is that local residents give to the fund drive in order that we may better serve those who need help, and, ultimately, the community itself."

Referring once more to the Natchez undertaking, Grantham pointed out that the drive there was held in the spring of 1957 while he was captain.

"Fine, new facilities in that city today are a monument to the generosity of Natchez residents. Truly, the buildings show that Natchez cares about the unfortunates who are with us always."

Grantham heaped praise on local citizens who are giving of their time and effort to help in the fund drive. "With dedication such as these men and women have, we cannot fail to have a good drive here," he added.

To date, the campaign is "going well," Grantham said. "I am confident that the fine people of Monroe, like the Natchez residents, will do their best to help."

Small Group Key To Safety Of First Astronaut

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — When the first U.S. astronaut is rocketed toward an orbit around earth, his safety will depend heavily on a dozen little groups of men living in a unique technological austerity between three continents.

These are scientists and technicians who banished themselves, in the interests of science, to some of the most remote, barren spots of land the Atlantic Ocean has to offer.

Their homes are the islands that make up the Atlantic missile range, a string of 13 stations running from Cape Canaveral to South America and Africa.

This is a 7,000 - mile space-age "shooting gallery." Cape Canaveral pulls the trigger on the rockets — and the task of the downrange stations is to find out where the multi-ton bullets go.

When the first man is launched into orbit, the downrange stations will train radar, cameras and optical instruments on the rocket, gleaning information which computers can digest to give the spaceman his exact speed and orbit — data essential if he is to return alive.

LONG TIME

Hundreds of hours of tracking military missiles to their precise targets and satellites into orbit have gone into training the men-and-machinery teams from the Cape to Practoria, South Africa. Man-into-space will be more important, but hardly anything new.

If ever there was a spot where a man eats, sleeps and breathes his job, the average range station is it — primarily because there is little else to do. To some who have spent months at these points, even the additional money — the prime lure — seemed hardly worth it.

Cape Canaveral is "Station No. 1" on the range, and Jupiter, Fla., is the second. Third in line is Grand Bahama Island, about 152 miles southeast of the Cape and one of the more pleasant stations.

After G.B.I. comes Eleuthera Island, a hot little strip of land subjected to bad weather; then San Salvador, about like Eleuthera only less of it; Mayaguana, a swampy island almost devastated by Hurricane Donna last year; Grand Turk, where salt-raking is the prime industry.

OTHER LIVABLE

Two more liveable stations are those at the Dominican Republic — still operating despite the lapse in U.S.-Dominican relations — and Puerto Rico. After that is dry, picturesque St. Lucia Island and volcano-born Fernando de Noronha, off the coast of South America.

Near the tail-end of the chain is Ascension Island, a barren, rocky patch of land that has been called "the most God-forsaken spot on earth."

Last on the range is a newly established station in Praetoria, South Africa — a facility which the Air Force has publicized very little on orders of the State Department, because of the current African crises.

The men for these stations undergo a rigorous physical and psychological examination to see whether they can take the monotonous existence. Some come back after only a few weeks; others have stayed for months and years.

Camel Age Dims

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The age of the camel is fast coming to an end in the Arab world.

For 3,000 years the picturesque ship of the desert has been so important to this part of the world that it still is hard to imagine the Arab without his camel. Domestication of the beast was as revolutionary to the desert world as the steamship was to the high seas.

It was the camel that made the realm of the Queen of Sheba a great power. It was the camel that established contact between distant oases.

During the past decade, the 20th century has penetrated the desert, and the camel is losing his position. Better roads are being built and bigger and better motorized transport is rolling across desert sands which once were the camel's monopoly. If the trend continues, the camel will no longer be needed for long-range transport and will be reduced to the level of the donkey or the ox as a draft animal.

STARTLED

Arabs mounted on camels in southern Arabia have been startled to see American trucks pulling air-conditioned trailers into regions so remote that even few camels ever got there. Trucks of the Arabian - American Oil Co. have penetrated the forbidding empty quarter of southern Arabia, so remote and inhospitable that for thousands of years even camel caravans avoided it.

A few months before he died last year, the famed British explorer of Arabia, H. St. John Philby, told me: "The camel is headed for extinction. We don't need him any more. There is not an oasis left in all Saudi Arabia which cannot be reached by a motor truck. And the roads are getting better all the time."

Philby recalled that 40 years ago, it had taken him three months to cross Arabia from the Persian Gulf to the Red Sea. Now you can make the same trip by air in three hours.

Another sign of the times is in Saudi Arabia's neighboring state —where airmail now moves out on airplanes instead of camels. Until five years ago, if you mailed an airmail letter from Taiz, Yemen, to London, it would travel the first leg of the trip by camel. It would take the "mail camel" three days to reach the British colony of Aden, from where the letter would be transported by an airplane.

Commercial airlines now have begun flying into Yemen, and the camel has lost out again. An airmail letter now actually leaves by air.

In Arabia, the age of the camel began around the 13th century, B. C. Other pack animals, like the donkey, could never get far from the water holes or oases. But the camel could travel for days without food or water.

This made possible, for the first time, overland trade routes between the realm of the Queen of Sheba on the Indian Ocean and lands on the eastern Mediterranean like Palestine and Syria. These southern Arabian kingdoms became rich exporting myrrh and frankincense and transhipping spices from India by the land route northward to Palestine, Syria and Egypt.

To the desert area, it appeared Allah had created the camel especially for long-range desert transport. He stores up water and food in the fat hump, which grows smaller as a long fast continues. He is fast and strong, able to carry a load of around 400 pounds over a long desert haul.

The camel is specially-equipped for the desert climate. He has a transparent eyelid which he drops over his eye during a sandstorm. He can close his nostrils as tightly as his mouth, to keep out the dust. His wide, soft feet flatten out when he steps on the sand, making walking easy on sand dunes.

As the camel caravan gives way to the truck-and-trailer for long-distance desert transport, the animal loses his distinctive allure to the Arab. Except for his long-range value, he is no more important than a doney or horse.

Population In Washington

Now that the question of giving suffrage, a privilege never before enjoyed, to the people of the District of Columbia is before congress the race population shift in that area is of more than ordinary interest. It has confronted the people of that section with some of the problems faced by the south.

In 1950 a family of six Negroes lived by itself in the Brentwood section of Washington, surrounded by 5,318 white people.

Now the population, according to 1960 census figures has so changed that 4,134 Negroes live where once there were six and an exodus of whites has left only 1,869.

This represents an increase of more than 51,000 per cent in the number of non-whites in census tract 94, as that particular area is called.

Tract 94's change in population make-up, while dramatic, follows a pattern that has drastically changed the racial composition of virtually every section of the city and has made the population of the entire District of Columbia more than half Negro.

The 1960 census results are being compiled and analyzed by District of Columbia officials interested in all phases of life of the city.

The first question the researchers are asking is, "Who is living here now, and is the city different from what it was 10 years ago during the last census.

Strikingly significant is the increase in number of Negroes living in the district and the corresponding decrease in whites.

There has been a total increase of 17.4 per cent in the Washington non-white population since 1950, the figure rising from 284,313 in 1950 to 418,693 in 1960.

This, of course, was a continuation of the mass migration of Negroes to the District of Columbia which was begun when the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and his wife, Eleanor, inaugurated their Negro promotion campaign almost immediately after his election as president.

During the same period the white population had a decrease of 23.4 per cent, dropping from 517,865 in 1950 to 345,263 in 1960.

As a result of these shifts, the percentage of the District's non-white population in 1960 was 54.8 per cent compared with 35.4 per cent in 1950.

The areas of the city which recorded the greatest gain in Negroes over the 10-year period were those districts—formerly almost all white—which fan out eastward from Georgia avenue and border on the Maryland line.

This drift toward the Maryland line followed the direction taken by white people who were moving out to escape the integration of schools which had been forced upon them. Some of those who moved to get away from mixed schools were congressmen who had been loudest in clamoring for integeration.

The pattern in all these invaded areas appeared to be similar. Young white couples with school-age children were moving out of the District and were being replaced by large Negro families. Of course, the influx of Negroes caused still more of the whites to move.

Difference in family size was emphasized by the "fertility ratio" of the Negro population in tract 94. This is a sociological term for the number of children under five per 100 females aged 15 to 44. The Negro ratio in 1960 was 46.4 compared to a white ratio of 23.3. This was attributed partly, of course, to the fact that many of the Negroes on welfare receive benefits according to the size of their families.

After going through so many years without allowing the people in the District of Columbia (which does not lie within a state) to cast ballots, now seems the worst time possible to attempt to give the people of that district the right to vote. The attempt is nothing more than an effort to corral a huge bloc of Negro votes antagonistic to the south.

Earliest Civilization

Dates for the beginning of civilization are steadily being pushed back.

For a long time the Babylonians and Egyptians were accounted the world's oldest civilized peoples. Further researches revealed that the Babylonians owed much to an earlier race, the Sumerians, of unknown origin.

We still display indebtedness to the Sumerians, who used an arithmetical system based on 60 as ours is based on 10. That is why we divide the hour into 60 minutes, and the minute in turn into 60 seconds. And the law code of a Sumerian king, Hammurabi, profoundly influenced the later laws of Moses.

Now the Sumerians in turn are found to have had cultured predecessors. A British archaeologist, James Mallaart, exploring in southwest Turkey, has discovered remains of this people, to whom no name has yet been assigned. They evidently had long practice in pottery, and lived in brick houses with pebble and plaster floors. The courtyard pavements were painted in green and yellow.

These people were farmers who had plastered platforms for grinding grain. The courtyards had pits for rubbish, which was not strewn about in the houses. And knuckle bones of cattle were found, suggesting that these ancient people played a game still played with such bones by the Turks. This civilization may go back to 6,000 B.C. And beyond that are traces of an earlier race still in the Stone Age. Man has been around for a long time, and he does progress.

If man suddenly came into existence or if his intelligence suddenly burst forth in a way that distinguished him from other creatures, he may have had about as much brain-power as he does now but if that is true he was unable then to exercise it then as he does now. Either man's intelligence has gone through a process of evolution or the accumulation of facts, data and instruments he has been able to use have made it seem so.

Progress during early civilization appears to have been extremely slow. Even now, we often wonder if man's intelligence is improving much, especially in the matters of community, national and world management.

Scientifically, man has leaped forward at a tremendous rate during the present century, giving us reason to believe that in those 60 years people may have made greater progress than during any 1,000 years of the first 5,000 years of known civilization.

In science the curtains hiding the universe of discovery are just beginning to be thrown aside.

According to a U.S. Department of Agriculture survey, only two out of every five persons in the United States do not eat eggs regularly for breakfast.

The earth each year reflects and radiates exactly the amount of heat which it receives during the same period from the sun.

Kennedys' Nursery School

Daughter Caroline And Half-Dozen Other Youngsters Her Age Are Getting Instruction At White House

WASHINGTON — President and Mrs. Kennedy are launching a unique innovation in the White House.

It's a nursery school for their three - year - old daughter Caroline and a half - dozen other youngsters her age. These classmates will be the children of friends and members of the White House staff.

The president and first lady decided on this after she visited a nursery school at the Bi-Social Growth Center of the National Institutes of Health, world - famous for medical research, at nearby Bethesda, Md. Mrs. Kennedy was greatly impressed by what she saw and learned.

She was particularly impressed by Mrs. Robert Waldron, who organized this experimental school and teaches there, with an assistant and the aid of the most advanced equipment, including closed - circuit television.

The work of this small class of three - year - olds is being closely studied by educational experts.

Mrs. Waldron enthusiastically accepted an invitation to set up a similarly - equipped nursery school in the White House. Prior to joining the NIH project, she conducted a private nursery school.

For the first family this new undertaking means a change in plans.

Shortly before the January 20 inauguration, Mrs. Kennedy telephoned an official of a cooperative nursery school near their home in historic Georgetown and inquired about the possibility of enrolling Caroline. The soon-to-be first lady was assured her little daughter would be gladly welcomed.

INSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE—A member of the White House staff, working late one evening, was surprised to encounter the president and first lady sauntering hand - in - hand about the executive mansion and carrying on a gay and animated conversation . . . The presidential couple already have made it evident they prefer small dinner parties, of four to eight guests, rather than big social affairs. A certain number of the latter are unavoidable, but it is the Kennedys' intention to hold them to a minimum . . . Mrs. Kennedy is solely responsible for the emphatic refusal to allow cameramen to take pictures of her riding her favorite horse. The photographers appealed to press secretary Salinger, who discussed it with the president. But he would not intervene, saying the matter was wholly up to the first lady. "She is entitled to some privacy," he remarked.

Mrs. Kennedy has declined the honorary chairmanship of a National Committee for the Arts proferred by Representative Carroll Kearns (R., Pa.) In a cordial personal letter, she explained, "I could not have greater sympathy with your plan. I warmly share your desire to make Washington a world cultural center, and I hope to contribute in every way I can to the elevation of the arts in our country. But I fear I am not too effective on committees, and have always felt that one should not go on committees if not prepared to be a working member. It therefore seems to me that I can help our joint cause best by doing the things I can as an individual and as the wife of the president." . . . The president has added honey to the breakfast menu of his weekly meetings with the Democratic congressional leaders. He did this after learning that Speaker Sam Rayburn always eats honey at breakfast.

THE LADIES — Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the vice president, unlike her predecessor, does not use her husband's official car to attend social engagements. The second lady drives her own car to the numerous events she attends . . . Mrs. Parker West, who has given receptions for Army chiefs of staff for 45 years, entertained for General George Decker and as is her unbroken rule did not serve alcoholic beverages. As always, this traditional party was a tea, and only tea and coffee were served. But a large crowd attended, notwithstanding . . . Mrs. Henry Labouisse, wife of the new director of the International Cooperation Administration (foreign aid), is the daughter of the late famed Marie Curie, who twice won the Nobel Prize for work in radium and radioactive materials. As a girl 40 years ago, Mrs. Labouisse first visited Washington when her mother was presented with a $100,000 gram of radium by President Harding in a White House ceremony. A new edition of Mrs. Labouisse's 1937 biography of her famous mother will be published in the spring.

SOCIAL WHIRL — Washington's horde of ever - present freeloaders are eagerly anticipating a forthcoming rash of Independence Day celebrations by five embassies—Denmark, Pakistan, Greece, Ghana and Korea. All are certain to have large and heavily-loaded buffets and free - flowing bars . . . Most unusual social event of the week was a reception commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Army Dental Corps. Held at the Officers' Club of famed Walter Reed Hospital, the star of the affair was 77-year-old Brigadier General Robert H. Mills (ret.), surviving member of the original 30 that constituted the Dental Corps when organized in 1911. The corps now numbers more than 1,900 dentists, all men. During World War II, the Dental Corps performed 16,000,000 extractions, 70,000,000 fillings and dispensed 600,000 dentures.

Mrs. Perle Mesta, celebrated "hostess with the mostest," who switched to Vice President Nixon when her presidential choice, Lyndon Johnson, became Kennedy's running mate, is returning to Washington — reputedly to serve as co - chairman of the Cherry Blossom Ball. Some of her rivals are intimating Mrs. Mesta is hoping for a bid to the White House, but the prospects don't appear bright. Even as a Democratic backer, she and the Kennedys were not "sympatico" . . . Mrs. Dean Rusk, wife of the secretary of state, added something new to a reception for members of the U. S. Foreign Service. She invited them to bring their children. This proved a big hit and her party was the best - attended in the 30-year history of this organization of career diplomats.

Washington Shorts

FLEETING FAME — As far as the guards at the White House gate are concerned the only occupant who really counts is the one who happens to be there at the moment. A few days before President Kennedy took office, for example, a package in his name was delivered to the White House. Sorry, a guard said, but he is not an occupant. Try the Senate Office Building. The other day a letter addressed to James C. Hagerty, press secretary under President Eisenhower, arrived at the White House. It was returned to the sender with this stamped notation, "Return to sender, not at the White House." Hagerty might have foreseen this for he kept this poem on the wall in his White House office:

Fame is a fleeting, fitful flame
Which shines a while on John Jones' name
And then puts John right on the spot;
The flame shines on,
But John shines not.

CAPITOL CALORIE CAMPAIGN — The two best examples of how one can bounce back from a severe heart attack are former President Eisenhower and Vice President Lyndon Johnson. The Veep recently shed 30 pounds he had put on during the campaign and is, as usual, one of the most active men on Capitol Hill. He now weighs in the 190's and plans to whittle this down to between 175 and 185 pounds. A lot of people thought exercise did the trick. But it was all done by pushing himself away from the table. The suggestion that Johnson was taking exercise to lose weight brought this retort from an aide, "Are you kidding? The Vice President's idea of a quiet day at the office would be a workout to anyone else."

ROAD HAZARDS OF MILITARY — Comptroller General Joseph E. Campbell will prod Congress to enact law making it possible to collect from civilians who injure members of military in automobile accidents. In last three years there were 39,700 accidents involving privately owned automobiles in which military personnel were injured, costing Uncle Sam $10.3 a year in medical and related expenses. Under present law Government cannot sue civilians in such accidents with military, even if the civilians are at fault.

Views Of Our Readers

Commends Editorial

To the Editor:

I certainly want to commend your Sunday, March 5, 1961 editorial pertaining to the 1960 communist attack on the west coast against the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

It is my sincere hope that you will consider a reprint of this same editorial for the benefit of your readers who might have missed it.

The film "Operation Abolition" referred to is an excellent and documented revelation of the manner in which trained communists operate, and the method they will employ to try and destroy a committee of our national government.

Recognizing the tremendous spread of dangerous groups and individuals in the field of subversive activities here in Louisiana, the Legislature in 1960 created a permanent committee known as the Joint Legislative Committee On Un - American Activities to study and seek out any subversive and un - American influences in our fine State of Louisiana.

As a member of that Legislative Committee, we saw the film "Operation Oblivion" last summer. My first comment then was that every citizen in Louisiana, and in particular our students, should witness the film.

Through the efforts of the American Legion, and the Joint Legislative Committee on Un-American Activities, this film is now in Louisiana and is being shown before different groups. Since our Committee has a copy of the film for use, I will make every effort to expedite its showing here in Monroe. It will shock Mr. and Mrs. Louisiana Citizen to see what is going on in this great nation.

And while I am writing to you in this connection, may I urge our people to read J. Edgar Hoover's book entitled "Masters of Deceit" which is an expose of the communist party in its plans to conquer the world and the United States.

I again commend your editorial and trust that you will continue to be forthright and vigorous in bringing to the attention of the public the threat of communism and subversive elements to our national existence.

Only knowledge will enlighten the uninformed and the facts should awaken the unconcerned.

Rhonda Sims Letter

To the Editor:

One year ago you published a letter from us about little Rhonda Sims on her birthday, March 13. As her sixteenth birthday approaches this year, the third one spent in this condition, we want to say THANKS to you and to many of your readers. We can surely say the wonderful neighbors of this area are a great blessing. Many cards and gifts were received and many friends continue to come by. Church groups, Sunday School Classes, School classes from West Monroe and Calhoun, Y-teens from West Monroe Junior Hi., A Home Demonstration Club, Mr. Golson and a group from Clarks Springs and so many others who visited and helped we are at a loss to mention all. Mrs. Sims is blessed to have convenience of bath and hot water through these efforts. Never the less the family is still heavily burdened as one can relize.

Rhonda is still unable to move about or take food by mouth. She is more helpless than a baby, depending entirely upon her faithful mother to feed, bath and turn her. The regular attention of a nurse is also very essential and our hats are off to Mrs. Ben Norman of West Monroe, who at her own expense has taken care of Rhonda so untiringly even at the midnight hours when necessary. Those who have visited Rhonda marvel at how well she looks, a pretty girl with a very good color and lovely long hair. Since her last birthday she has been in the hospital several times and things looked hopeless but our faith is still in God and surely he knows best. We do feel that she is improving and along with her mother and father we look forward to the day when she will be completely well, because we do know God is able.

One never realizes how much "little things count" nor can we truly understand the Twenty-Third Psalm until we experience a trial as the Sims family. We could never express the heartfelt appreciation for the response to that letter but we just say, "God bless each one with health and may they never face such a trial."

Sincerely yours,
MR. AND MRS. O. R. VALLERY

Upholds Dixie Flavor

To The Editor:

When Dr. Ramsey Pollard, President of the Southern Baptist Convention, announced in Memphis, Tennessee, several days ago that the name Southern Baptist has too much of a Dixie flavor, he only displayed another classic example of a Southern leader who treats lightly and betrays the confidence that has been placed in him by millions of Southern people. Dr. Pollard further stated that the convention will be asked to consider changing the "Southern" to something less regional.

Further comments by Dr. Pollard indicate that he is in perfect harmony with this name - changing idea. If there was ever a good example of the tail wagging the dog, this is it. There are only a small per cent of Southern Baptist Churches outside of the Southern states, so why should we lose our religious identification and have the South face further humiliation to satisfy the whims of a small minority of our membership?

Can true religion run this shallow? Many of these people migrated from the South and helped organize the Southern Baptist in other areas because of their beliefs in its doctrine. One must wonder if the Southern Baptist Convention is going in for quantity religion or quality religion.

Before pushing too hard for membership outside the Southern states, Dr. Pollard and his fellow thinkers had better profit from experience of those Protestant churches in the South who in recent years have united with similar faiths north of the Mason-Dixon Line. These Southerners have since been undergoing great anguish from trying to follow the fancy footwork of their bureaucratic and anti - Southern leaders. Why should we temporize and try to lose ourselves anonymously? There are already at least 26 types of Baptist churches in the United States. Maybe someone wishes us to immerge from such anonymous situation as a member of the liberal National Council of Churches. Do any of us believe that the Baptists in the north could be happy to change the name of the Southern Baptist Convention, and at the same time allow each Southern state convention to continue its name as such? Won't we soon be directed to change from state conventions to regional conventions? If the name "Southern contaminates the Southern Baptist Convention, will not keeping company with the Louisiana, Arkansas and other Southern state conventions be bad medicine for our friends outside of the South? When this issue comes before the Southern Baptist Convention, it will be interesting to know how many of our messengers will stand up and truly represent their church sentiments, or how many will make a dash for the halls and corridors or go touring. How long can the South endure such silly, frivolous, picayunish, and absurd thinking from its leaders? The South was recently betrayed by many of its political leaders on a national scale, so at least our skin should be toughened to this kind of treatment. Our ancestors left the Old World and came to America and established a superior social order which included an establish ed right in our constitution to worship as one's conscience so dictates. Now why should we temporize to harmonize a world opinion that is far inferior to that imbued in our Southern citizenship? The word Southern Baptist is highly cherished by a great multitude of people. We have a history and a tradition to be proud of. Changing the name of Southern Baptist will result in the brushing aside of our past records, traditions, and history. We should not only condemn this trite thinking, but should be aband of those that toyed with any such ideas. If he accomplishes nothing else, I am quite sure that by entertaining such thoughts Dr. Ramsey Pollard has endeared himself with all of the South -hating elements of the nation and has now qualified himself for an appointment to a high position in the Federal government. When will someone propose that the United States change its name to satisfy our friends in the United Nations and placate world opinion?

If I were not a tolerant and easy going individual, I am sure I would really get aggravated and vent my spine over some of the simple and foolish leadership that is being afforded us by many of our religious and political leaders.

This, of course, was a continuation of the mass migration of Negroes to the District of Columbia which was begun when the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and his wife, Eleanor, inaugurated their Negro promotion campaign almost immediately after his election as president.

During the same period the white population had a decrease of 33.4 per cent, dropping from 517, 865 in 1950 to 345,263 in 1960.

As a result of these shifts, the percentage of the District's non-white population in 1960 was 54.8 per cent compared with 35.4 per cent in 1950.

The areas of the city which recorded the greatest gain in Negroes over the 10-year period were those districts—formerly almost all white—which fan out eastward from Georgia avenue and border on the Maryland line.

This drift toward the Maryland line followed the direction taken by white people who were moving out to escape the integration of schools which had been forced upon them. Some of those who moved to get away from mixed schools were congressmen who had been loudest in clamoring for integeration.

The pattern in all these invaded areas appeared to be similar. Young white couples with school-age children were moving out of the District and were being replaced by large Negro families. Of course, the influx of Negroes caused still more of the whites to move.

Difference in family size was emphasized by the "fertility ratio" of the Negro population in tract 94. This is a sociological term for the number of children under five per 100 females aged 15 to 44. The Negro ratio in 1960 was 46.4 compared to a white ratio of 23.3. This was attributed partly, of course, to the fact that many of the Negroes on welfare receive benefits according to the size of their families.

After going through so many years without allowing the people in the District of Columbia (which does not lie within a state) to cast ballots, now seems the worst time possible to attempt to give the people of that district the right to vote. The attempt is nothing more than an effort to corral a huge bloc of Negro votes antagonistic to the south.

Earliest Civilization

Dates for the beginning of civilization are steadily being pushed back.

For a long time the Babylonians and Egyptians were accounted the world's oldest civilized peoples. Further researches revealed that the Babylonians owed much to an earlier race, the Sumerians, of unknown origin.

We still display indebtedness to the Sumerians, who used an arithmetical system based on 60 as ours is based on 10. That is why we divide the hour into 60 minutes, and the minute in turn into 60 seconds. And the law code of a Sumerian king, Hammurabi, profoundly influenced the later laws of Moses.

Now the Sumerians in turn are found to have had cultured predecessors. A British archaeologist, James Mallaart, exploring in southwest Turkey, has discovered remains of this people, to whom no name has yet been assigned. They evidently had long practice in pottery, and lived in brick houses with pebble and plaster floors. The courtyard pavements were painted in green and yellow.

These people were farmers who had plastered platforms for grinding grain. The courtyards had pits for rubbish, which was not strewn about in the houses. And knuckle bones of cattle were found, suggesting that these ancient people played a game still played with such bones by the Turks. This civilization may go back to 6,000 B.C. And beyond that are traces of an earlier race still in the Stone Age. Man has been around for a long time, and he does progress.

If man suddenly came into existence or if his intelligence suddenly burst forth in a way that distinguished him from other creatures, he may have had about as much brain-power as he does now but if that is true he was unable then to exercise it then as he does now. Either man's intelligence has gone through a process of evolution or the accumulation of facts, data and instruments he has been able to use have made it seem so.

Progress during early civilization appears to have been extremely slow. Even now, we often wonder if man's intelligence is improving much, especially in the matters of community, national and world management.

Scientifically, man has leaped forward at a tremendous rate during the present century, giving us reason to believe that in those 60 years people may have made greater progress than during any 1,000 years of the first 5,000 years of known civilization.

In science the curtains hiding the universe of discovery are just beginning to be thrown aside.

According to a U.S. Department of Agriculture survey, only two out of every five persons in the United States do not eat eggs regularly for breakfast.

The earth each year reflects and radiates exactly the amount of heat which it receives during the same period from the sun.

The library of the British Museum contains more than six million printed volumes and 60,000 manuscripts.

Kennedys' Nursery School

Daughter Caroline And Half-Dozen Other Youngsters Her Age Are Getting Instruction At White House

WASHINGTON — President and Mrs. Kennedy are launching a unique innovation in the White House.

It's a nursery school for their three - year - old daughter Caroline and a half - dozen other youngsters her age. These classmates will be the children of friends and members of the White House staff.

The president and first lady decided on this after she visited a nursery school at the Bi-Social Growth Center of the National Institutes of Health, world - famous for medical research, at nearby Bethesda, Md. Mrs. Kennedy was greatly impressed by what she saw and learned.

She was particularly impressed by Mrs. Robert Waldron, who organized this experimental school and teaches there, with an assistant and the aid of the most advanced equipment, including closed - circuit television.

The work of this small class of three - year - olds is being closely studied by educational experts.

Mrs. Waldron enthusiastically accepted an invitation to set up a similarly - equipped nursery school in the White House. Prior to joining the NIH project, she conducted a private nursery school.

For the first family this new undertaking means a change in plans.

Shortly before the January 20 inauguration, Mrs. Kennedy telephoned an official of a cooperative nursery school near their home in historic Georgetown and inquired about the possibility of enrolling Caroline. The soon-to-be first lady was assured her little daughter would be gladly welcomed.

INSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE—A member of the White House staff, working late one evening, was surprised to encounter the president and first lady sauntering hand - in - hand about the executive mansion and carrying on a gay and animated conversation . . . The presidential couple already have made it evident they prefer small dinner parties, of four to eight guests, rather than big social affairs. A certain number of the latter are unavoidable, but it is the Kennedys' intention to hold them to a minimum . . . Mrs. Kennedy is solely responsible for the emphatic refusal to allow cameramen to take pictures of her riding her favorite horse. The photographers appealed to press secretary Salinger, who discussed it with the president. But he would not intervene, saying the matter was wholly up to the first lady. "She is entitled to some privacy," he remarked.

Mrs. Kennedy has declined the honorary chairmanship of a National Committee for the Arts proferred by Representative Carroll Kearns (R., Pa.) In a cordial personal letter, she explained, "I could not have greater sympathy with your plan. I warmly share your desire to make Washington a world cultural center, and I hope to contribute in every way I can to the elevation of the arts in our country. But I fear I am not too effective on committees, and have always felt that one should not go on committees if not prepared to be a working member. It therefore seems to me that I can help our joint cause best by doing the things I can as an individual and as the wife of the president." . . . The president has added honey to the breakfast menu of his weekly meetings with the Democratic congressional leaders. He did this after learning that Speaker Sam Rayburn always eats honey at breakfast.

THE LADIES — Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the vice president, unlike her predecessor, does not use her husband's official car to attend social engagements. The second lady drives her own car to the numerous events she attends . . . Mrs. Parker West, who has given receptions for Army chiefs of staff for 45 years, entertained for General George Decker and as is her unbroken rule did not serve alcoholic beverages. As always, this traditional party was a tea, and only tea and coffee were served. But a large crowd attended, notwithstanding . . . Mrs. Henry Labouisse, wife of the new director of the International Cooperation Administration (foreign aid), is the daughter of the late famed Marie Curie, who twice won the Nobel Prize for work in radium and radioactive materials. As a girl 40 years ago, Mrs. Labouisse first visited Washington when her mother was presented with a $100,000 gram of radium by President Harding in a White House ceremony. A new edition of Mrs. Labouisse's 1937 biography of her famous mother will be published in the spring.

SOCIAL WHIRL — Washington's horde of ever - present freeloaders are eagerly anticipating a forthcoming rash of Independence Day celebrations by five embassies—Denmark, Pakistan, Greece, Ghana and Korea. All are certain to have large and heavily-loaded buffets and free - flowing bars . . . Most unusual social event of the week was a reception commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Army Dental Corps. Held at the Officers' Club of famed Walter Reed Hospital, the star of the affair was 77-year-old Brigadier General Robert H. Mills (ret.), surviving member of the original 30 that constituted the Dental Corps when organized in 1911. The corps now numbers more than 1,900 dentists, all men. During World War II, the Dental Corps performed 16,000,000 extractions, 70,000,000 fillings and dispensed 600,000 dentures.

Mrs. Perle Mesta, celebrated "hostess with the mostest," who switched to Vice President Nixon when her presidential choice, Lyndon Johnson, became Kennedy's running mate, is returning to Washington — reputedly to serve as co - chairman of the Cherry Blossom Ball. Some of her rivals are intimating Mrs. Mesta is hoping for a bid to the White House, but the prospects don't appear bright. Even as a Democratic backer, she and the Kennedys were not "sympatico" . . . Mrs. Dean Rusk, wife of the secretary of state, added something new to a reception for members of the U. S. Foreign Service. She invited them to bring their children. This proved a big hit and her party was the best - attended in the 30-year history of this organization of career diplomats.

FLEETING FAME — As far as the guards at the White House gate are concerned the only occupant who really counts is the one who happens to be there at the moment. A few days before President Kennedy took office, for example, a package in his name was delivered to the White House. Sorry, a guard said, but he is not an occupant. Try the Senate Office Building. The other day a letter addressed to James C. Hagerty, press secretary under President Eisenhower, arrived at the White House. It was returned to the sender with this stamped notation, "Return to sender, not at the White House." Hagerty might have foreseen this for he kept this poem on the wall in his White House office:

Fame is a fleeting, fitful flame
Which shines a while on John Jones' name
And then puts John right on the spot;
The flame shines on,
But John shines not.

CAPITOL CALORIE CAMPAIGN — The two best examples of how one can bounce back from a severe heart attack are former President Eisenhower and Vice President Lyndon Johnson. The Veep recently shed 30 pounds he had put on during the campaign and is, as usual, one of the most active men on Capitol Hill, He now weighs in the 190's and plans to whittle this down to between 175 and 185 pounds. A lot of people thought exercise did the trick. But it was all done by pushing himself away from the table. The suggestion that Johnson was taking exercise to lose weight brought this retort from an aide, "Are you kidding? The Vice President's idea of a quiet day at the office would be a workout to anyone else."

ROAD HAZARDS OF MILITARY — Comptroller General Joseph E. Campbell will prod Congress to enact law making it possible to collect from civilians who injure members of military in automobile accidents. In last three years there were 39,700 accidents involving privately owned automobiles in which military personnel were injured, costing Uncle Sam $10.3 a year in medical and related expenses. Under present law Government cannot sue civilians in such accidents with military, even if the civilians are at fault.

Commends Editorial

To the Editor:

I certainly want to commend your Sunday, March 5, 1961 editorial pertaining to the 1960 communist attack on the west coast against the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

It is my sincere hope that you will consider a reprint of this same editorial for the benefit of your readers who might have missed it.

The film "Operation Abolition" referred to is an excellent and documented revelation of the manner in which trained communists operate, and the method they will employ to try and destroy a committee of our national government.

Recognizing the tremendous spread of dangerous groups and individuals in the field of subversive activities here in Louisiana, the Legislature in 1960 created a permanent committee known as the Joint Legislative Committee On Un - American Activities to study and seek out any subversive and un - American influences in our fine State of Louisiana.

As a member of that Legislative Committee, we saw the film "Operation Oblivion" last summer. My first comment then was that every citizen in Louisiana, and in particular our students, should witness the film.

Through the efforts of the American Legion, and the Joint Legislative Committee on Un-American Activities, this film is now in Louisiana and is being shown before different groups. Since our Committee has a copy of the film for use, I will make every effort to expedite its showing here in Monroe. It will shock Mr. and Mrs. Louisiana Citizen to see what is going on in this great nation.

And while I am writing to you in this connection, may I urge our people to read J. Edgar Hoover's book entitled "Masters of Deceit" which is an expose of the communist party in its plans to conquer the world and the United States.

I again commend your editorial and trust that you will continue to be forthright and vigorous in bringing to the attention of the public the threat of communism and subversive elements to our national existence.

Only knowledge will enlighten the uninformed and the facts should awaken the unconcerned.

Rhonda Sims Letter

To the Editor:

One year ago you published a letter from us about little Rhonda Sims on her birthday, March 13. As her sixteenth birthday approaches this year, the third one spent in this condition, we want to say THANKS to you and to many of your readers. We can surely say the wonderful neighbors of this area are a great blessing. Many cards and gifts were received and many friends continue to come by. Church groups, Sunday School Classes, School classes from West Monroe and Calhoun, Y-teens from West Monroe Junior Hi., A Home Demonstration Club, Mr. Golson and a group from Clarks Springs and so many others who visited and helped we are at a loss to mention all. Mrs. Sims is blessed to have convenience of bath and hot water through these efforts. Never the less the family is still heavily burdened as one can relize.

Rhonda is still unable to move about or take food by mouth. She is more helpless than a baby, depending entirely upon her faithful mother to feed, bath and turn her. The regular attention of a nurse is also very essential and our hats are off to Mrs. Ben Norman of West Monroe, who at her own expense, has taken care of Rhonda so untiringly even at the midnight hours when necessary. Those who have visited Rhonda marvel at how well she looks, a pretty girl with a very good color and lovely long hair. Since her last birthday she has been in the hospital several times and things looked hopeless but our faith is still in God and surely he knows best. We do feel that she is improving and along with her mother and father we look forward to the day when she will be completely well, because we do know God is able.

One never realizes how much "little things count" nor can we truly understand the Twenty-Third Psalm until we experience a trial as the Sims family. We could never express the heartfelt appreciation for the response to that letter but we just say, "God bless each one with health and may they never face such a trial."

Sincerely yours,
MR. AND MRS. O. R. VALLERY

Upholds Dixie Flavor

To The Editor:

When Dr. Ramsey Pollard, President of the Southern Baptist Convention, announced in Memphis, Tennessee, several days ago that the name Southern Baptist has too much of a Dixie flavor, he only displayed another classic example of a Southern leader who treats lightly and betrays the confidence that has been placed in him by millions of Southern people. Dr. Pollard further stated that the convention will be asked to consider changing the "Southern" to something less regional.

Further comments by Dr. Pollard indicate that he is in perfect harmony with this name - changing idea. If there was ever a good example of the tail wagging the dog, this is it. There are only a small per cent of Southern Baptist Churches outside of the Southern states, so why should we lose our religious identification and have the South face further humiliation to satisfy the whims of a small minority of our membership?

Can true religion run this shallow? Many of these people migrated from the South and helped organize the Southern Baptist in other areas because of their beliefs in its doctrine. One must wonder if the Southern Baptist Convention is going in for quantity religion or quality religion.

Before pushing too hard for membership outside the Southern states, Dr. Pollard and his fellow thinkers had better profit from experience of those Protestant churches in the South who in recent years have united with similar faiths north of the Mason-Dixon Line. These Southerners have since been undergoing great anguish from trying to follow the fancy footwork of their bureaucratic and anti - Southern leaders. Why should we temporize and try to lose ourselves anonymously? There are already at least 26 types of Baptist churches in the United States. Maybe someone wishes us to immerge from such anonymous situation as a member of the liberal National Council of Churches. Do any of us believe that the Baptists in the north could be happy to change the name of the Southern Baptist Convention, and at the same time allow each Southern state convention to continue its name as such? Won't we soon be directed to change from state conventions to regional conventions? If the name "Southern contaminates the Southern Baptist Convention, will not keeping company with the Louisiana, Arkansas and other Southern state conventions be bad medicine for our friends outside of the South? When this issue comes before the Southern Baptist Convention, it will be interesting to know how many of our messengers will stand up and truly represent their church sentiments, or how many will make a dash for the halls and corridors or go touring. How long can the South endure such silly, frivolous, picayunish, and absurd thinking from its leaders? The South was recently betrayed by many of its political leaders on a national scale, so at least our skin should be toughened to this kind of treatment. Our ancestors left the Old World and came to America and established a superior social order which included an established right in our constitution to worship as one's conscience so dictates. Now why should we temporize to harmonize a world opinion that is far inferior to that imbued in our Southern citizenship? The word Southern Baptist is highly cherished by a great multitude of people. We have a history and a tradition to be proud of. Changing the name of Southern Baptist will result in the brushing aside of our past records, traditions, and history. We should not only condemn this trite thinking, but should be ahamed of those that toyed with any such ideas. If he accomplishes nothing else, I am quite sure that by entertaining such thoughts Dr. Ramsey Pollard has endeared himself with all of the South -hating elements of the nation and has now qualified himself for an appointment to a high position in the Federal government. When will someone propose that the United States change its name to satisfy our friends in the United Nations and placate world opinion?

If I were not a tolerant and easy going individual, I am sure I would really get aggravated and vent my spine over some of the simple and foolish leadership that is being afforded us by many of our religious and political leaders.

Irish Have Nickname For JFK, 'Cousin Jack'

NEW ROSS, Co. Wexford, Erie (AP)—As soon as he took office, President John F. Kennedy let it be known that he would like to be referred to informally by the initials "J.F.K."

The word apparently never got to Ireland. If it did, it was grandly ignored. Here in New Ross, where his great grandfather dug potatoes before the Great Famine forced him to emigrate, Kennedy is known familiarly as "Cousin Jack, the Yankee president."

Patriots in sympathy with government efforts to revive the Gaelic language take familiarity a step further and refer to him as "Cousin Sean."

Either way, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, three generations away from the auld sod, has become the biggest thing to hit New Ross since the Normans established a beachhead back in the 12th century.

If it hadn't been for the Yankee president, the mayor would still have his bowler hat, saloon keeper Gus O'Kennedy would still be the most famous local Kennedy because of his football prowess, and no one would bother taking the narrow, twisting road to Dunganstown to see the crumbling shanty that Patrick Kennedy occupied before setting out for America somewhere around 1850.

"There's a grat do over him all right," admitted pub keeper Paddy Welch, who is anxiously waiting for the postman to deliver a huge color blow up of the President for display over his big mahogany bar. "It's coming from America and will set me back a couple of guineas. But, after all, it's not every town in Ireland can boast of the likes of Cousin Jack."

Similarly, the little souvenir shop on the main street has ordered a batch of Kennedy pictures to go with the shillelaghs imported from Germany and the metal harps and shamrocks from Japan.

"For the tourists mainly," explained the gray-haired proprietress, "although we do get some local calls."

The town where the Kennedys come from, as New Ross is now referred to by the guides on the tourist buses, is one of the prettiest in Ireland. Located just below the confluence of the Nare and Barrow rivers, in sight of the lovely Black Stairs Mountains, it is a walled city, pleasant and ancient, with steep, winding streets and a handsome town hall that proudly preserves under glass the maces of Edward III and Charles II and the original charter granted by James II.

New Ross has 5,000 people, 67 pubs, two fertilizer factories, a small steel plant, three churches and three beards.

One of the beards is magnificently attached to Andy Minihan, chairman of the Urban Council, the local equivalent of mayor.

On the night Cousin Jack was inaugurated, Minihan lost his bowler hat in the line of duty.

"At the big banquet just after the torchlight parade, a Yank reporter stepped on it," his honor recounted, red beard quaking with indignation. "Sure it was nothing compared with what happened to the Widow Ryan. You heard about that, did you? She gave one of those souvenir hunters permission to take a stone from the old Kennedy place and was perished to see him clouting away with a sledgehammer. Go there and you'll see the big crack over the door."

The crack was there all right, though the house itself took a bit of finding. Dunganstown is a wide spot in a narrow road, a few miles below New Ross, where the River Barrow cuts a tidal path through a lush green plain, dotted with sheep, on its winding way to sea.

Mrs. James Ryan, a Kennedy before her marriage and a cousin of the President, lives on the old Kennedy farm with her daughter, Johanna, 23. A pleasant, patient woman with a warm, musical voice, Mrs. Ryan still manages to be gracious to the increasing number of visitors who flock to the Kennedy homestead, inviting them in for a cup of strong, black tea and a look at her collection of family pictures. Among them are a campaign picture of the President, sent to her by a sister in America, and a snapshot of the family taken by John F. Kennedy when he visited the place in the summer of 1947.

Scrawled on the back in pencil are the words: "This picture taken by the President of the United States."

Kennedy, at the time, was only a congressman. He had driven over from Lismore Castle, where he was staying with his sister, Kathleen, the Marchioness of Hartington by virtue of her marriage to the son of the Duke of Devonshire. (She was killed the following spring in a plane crash.)

Like any other American tourist, Kennedy had arrived with a camera around his neck and had lined up all the various cousins against the wall of his great-grandfather's house for a typical firing squad-type family portrait. This was before he met Jacqueline Bouvier and before he could entrust the family picture taking to a professional.

Mrs. Ryan's tidy cottage, with lace curtains at the window, a big electric range in the kitchen and a cozy coal fire in the parlor, is in marked contrast to Patrick Kennedy's humble hut out in the barnyard. The low-siung building is now used as a "boiler house," where turnips and other vegetables are boiled for cattle forage. Its sole occupant today is an enormous sow who loudly grunts her dissatisfaction with the type of visitors who have been frequenting the place of late.

Next to St. Patrick's church in nearby Ballykelly stands the little parochial school where Patrick Kennedy learned to read and write, which gave him an immense advantage over many other immigrants when he landed at Noddle Island in East Boston in the middle of the last century.

The Kennedy relations still attend the church and school, but they bury their dead in the Protestant churchyard at White Church, a few miles away, a common practice among Catholics in Ireland who still regard the cemeteries around churches that changed hands during the Reformation as consecrated land.

The Kennedy election has given the men of County Wexford a new weapon in their long-standing rivalry with the men from County Kilkenny, just across the river. For several years now Wexford has had to take a back seat to Kilkenny in turning out top football and hurling players. This although the Wexford men are, by tradition, tall and sturdy, "like Cousin Jack," while the Kilkenny men are short and stocky or, as Paddy Welch described them, "just two hands higher than a duck."

Back in 1915 Gus O'Kennedy, a distant relation of the President, brought Wexford glory by winning a spot on the All Ireland football team, but last year four Kilkenny men were nominated.

"The only way we can shut them up," said Paddy, "is to ask them when's the last time they turned out a Yankee president."

Both sides of the river, however, can boast of Kennedy cousins, as can most towns for several miles around. And, apparently, the number of Kennedy claimants is growing every day.

Officials at Dublin Castle, where geneological records are kept, say there are 18,000 Kennedys and O'Keanedys in Ireland. They place the name 16th in the list of most common Irish surnames.

"Back in the days of the troubles, around 1920, a lot of Kennedys in the flush of patriotism changed their name to O'Kennedy to make themselves even more Irish," Mayor Minihan explained. "And now a lot of them wish to hell they hadn't."

Like most great Irish families, the Kennedys can claim to be descended from kings. The clan was founded by Cinneidigh, high king of North Munster, a nephew of Brian Boru, the great Irish hero who defeated the Danes at Clontarf in 1014.

First Vacation Aboard Cruise Ship Pleasing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first vacation on a cruise ship only whets the appetite for another, longer one. The first trip into the beautiful Caribbean produces the same longing for a repeat.

You could use up a lifetime in the West Indies islands, trying to absorb the scenery with its green hills, white beaches and blue - green waters, their romantic history (Columbus discovered them on his first voyage to the New World), their customs and speech which are part of their heritage from other countries which colonized them.

This chain of tropical islands stretches from Florida to the northern tip of South America and includes the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Haiti, Nassau and the Bahamas, Antigua, Barbados, Grenada, Martinique, Curacao, the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Trinidad, Tobago, the Caynans, St. Kitts, Guadeloupe and Aruba. A lot of territory's there to cover — so don't push your schedule on the first trip.

The cruise I made on the North German Lloyd flagship, the TS Bremen, gave us one day in each of six island ports, plus days in between at sea to rest up from sight - seeing and shopping, bring up to date the diary on what we've done, and write postcards to folks back home buried under a dozen or more inches of snow.

TOURIST BOOM

The whole Caribbean is enjoying a tourist boom, and many of the islands depend heavily on tourist spending for support of the local economy. Swank new hotels care for the vacationer who likes luxury along with sun, tropical breezes and planter's punch. But some of the islands haven't been "discovered" by tourism and there you can beach - comb to your heart's content.

One of the most beautiful of the islands is St. Thomas, a United States possession, with its volcanic - origin hills each affording a breath - taking view of beach and water, and in the distance, other islands in the Virgin Islands chain. One of the most beautiful, and least used, beaches is on the windward side of the island — Magen's Bay — a heart - shaped cove free to the public. The best way to see the scenery, if time is short, is to hire a car and driver who is used to the steep inclines. Negotiate the price and time for a tour before you climb in — this is good advice in almost any port.

Martinique, a French possession, offers most to the exploring type of tourist. Rising from the center of the tiny island is volcanic Mount Pelee, which erupted in 1902 and in a matter of minutes killed 30,000 persons living in St. Pierre. The port city has been rebuilt, but a visit to the ruins and the museum with relics of the disaster is a must.

'BARGAIN COUNTER'

Curacao, a Netherlands possession, has been called the "bargain counter of the Caribbean." True, the free port of Willemstad offers good buys in everything from straw baskets to French perfumes. But what impressed this visitor most was the cleanliness — not all of the Caribbean is so neat or sanitary, especially behind the scenes. But the Willemstad homes are painted delicate shades of pink, green, blue and yellow. And the story goes that all homes once were whitewashed, but the glare of the sun on white bothered the eyes of one governor some years back. He ordered each house re-done in the color preferred by its owner.

Jamaica, the third largest of the West Indies and a British dependency, is a lush green island rimmed with fine beaches. Kingston, its capital, Ocho Rios and Montego Bay are the tourist centers — our ship called only at Montego Bay, at the western end of the island which is the haunt of wealthy and fashionable international set. The resort area is thick with first-rate hotels, and the busiest beach is the Doctor's Cave with its white sands and green water.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Ouachita Parish Library's Book Collection Is Growing

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is growing every day. On March 1, the entire Parish collection stood at 67,060 books. To meet the standards set up by the American Library Association, we should have one book per capita, which would mean 101,055 books. Thus our collection is only two thirds the size it should be. However, when you realize that the collection has more than tripled in size in the past 12 years, it is evident that we are doing the best we can with the funds available.

DELIGHTFUL

"Christmas at Sagamore Hill: with Theodore Roosevelt," is a delightful little book by Helen Topping Miller. It is one of a series which she is writing about Christmas observances of great figures in American history. Lawrence Schoonover is one of our outstanding historical novelists. His latest book is called "The Chancellor." It is an exciting story of the French Courts, and is well-written.

"The Effective Board," is the title of a book by Cyril Orvin Houle which should be of great help to anyone appointed or elected to a board. "The Twilight of European Coloniliasm," by Steward C. Easton, is a political analysis of the dissolution of the great colonial empires of Great Britain, Frances and Belgium. It is a searching study of cause and effect, and should be read by everyone who wants more light on the present situation in Africa. Teachers are always asking for books on testing, and we are happy to have a new one called, "Test Construction; the Development and Interpretation of Achievement Tests," by Dorothy Adkins Wood. This should be a most helpful book.

GREAT VALUE

Another book of great value to those in the teaching profession is The Slow Learner in the Classroom," by Newell C. Rephart. It could also be used by parents in an understanding of their children's abilities. Teen - age boys will be most interested in "The Hot Rod Handbook," by Griffith Borgeson. It gives a very informative account of this interesting hobby. The library is frequently asked for books about ventriloquism. We have ordered several titles in an effort ot fill requests. One has recently arrived. It is called "Ventriloquism for Fun and Profit," and the author is Paul Winchell.

There has recently been an upsurge of interest in books about Mark Twain. The latest one to arrive at the library is "Mark Twain on the Lecture Circuit." Devotees of his works will welcome it. Students of French literature will be happy to see a new translation of Voltaire's stories, "Candide, Zadig and others." A delightful travel book in "Which Way to Mecca, Jack," by William Peter Blatty. It is a humorous, yet penetrating account of a visit to Lebanon, and contains much valuable information. Guide books to Mexico are always in demand. The latest one was written by George and Erica Butler, and should interest those planning a trip south of the border. A very lovely new book about Roman life and customs is "The World of Rome," by Michael Grant. It should be especially valuable to Latin students.

STARS, STRIPES

Every man who served in the armed services daring World War II, remembers "The Stars and Stripes." Now a volume has been published giving excerpts from this interesting publication called "The Stars and Stripes Story of World War II." Copies have been purchased for each branch, so everyone will have a chance to read it.

With the centennial of the Civil War, new books about this conflict are appearing every week. This week there are three new titles. Charles P. Roland, of the Tulane faculty is the author of "The Confederacy," an interesting account of the organization of this government. Burke Davis has made a collection of anecdotes of the Civil War, which he calls "Our Incredible Civil War." Charles L. Dufour of New Orleans, affectionately known to newspapermen as "Pie" has written a very exciting account of the seige and conquest of New Orleans called "The NIGHT the War Was Lost."

An autibiography of an interesting and courageous woman, who has made her own way in spite of tremendous handicaps is "Elena," by Elena Zelayeta. A valuable addition to the reference collection is "Index to Skits and Stunts," by Norma Olin Ireland.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Concert Season In Home Stretch

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The performance of Byron Janis, pianist, on the Northeast Concerts series last Thursday marked the beginning of the home stretch for the 1960-61 cultural season.

Highlights remaining on the touring circuits include the U. S. Air Force Band, slated for April 25 on the Northeast series, and the Concert Gebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam, Holland, which will appear on the La. Tech series on May 11.

Hawaiian operatic tenor Charles K. L. Davis will present a program on the Tech series Wednesday evening.

Presently on tour as accompanist with the Centenary College Choir is George M. (Sandy) Lawn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Lawn of West Monroe.

According to A. C. Voran, director of the choral group, Lawn is the first male student to take on the difficult job of playing the accompaniments for the group. A wide range of interpretations is necessary since the choir includes selections all the way from Bach and Brahms to "Dry Bones" on its programs.

Lawn was pianist and organist at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe before entering Centenary College at Shreveport. He is now a sophomore at the school.

SHAKESPEARE

Last week, the La. Tech Department of Speech presented a series of five performances of the Shakespeare comedy, "Much Ado about Nothing." Among members of the cast were Charles Chatham and Arthur Griffith, both of West Monroe.

In discussing the plot of the play, Arthur W. Stone of the Tech speech department who served as director, said: "The play is eventually resolved into a happy ending, as befits romantic comedy, chiefly through the actions of a bungling pair of local constables, Dogberry and Verges. These simple fools, who represent base wit at its finest, stumble onto the truth when the wisdom of nobles fails."

By the above description, the advent of the original "Keystone Cops" is set back at least 300 years.

An art exhibition featuring paintings and other art works from Ouachita and Morehouse parishes as well as Northeast State College and is slated for Thursday at Bastrop.

The display will be held in the Kraft room of the Louisiana Motor Hotel and will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

As a feature, Mrs. Tom Monk of Monroe will give a demonstration in china painting.

ANTIGONE

The success of the Greek tragedy, "Antigone," which was presented by the Northeast speech department here a season or so ago has spread to the southern end of the state.

In connection with a display of masks at the Delgado Museum at New Orleans, Leo C. Zinser of Loyola University will present programs of scenes from the same drama on the last two Sundays of this month. The performances are scheduled for 4 p.m. in Downman Auditorium. Original masks are being made especially for the "Antigone" presentations.

The death of English conductor Sir Thomas Beecham last week marked the passing of a brilliant but sometimes caustic personality from the musical scene.

Said he of the English, "They may not like music but they absolutely love the noise it makes."

And of Seattle, Washington, where he turned down an invitation to conduct, "There is the cultural dust bin of America."

Of himself, Sir Thomas said, "I am obliged to blow my own trumpet for the simple reason that I cannot get anyone else to do it."

Contact Prints Made In Normal Room Light

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

An entirely new method for making practically instantaneous contact prints in normal room light without conventional darkroom apparatus or skill has been introduced to this country.

The new device, called "Rollaprint," was invented in France. It consists of a small plastic box in which a special contact paper, given an exposure in the normal way through a negative, is rolled through to make a finished print within ten seconds. The print comes out a bit damp but it is fixed or "stabilized" and requires no further washing.

COMPACT

The plastic box, about nine inches long, six inches wide and three inches deep, is its own compact, automatic darkroom. Lifting a hinged lid on its left side reveals a contact printer. The right side has the self-contained darkroom. Let's examine it:

On top are two grooves about four inches long and one-half inch wide. A roller handle is on the upper, right hand side. The top of the plastic box, with the grooves and handle, comes off. When we turn it over, we see three sets of double rubber rollers, hooked up together through clockwork plastic gears. Turning the handle, turns all the rollers but only in one direction: clockwise.

On the bottom section of the plastic box is a removable plastic tray, divided into two compartments. One has a yellow marker; the other a red marker. Here these compartments are filled with special solutions from yellow and red plastic bottles. The solutions are pre - mixed ready-to-use developer (yellow) and a stabilizer (red) which fixes it.

The special Rollaprint contact paper comes in a package of 100 sheets, each 3¼x4¼ inches. It is not affected by normal room light but is susceptible to sunlight, bright or prolonged light.

The negative is placed on the ground - glass, emulsion side up. The paper is placed on it, emulsion side down. The hinged lid comes down over them, pressure is applied and the light goes on to make the exposure. (The plastic box has an electric cord which is plugged in first, naturally.) The exposure varies from one to eight seconds, depending on the density of the negative.

The exposed paper is then inserted into the first goorve and the handle is turned slowly and constantly. The paper is gripped by the inside rollers, guided through the developer compartment, into and through the stabilizer compartment and then out through the second groove into sight again.

ALTERNATIVE

If the print comes out too light or too dark, a new print can immediately be made with more or less exposure, as needed.

The Rollaprint process, invented by Ets Bauchet et Cie, Paris, makers of sensitized materials, is being distributed in this country by U. S. Photo Supply Co., of Washington, D. C., starting in February. The unit itself will cost under $20. The set of two solutions (cost, $2) will process the package of 100 sheets (cost, $3).

In my tests with the process, I found the 10 - second, reappearance of the paper with a finished picture under normal room-light conditions almost magical in effect. After the exact exposure time had been determined, it was like child's play . . . so I let my daughters have fun making prints.

However, I wouldn't say that the finished prints had the same high quality as good, conventional contact prints. These had an overall yellowish tone and some of them were mottled and streaked.

Skid Row On Upgrade

By BOB BARNES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A place of shabby bars and buck-a-day hotels, of empty buildings and idle men—that's East 5th Street.

A place of fish houses and junk shops, dirty windows and trashy lots. A street that well-dressed folks avoid, where policemen go in pairs.

It's a skid row, like all the other skid rows the world over. But there's a difference.

This one is on the upgrade.

The reason: a 56-year-old Swedish-born bachelor who spends his own money fixing up other people's eyesores.

There's no gimmick. Frank Bronson simply believes that if you cast your bread on the waters, "You're bound to get it back."

The idea is catching hold.

"People seem to think that just because it's skid row, everything should go to the dogs," Bronson says. "That's absolutely wrong. You can have pride of ownership down here, too."

"All it takes is one person to get the ball rolling," he says. "If somebody just starts, others will follow."

Bronson isn't talking through his hat.

He bought the seven-story Hotel Morris 2½ years ago.

"You can't imagine how bad it was," he says. "No paint, dirty, run down. The cops used to live here, practically."

He couldn't stand the mess. A contractor and carpenter himself, he soon had carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers and painters swarming through the 180-room hostelry. He planted trees out front and fired 40 per cent of his help for inefficiency and drunkenness. He cleaned out the bookies and bootleggers.

NOTHING FANCY

He wasn't out to make it a Biltmore—"just good and clean, nothing fancy."

His own house in order, he turned to the neighborhood. He called on his neighbors and suggested they paint their buildings, take down old signs and fix broken windows.

He was met with shrugs. "It's a nice idea, but—" they said.

Would they let him do these things then? Fine.

He paid wreckers to haul off a small ramshackle building already condemned by the city. He had six truckloads of debris hauled off a cluttered lot. He hired four painters to scrape old paint from another building and apply two new coats. He had unsightly old signs taken down, broken windows repaired.

Nor did he stop with his own block. In the next block he has done the same on seven or eight buildings—and he's still going.

Bronson's work shows. And, he says, it pays.

"My occupancy rate has increased 100 per cent," he says. "The values have gone up 15 to 25 per cent already."

He came to this country when he was 20 with $25 in his pocket. The depression wiped him out but he started anew. Now he has almost $300,000 invested, although he drives a 1947 car.

"I don't do this for money or publicity," Bronson says. "I do it from my own heart. It's how I feel."

Would his method work on other skid rows?

"Absolutely," he says. "It will catch on in any city. It just takes one person with the initiative."

EXPERIMENT ENDS

Drug Allows Fast Psychotherapy

AMITYVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — I sat hunched over a table in the coffee shop at South Oaks Psychiatric Hospital.

My hands shook so the coffee slopped onto the white tablecloth. Perspiration covered me, wetting my cigarette. I burned my fingers in the laborious process of stumping it out in the ashtray.

Nausea gripped me. I felt that people were staring at me. The room grew smaller. I couldn't breathe.

I had to get out of there.

No matter what, I had to get out of there.

And just five minutes before I had been laughing and chatting elatedly with a group of doctors in another part of the hospital.

The dramatic change that took place in me — elation one minute, trembling confusion the next —was the result of a drug I had taken a few hours earlier. The drug was D-Lysergic Acid Diethylamide — better known as LSD-25.

PSYCHOTIC

It was an experience I hope never to repeat — with the drug or without it. Because I know now what it is to be insane.

I had known that LSD could induce states resembling certain psychoses, including schizophrenia, in a normal person. But I arranged to take the drug in order to discover for myself — under psychotherapeutic conditions — exactly how LSD works.

Doctors had assured me there was no danger I might not "come back." Dr. Harold A. Abramson, an authority on the drug, also told me that I need not fear becoming addicted to LSD.

It was a Sunday morning when I arrived at South Oaks for a psychotherapeutic LSD session. This meant that while I was under the drug a panel of psychiatrists would question me in an effort to discover and point out to me emotional problems I might have, but which I was unaware of.

At 11:30 a.m. I drank 75 micrograms of tasteless, colorless, odorless LSD in a tablespoon of orange juice. With me in the room were Dr. Abramson, Dr. Andre Rolo, South Oaks physician - in - charge, and Dr. Leonard W. Krinsky, chief psychologist.

At 11:50 a.m. the first reaction set in: tingling of the extremities; blurred vision; dizziness; the feeling that something was in my left eye. I rubbed it. The doctors meanwhile questioned me about my background and my personal life.

REACTIONS

By 12:20 p.m. new reactions had taken hold: smiling and chuckling for no reason, difficulty concentrating on thoughts, loss of appetite, feeling that "something's going to happen — I don't know what." At this stage I felt as if I had downed three or four straight whiskies. My mind was clear — although I could not control its direction.

The doctors questioned me continuously. I was in a state of euphoria. I jovially answered personal questions that normally I would have angrily resented. Then they decided to subject me to a "stress" situation to see how I would react.

That was fine with me. I was now at the peak of the LSD reaction. It was 2:30 p.m. "Stress?" I couldn't care less.

They drew up a plan. I was to go to the coffee shop in the hospital building next door, sit down and strike up a conversation with someone. The doctors would follow behind me and observe.

Nothing could be simpler, I thought.

We left the building and I walked ahead — carefully, for somehow I was unsure of my footing — to the coffee shop.

Inside I stood uncertainly. Suddenly I didn't know how to order a cup of coffee. There didn't seem to be a waitress. Or I didn't know how to find her. Everything was very difficult. I couldn't think. Was the waitress avoiding me?

Short Course In Artmanship Is Presented

LONDON (AP)—Want to be one-up on your arty friends? Able to identify little-known oil masters at a glance and then dazzle the bystanders with your knowledge?

Oxford University's professor of art, Edgar Wind, recently gave British radio listeners a short course in artmanship.

He first showed how a real art expert goes about discovering whether an old painting is genuine. The chance details, he said, will show the hand of the master—or the imperfect strokes of an imposter.

A half-concealed fingernail or an earlobe can indicate a genuine Leonardo or Raphael—or a fake.

For any imposter, the professor said, would be careful to make the smile of his subject look just like Leonardo would have painted it, but he would probably grow careless when he got to fingernails.

Then Wind turned to the fraudulent art "experts," the so-called connoisseurs who get people to buy imitations, and he set down simple rules for posing as though you know it all.

The first thing you have to do when confronted by an obscure and anonymous painting is name the painter. It doesn't matter what name you say, just as long as no one has ever heard of the name you make up.

Flora Elkins Is Broadway's 'Just As Well'

NEW YORK (AP) — Flora Elkins is Broadway's "just as well" girl.

The words keep popping out as she talks. Everything, the young actress feels, has happened for the best in from a dreary childhood to a triumphant debut as a performer of high promise.

There's a very special reason for her persistent silver-lining outlook.

Along the way she met Helen Hayes, and that first lady of the theater extended a helping hand at a vital moment.

"My while life seems to be a miracle," says bronze-eyed Flora.

Miss Elkins, who is 23, russet-dressed and of fawn-shy manner, is embarked on a Broadway career in the hit drama "Rhinoceros." In addition to her own role, a shopely cafe worker, she is understudy to Anne Jackson in the much feminine part.

The first big "just as well" event of her life occurred when she was turned down for admission to New York City's High School of the Performing Arts.

"If I had gotten in I would never had had a chance to go to the country," she cheerfully observes.

Flora grew up in a melting pot tenement district. Her father deserted the family when she was 2, leaving the mother to raise four daughters and a son.

"In school I got into a lot of fights because the other children thought I was an easy mark," Flora recalls.

Deciding that absence from class was the best hope of surcease, the tearful tyke became a truant. The Big Sister League, a social welfare group, looked into the case, and at age 14 she was assigned to Happy Valley, a suburban center for orphans and children from broken homes.

Irish Have Nickname For JFK, 'Cousin Jack'

NEW ROSS, Co. Wexford, Erie (AP)—As soon as he took office, President John F. Kennedy let it be known that he would like to be referred to informally by the initials "J.F.K."

The word apparently never got to Ireland. If it did, it was grandly ignored. Here in New Ross, where his great grandfather dug potatoes before the Great Famine forced him to emigrate, Kennedy is known familiarly as "Cousin Jack, the Yankee president."

Patriots in sympathy with government efforts to revive the Gaelic language take familiarity a step further and refer to him as "Cousin Sean."

Either way, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, three generations away from the auld sod, has become the biggest thing to hit New Ross since the Normans established a beachhead back in the 12th century.

If it hadn't been for the Yankee president, the mayor would still have his bowler hat, saloon keeper Gus O'Kennedy would still be the most famous local Kennedy because of his football prowess, and no one would bother taking the narrow, twisting road to Dunganstown to see the crumbling shanty that Patrick Kennedy occupied before setting out for America somewhere around 1850.

"There's a grat do over him all right," admitted pub keeper Paddy Welch, who is anxiously waiting for the postman to deliver a huge color blow up of the President for display over his big mahogany bar. "It's coming from America and will set me back a couple of guineas. But, after all, it's not every town in Ireland can boast of the likes of Cousin Jack."

Similarly, the little souvenir shop on the main street has ordered a batch of Kennedy pictures to go with the shillelaghs imported from Germany and the metal harps and shamrocks from Japan.

"For the tourists mainly," explained the gray-haired proprietress, "although we do get some local calls."

The town where the Kennedys come from, as New Ross is now referred to by the guides on the tourist buses, is one of the prettiest in Ireland. Located just below the confluence of the Nare and Barrow rivers, in sight of the lovely Black Stairs Mountains, it is a walled city, pleasant and ancient, with steep, winding streets and a handsome town hall that proudly preserves under glass the maces of Edward III and Charles II and the original charter granted by James II.

New Ross has 5,000 people, 67 pubs, two fertilizer factories, a small steel plant, three churches and three beards.

One of the beards is magnificently attached to Andy Minihan, chairman of the Urban Council, the local equivalent of mayor.

On the night Cousin Jack was inaugurated, Minihan lost his bowler hat in the line of duty.

"At the big banquet just after the torchlight parade, a Yank reporter stepped on it," his honor recounted, red beard quaking with indignation. "Sure it was nothing compared with what happened to the Widow Ryan. You heard about that, did you? She gave one of those souvenir hunters permission to take a stone from the old Kennedy place and was perished to see him clouting away with a sledgehammer. Go there and you'll see the big crack over the door."

The crack was there all right, though the house itself took a bit of finding. Dunganstown is a wide spot in a narrow road, a few miles below New Ross, where the River Barrow cuts a tidal path through a lush green plain, dotted with sheep, on its winding way to sea.

Mrs. James Ryan, a Kennedy before her marriage and a cousin of the President, lives on the old Kennedy farm with her daughter, Johanna, 23. A pleasant, patient woman with a warm, musical voice, Mrs. Ryan still manages to be gracious to the increasing number of visitors who flock to the Kennedy homestead, inviting them in for a cup of strong, black tea and a look at her collection of family pictures. Among them are a campaign picture of the President, sent to her by a sister in America, and a snapshot of the family taken by John F. Kennedy when he visited the place in the summer of 1947.

Scrawled on the back in pencil are the words: "This picture taken by the President of the United States."

Kennedy, at the time, was only a congressman. He had driven over from Lismore Castle, where he was staying with his sister, Kathleen, the Marchioness of Hartington by virtue of her marriage to the son of the Duke of Devonshire. (She was killed the following spring in a plane crash.)

Like any other American tourist, Kennedy had arrived with a camera around his neck and had lined up all the various cousins against the wall of his great-grandfather's house for a typical firing squad-type family portrait. This was before he met Jacqueline Bouvier and before he could entrust the family picture taking to a professional.

Mrs. Ryan's tidy cottage, with lace curtains at the window, a big electric range in the kitchen and a cozy coal fire in the parlor, is in marked contrast to Patrick Kennedy's humble hut out in the barnyard. The low-slung building is now used as a "boiler house," where turnips and other vegetables are boiled for cattle forage. Its sole occupant today is an enormous sow who loudly grunts her dissatisfaction with the type of visitors who have been frequenting the place of late.

Next to St. Patrick's church in nearby Ballykelly stands the little parochial school where Patrick Kennedy learned to read and write, which gave him an immense advantage over many other immigrants when he landed at Noddle Island in East Boston in the middle of the last century.

The Kennedy relations still attend the church and school, but they bury their dead in the Protestant churchyard at White Church, a few miles away, a common practice among Catholics in Ireland who still regard the cemeteries around churches that changed hands during the Reformation as consecrated land.

The Kennedy election has given the men of County Wexford a new weapon in their long-standing rivalry with the men from County Kilkenny, just across the river. For several years now Wexford has had to take a back seat to Kilkenny in turning out top football and hurling players. This although the Wexford men are, by tradition, tall and sturdy, "like Cousin Jack," while the Kilkenny men are short and stocky or, as Paddy Welch described them, "just two hands higher than a duck."

Back in 1915 Gus O'Kennedy, a distant relation of the President, brought Wexford glory by winning a spot on the All Ireland football team, but last year four Kilkenny men were nominated.

"The only way we can shut them up," said Paddy, "is to ask them when's the last time they turned out a Yankee president."

Both sides of the river, however, can boast of Kennedy cousins, as can most towns for several miles around. And, apparently, the number of Kennedy claimants is growing every day.

Officials at Dublin Castle, where geneological records are kept, say there are 18,000 Kennedys and O'Kennedys in Ireland. They place the name 16th in the list of most common Irish surnames.

"Back in the days of the troubles, around 1920, a lot of Kennedys in the flush of patriotism changed their name to O'Kennedy to make themselves even more Irish," Mayor Minihan explained. "And now a lot of them wish to hell they hadn't."

Like most great Irish families, the Kennedys can claim to be descended from kings. The clan was founded by Cinneidigh, high king of North Munster, a nephew of Brian Boru, the great Irish hero who defeated the Danes at Clontarf in 1014.

First Vacation Aboard Cruise Ship Pleasing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first vacation on a cruise ship only whets the appetite for another, longer one. The first trip into the beautiful Caribbean produces the same longing for a repeat.

You could use up a lifetime in the West Indies islands, trying to absorb the scenery with its green hills, white beaches and blue - green waters, their romantic history (Columbus discovered them on his first voyage to the New World), their customs and speech which are part of their heritage from other countries which colonized them.

This chain of tropical islands stretches from Florida to the northern tip of South America and includes the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Haiti, Nassau and the Bahamas, Antigua, Barbados, Grenada, Martinique, Curacao, the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Trinidad, Tobago, the Caynans, St. Kitts, Guadeloupe and Aruba. A lot of territory's there to cover — so don't push your schedule on the first trip.

The cruise I made on the North German Lloyd flagship, the TS Bremen, gave us one day in each of six island ports, plus days in between at sea to rest up from sight - seeing and shopping, bring up to date the diary on what we've done, and write postcards to folks back home buried under a dozen or more inches of snow.

TOURIST BOOM

The whole Caribbean is enjoying a tourist boom, and many of the islands depend heavily on tourist spending for support of the local economy. Swank new hotels care for the vacationer who likes luxury along with sun, tropical breezes and planter's punch. But some of the islands haven't been "discovered" by tourism and there you can beach - comb to your heart's content.

One of the most beautiful of the islands is St. Thomas, a United States possession, with its volcanic - origin hills each affording a breath - taking view of beach and water, and in the distance, other islands in the Virgin Islands chain. One of the most beautiful, and least used, beaches is on the windward side of the island — Magen's Bay — a heart - shaped cove free to the public. The best way to see the scenery, if time is short, is to hire a car and driver who is used to the steep inclines. Negotiate the price and time for a tour before you climb in — this is good advice in almost any port.

Martinique, a French possession, offers most to the exploring type of tourist. Rising from the center of the tiny island is volcanic Mount Pelee, which erupted in 1902 and in a matter of minutes killed 30,000 persons living in St. Pierre. The port city has been rebuilt, but a visit to the ruins and the museum with relics of the disaster is a must.

'BARGAIN COUNTER'

Curacao, a Netherlands possession, has been called the "bargain counter of the Caribbean." True, the free port of Willemstad offers good buys in everything from straw baskets to French perfumes. But what impressed this visitor most was the cleanliness — not all of the Caribbean is so neat or sanitary, especially behind the scenes. But the Willemstad homes are painted delicate shades of pink, green, blue and yellow. And the story goes that all homes once were whitewashed, but the glare of the sun on white bothered the eyes of one governor some years back. He ordered each house re-done in the color preferred by its owner.

Jamaica, the third largest of the West Indies and a British dependency, is a lush green island rimmed with fine beaches. Kingston, its capital, Ocho Rios and Montego Bay are the tourist centers — our ship called only at Montego Bay, at the western end of the island which is the haunt of wealthy and fashionable international set. The resort area is thick with first-rate hotels, and the busiest beach is the Doctor's Cave with its white sands and green water.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Ouachita Parish Library's Book Collection Is Growing

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is growing every day. On March 1, the entire Parish collection stood at 67,060 books. To meet the standards set up by the American Library Association, we should have one book per capita, which would mean 101,055 books. Thus our collection is only two thirds the size it should be. However, when you realize that the collection has more than tripled in size in the past 12 years, it is evident that we are doing the best we can with the funds available.

DELIGHTFUL

"Christmas at Sagamore Hill; with Theodore Roosevelt," is a delightful little book by Helen Topping Miller. It is one of a series which she is writing about Christmas observances of great figures in American history. Lawrence Schoonover is one of our outstanding historical novelists. His latest book is called "The Chancellor." It is an exciting story of the French Courts, and is well-written.

"The Effective Board," is the title of a book by Cyril Orvin Houle which should be of great help to anyone appointed or elected to a board. "The Twilight of European Coloniliasm," by Steward C. Easton, is a political analysis of the dissolution of the great colonial empires of Great Britain, Frances and Belgium. It is a searching study of cause and effect, and should be read by everyone who wants more light on the present situation in Africa. Teachers are always asking for books on testing, and we are happy to have a new one called, "Test Construction; the Development and Interpretation of Achievement Tests," by Dorothy Adkins Wood. This should be a most helpful book.

GREAT VALUE

Another book of great value to those in the teaching profession is The Slow Learner in the Classroom," by Newell C. Rephart. It could also be used by parents in an understanding of their children's abilities. Teen - age boys will be most interested in "The Hot Rod Handbook," by Griffith Borgeson. It gives a very informative account of this interesting hobby. The library is frequently asked for books about ventriloquism. We have ordered several titles in an effort ot fill requests. One has recently arrived. It is called "Ventriloquism for Fun and Profit," and the author is Paul Winchell.

There has recently been an upsurge of interest in books about Mark Twain. The latest one to arrive at the library is "Mark Twain on the Lecture Circuit." Devotees of his works will welcome it. Students of French literature will be happy to see a new translation of Voltaire's stories, "Candide, Zadig and others." A delightful travel book in "Which Way to Mecca, Jack," by William Peter Blatty. It is a humorous, yet penetrating account of a visit to Lebanon, and contains much valuable information. Guide books to Mexico are always in demand. The latest one was written by George and Erica Butler, and should interest those planning a trip south of the border. A very lovely new book about Roman life and customs is "The World of Rome," by Michael Grant. It should be especially valuable to Latin students.

STARS, STRIPES

Every man who served in the armed services during World War II, remembers "The Stars and Stripes." Now a volume has been published giving excerpts from this interesting publication called "The Stars and Stripes Story of World War II." Copies have been purchased for each branch, so everyone will have a chance to read it.

With the centennial of the Civil War, new books about this conflict are appearing every week. This week there are three new titles. Charles P. Roland, of the Tulane faculty is the author of "The Confederacy," an interesting account of the organization of this government. Burke Davis has made a collection of anecdotes of the Civil War, which he calls "Our Incredible Civil War." Charles L. Dufour of New Orleans, affectionately known to newspapermen as "Pie" has written a very exciting account of the seige and conquest of New Orleans called "The NIGHT the War Was Lost."

An autibiography of an interesting and courageous woman, who has made her own way in spite of tremendous handicaps is "Elena," by Elena Zelayeta. A valuable addition to the reference collection is "Index to Skits and Stunts," by Norma Olin Ireland.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Concert Season In Home Stretch

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The performance of Byron Janis, pianist, on the Northeast Concerts series last Thursday marked the beginning of the home stretch for the 1960-61 cultural season.

Highlights remaining on the touring circuits include the U. S. Air Force Band, slated for April 25 on the Northeast series, and the Concert Gebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam, Holland, which will appear on the La. Tech series on May 11.

Hawaiian operatic tenor Charles K. L. Davis will present a program on the Tech series Wednesday evening.

Presently on tour as accompanist with the Centenary College Choir is George M. (Sandy) Lawn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Lawn of West Monroe.

According to A. C. Voran, director of the choral group, Lawn is the first male student to take on the difficult job of playing the accompaniments for the group. A wide range of interpretations is necessary since the choir includes selections all the way from Bach and Brahms to "Dry Bones" on its programs.

Lawn was pianist and organist at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe before entering Centenary College at Shreveport. He is now a sophomore at the school.

SHAKESPEARE

Last week, the La. Tech Department of Speech presented a series of five performances of the Shakespeare comedy, "Much Ado about Nothing." Among members of the cast were Charles Chatham and Arthur Griffith, both of West Monroe.

In discussing the plot of the play, Arthur W. Stone of the Tech speech department who served as director, said: "The play is eventually resolved into a happy ending, as befits romantic comedy, chiefly through the actions of a bungling pair of local constables, Dogberry and Verges. These simple fools, who represent base wit at its finest, stumble onto the truth when the wisdom of nobles fails."

By the above description, the advent of the original "Keystone Cops" is set back at least 300 years.

An art exhibition featuring paintings and other art works from Ouachita and Morehouse parishes as well as Northeast State College and is slated for Thursday at Bastrop.

The display will be held in the Kraft room of the Louisiana Motor Hotel and will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

As a feature, Mrs. Tom Monk of Monroe will give a demonstration in china painting.

ANTIGONE

The success of the Greek tragedy, "Antigone," which was presented by the Northeast speech department here a season or so ago has spread to the southern end of the state.

In connection with a display of masks at the Delgado Museum at New Orleans, Leo C. Zinser of Loyola University will present programs of scenes from the same drama on the last two Sundays of this month. The performances are scheduled for 4 p.m. in Downman Auditorium. Original masks are being made especially for the "Antigone" presentations.

The death of English conductor Sir Thomas Beecham last week marked the passing of a brilliant but sometimes caustic personality from the musical scene.

Said he of the English, "They may not like music but they absolutely love the noise it makes."

And of Seattle, Washington, where he turned down an invitation to conduct, "There is the cultural dust bin of America."

Of himself, Sir Thomas said, "I am obliged to blow my own trumpet for the simple reason that I cannot get anyone else to do it."

Contact Prints Made In Normal Room Light

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

An entirely new method for making practically instantaneous contact prints in normal room light without conventional darkroom apparatus or skill has been introduced to this country.

The new device, called "Rollaprint," was invented in France. It consists of a small plastic box in which a special contact paper, given an exposure in the normal way through a negative, is rolled through to make a finished print within ten seconds. The print comes out a bit damp but it is fixed or "stabilized" and requires no further washing.

COMPACT

The plastic box, about nine inches long, six inches wide and three inches deep, is its own compact, automatic darkroom. Lifting a hinged lid on its left side reveals a contact printer. The right side has the self-contained darkroom. Let's examine it:

On top are two grooves about four inches long and one-half inch wide. A roller handle is on the upper, right hand side. The top of the plastic box, with the grooves and handle, comes off. When we turn it over, we see three sets of double rubber rollers, hooked up together through clockwork plastic gears. Turning the handle, turns all the rollers but only in one direction: clockwise.

On the bottom section of the plastic box is a removable plastic tray, divided into two compartments. One has a yellow marker; the other a red marker. Here these compartments are filled with special solutions from yellow and red plastic bottles. The solutions are pre - mixed ready-to-use developer (yellow) and a stabilizer (red) which fixes it.

The special Rollaprint contact paper comes in a package of 100 sheets, each 3¼x4¼ inches. It is not affected by normal room light but is susceptible to sunlight, bright or prolonged light.

The negative is placed on the ground - glass, emulsion side up. The paper is placed on it, emulsion side down. The hinged lid comes down over them, pressure is applied and the light goes on to make the exposure. (The plastic box has an electric cord which is plugged in first, naturally.) The exposure varies from one to eight seconds, depending on the density of the negative.

The exposed paper is then inserted into the first goorve and the handle is turned slowly and constantly. The paper is gripped by the inside rollers, guided through the developer compartment, into and through the stabilizer compartment and then out through the second groove into sight again.

ALTERNATIVE

If the print comes out too light or too dark, a new print can immediately be made with more or less exposure, as needed.

The Rollaprint process, invented by Ets Bauchet et Cie, Paris, makers of sensitized materials, is being distributed in this country by U. S. Photo Supply Co., of Washington, D. C., starting in February. The unit itself will cost under $20. The set of two solutions (cost, $2) will process the package of 100 sheets (cost, $3).

In my tests with the process, I found the 10 - second, reappearance of the paper with a finished picture under normal room-light conditions almost magical in effect. After the exact exposure time had been determined, it was like child's play . . . so I let my daughters have fun making prints.

However, I wouldn't say that the finished prints had the same high quality as good, conventional contact prints. These had an overall yellowish tone and some of them were mottled and streaked.

Skid Row On Upgrade

By BOB BARNES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A place of shabby bars and buck-a-day hotels, of empty buildings and idle men—that's East 5th Street.

A place of fish houses and junk shops, dirty windows and trashy lots. A street that well-dressed folks avoid, where policemen go in pairs.

It's a skid row, like all the other skid rows the world over. But there's a difference.

This one is on the upgrade.

The reason: a 56-year-old Swedish-born bachelor who spends his own money fixing up other people's eyesores.

There's no gimmick. Frank Bronson simply believes that if you cast your bread on the waters, "You're bound to get it back."

The idea is catching hold.

"People seem to think that just because it's skid row, everything should go to the dogs," Bronson says. "That's absolutely wrong. You can have pride of ownership down here, too."

"All it takes is one person to get the ball rolling," he says. "If somebody just starts, others will follow."

Bronson isn't talking through his hat.

He bought the seven-story Hotel Morris 2½ years ago.

"You can't imagine how bad it was," he says. "No paint, dirty, run down. The cops used to live here, practically."

He couldn't stand the mess. A contractor and carpenter himself, he soon had carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers and painters swarming through the 180-room hostelry. He planted trees out front and fired 40 per cent of his help for inefficiency and drunkenness. He cleaned out the bookies and bootleggers.

NOTHING FANCY

He wasn't out to make it a Biltmore—"just good and clean, nothing fancy."

His own house in order, he turned to the neighborhood. He called on his neighbors and suggested they paint their buildings, take down old signs and fix broken windows.

He was met with shrugs. "It's a nice idea, but—" they said.

Would they let him do these things then? Fine.

He paid wreckers to haul off a small ramshackle building already condemned by the city. He had six truckloads of debris hauled off a cluttered lot. He hired four painters to scrape old paint from another building and apply two new coats. He had unsightly old signs taken down, broken windows repaired.

Nor did he stop with his own block. In the next block he has done the same on seven or eight buildings—and he's still going.

Bronson's work shows. And, he says, it pays.

"My occupancy rate has increased 100 per cent," he says. "The values have gone up 15 to 25 per cent already."

He came to this country when he was 20 with $25 in his pocket. The depression wiped him out but he started anew. Now he has almost $300,000 invested, although he drives a 1947 car.

"I don't do this for money or publicity," Bronson says. "I do it from my own heart. It's how I feel."

Would his method work on other skid rows?

"Absolutely," he says. "It will catch on in any city. It just takes one person with the initiative."

EXPERIMENT ENDS

Drug Allows Fast Psychotherapy

AMITYVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — I sat hunched over a table in the coffee shop at South Oaks Psychiatric Hospital.

My hands shook so the coffee slopped onto the white tablecloth. Perspiration covered me, wetting my cigarette. I burned my fingers in the laborious process of stumping it out in the ashtray.

Nausea gripped me. I felt that people were staring at me. The room grew smaller. I couldn't breathe.

I had to get out of there.

No matter what, I had to get out of there.

And just five minutes before I had been laughing and chatting elatedly with a group of doctors in another part of the hospital.

The dramatic change that took place in me — elation one minute, trembling confusion the next —was the result of a drug I had taken a few hours earlier. The drug was D-Lysergic Acid Diethylamide — better known as LSD-25.

PSYCHOTIC

It was an experience I hope never to repeat — with the drug or without it. Because I know now what it is to be insane.

I had known that LSD could induce states resembling certain psychoses, including schizophrenia, in a normal person. But I arranged to take the drug in order to discover for myself — under psychotherapeutic conditions — exactly how LSD works.

Doctors had assured me there was no danger I might not "come back." Dr. Harold A. Abramson, an authority on the drug, also told me that I need not fear becoming addicted to LSD.

It was a Sunday morning when I arrived at South Oaks for a psychotherapeutic LSD session. This meant that while I was under the drug a panel of psychiatrists would question me in an effort to discover and point out to me emotional problems I might have, but which I was unaware of.

At 11:30 a.m. I drank 75 micrograms of tasteless, colorless, odorless LSD in a tablespoon of orange juice. With me in the room were Dr. Abramson, Dr. Andre Rolo, South Oaks physician - in - charge, and Dr. Leonard W. Krinsky, chief psychologist.

At 11:50 a.m. the first reaction set in: tingling of the extremities; blurred vision; dizziness; the feeling that something was in my left eye. I rubbed it. The doctors meanwhile questioned me about my background and my personal life.

REACTIONS

By 12:20 p.m. new reactions had taken hold: smiling and chuckling for no reason, difficulty concentrating on thoughts, loss of appetite, feeling that "something's going to happen — I don't know what." At this stage I felt as if I had downed three or four straight whiskies. My mind was clear — although I could not control its direction.

The doctors questioned me continuously. I was in a state of euphoria. I jovially answered personal questions that normally I would have angrily resented. Then they decided to subject me to a "stress" situation to see how I would react.

That was fine with me. I was now at the peak of the LSD reaction. It was 2:30 p.m. "Stress?" I couldn't care less.

They drew up a plan. I was to go to the coffee shop in the hospital building next door, sit down and strike up a conversation with someone. The doctors would follow behind me and observe.

Nothing could be simpler, I thought.

We left the building and I walked ahead — carefully, for somehow I was unsure of my footing — to the coffee shop.

Inside I stood uncertainly. Suddenly I didn't know how to order a cup of coffee. There didn't seem to be a waitress. Or I didn't know how to find her. Everything was very difficult. I couldn't think. Was the waitress avoiding me?

Short Course In Artmanship Is Presented

LONDON (AP)—Want to be one-up on your arty friends? Able to identify little-known oil masters at a glance and then dazzle the bystanders with your knowledge?

Oxford University's professor of art, Edgar Wind, recently gave British radio listeners a short course in artmanship.

He first showed how a real art expert goes about discovering whether an old painting is genuine. The chance details, he said, will show the hand of the master—or the imperfect strokes of an imposter.

A half-concealed fingernail or an earlobe can indicate a genuine Leonardo or Raphael—or a fake.

For any imposter, the professor said, would be careful to make the smile of his subject look just like Leonardo would have painted it, but he would probably grow careless when he got to fingernails.

Then Wind turned to the fraudulent art "experts," the so-called connoisseurs who get people to buy imitations, and he set down simple rules for posing as though you know it all.

The first thing you have to do when confronted by an obscure and anonymous painting is name the painter. It doesn't matter what name you say, just as long as no one has ever heard of the name you make up.

Flora Elkins Is Broadway's 'Just As Well'

NEW YORK (AP) — Flora Elkins is Broadway's "just as well" girl.

The words keep popping out as she talks. Everything, the young actress feels, has happened for the best in from a dreary childhood to a triumphant debut as a performer of high promise.

There's a very special reason for her persistent silver-lining outlook.

Along the way she met Helen Hayes, and that first lady of the theater extended a helping hand at a vital moment.

"My while life seems to be a miracle," says bronze-eyed Flora.

Miss Elkins, who is 23, russet-tressed and of fawn-shy manner, is embarked on a Broadway career in the hit drama "Rhinoceros." In addition to her own role, a shapely cafe worker, she is understudy to Anne Jackson in the main feminine part.

The first big "just as well" event of her life occurred when she was turned down for admission to New York City's High School of the Performing Arts.

"If I had gotten in I would never had had a chance to go to the country," she cheerfully observes.

Flora grew up in a melting-pot tenement district. Her father deserted the family when she was 2, leaving the mother to raise four daughters and a son.

"In school I got into a lot of fights because the other children thought I was an easy mark," Flora recalls.

Deciding that absence from class was the best hope of survival, the tearful tyke became a flagrant truant. The Big Sister League, a social welfare group, looked into the case, and at age 14 she was assigned to Happy Valley, a suburban center for orphans and children from broken homes.

U.S. Economy Shows Promise

FPC To Open Hearings On Price Control

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — If anyone won the first round of the fight over area price ceilings for natural gas, it was the small producer.

The small operator received sympathy from all sides this week as industry and Federal Power Commission (FPC) representatives began the job of developing ground rules for formal hearings on the new price control program.

Distributors, big producers and the FPC staff agreed the small producer should receive special consideration in the costly proceedings on establisment of wellhead prices.

Practically everyone was in agreement that many small producers, without special rules, would spend more money on rate cases than they receive from gas sales.

SMALL PRODUCERS

A definition of a "small producer" remains to be worked out but spokesmen for the small independents are optimistic.

John Davenport, general counsel for the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said he was encouraged by the Midland pre-hearing conference and prospects for the "noble experiment."

Davenport admits the big battle still is ahead, but is confident the small operator benefited while others argued over the status of producer costs.

These developments offered encouragement:

1. Holding the conference in a producing area gave many small producers their first opportunity for actual participation in a major FPC proceeding. John C. Mason, FPC general counsel, also said at least part of the formal heading on Permian basin prices probably would be held in this West Texas area.

2. Distributors, big producers and the FPC staff said small producers should not be required to submit the time-consuming, costly financial information reports that are expected to be required of the major producers. Mason said such information from a small operator probably could be confined to one sheet of paper. A proposed FPC staff questionnaire on such information covered 109 pages. A spokesman for Texaco Inc., said it would cost his firm $300,000 to supply the information the FPC document indicated might be required for a formal hearing.

3. Mason also indicated issues involved in a formal hearing would be confined to "relevant facts" outlined in the FPC policy statement that created the area approach to federal controls Sept. 28.

A proposed definition of a "small" producer may be developed when the pre-hearing conference is resumed April 12 in Washington.

The cutoff point between "small" and "big" producers probably would be based on annual production.

Earlier FPC discussions with producers have indicated a cutoff point falling somewhere between 2 and 5 billion cubic feet a year.

$14,000 A YEAR ...NOW I AM REALLY LIVING!

By a Wall Street Journal Subscriber

A few years ago I was going broke on $9,000 a year. High prices and taxes were getting me down. I had to have more money or reduce my standard of living.

So I sent for a Trial Subscription to The Wall Street Journal. I heeded its warnings. I cashed in on the ideas it gave me for increasing my income and cutting expenses. I got the money I needed. And then I began to forge ahead. Last year my income was up to $14,000. Believe me, reading The Journal every day is a wonderful get-ahead plan. Now I am really living!

This experience is typical. The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000. It is valuable to the owner of a small business. It can be of priceless benefit to young men who want to win advancement.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you.

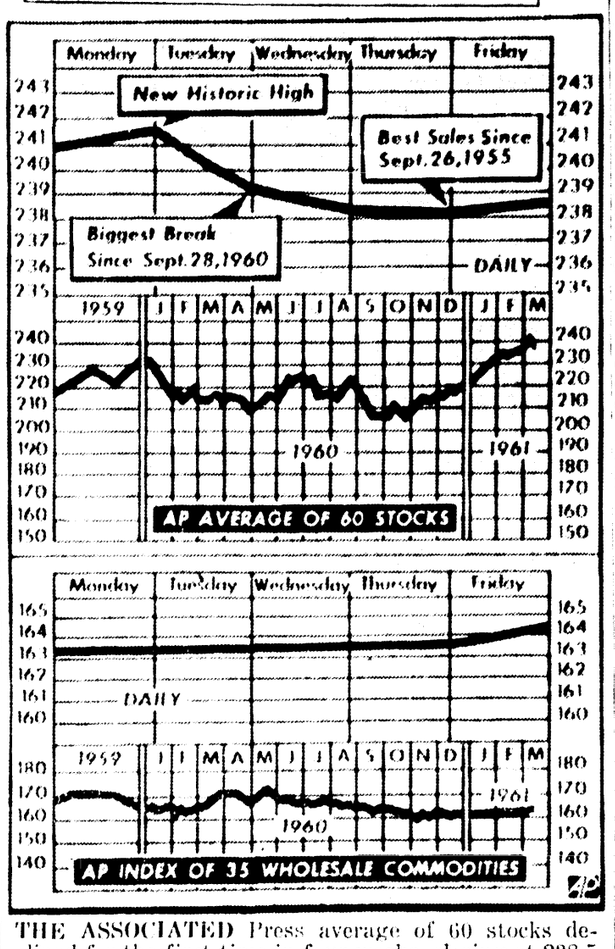
FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks declined for the first time in four weeks, closing at 238.5 from 241.0 a week ago. The Commodity Index, led by industrials, advanced this week, closing at 164.2 from 163.2 a week earlier. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

AVERAGES DECLINE

Stock Market Stirs With High Volume

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market averages declined for the first time in four weeks as volume mounted this week to an even greater 23-year record.

Turnover for the latest week mounted to 29,026,420 shares from 27,102,506 the prior week. Both were the greatest since the week ended July 22, 1933, when 42,329,633 shares changed hands.

Although 633 individual stocks showed net gains as against 665 net losses, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.01 to 663.56.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 2.50 to 238.50.

The decline in the popular averages reflected a neglect of hte market wheelhorses, including the cyclical stocks such as steels, chemicals, motors, rails and nonferrous metals. The advance in issues traded spelled out the extreme breadth of bargain-hunting proclivities among the public.

As the week ended a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $180,000, the highest price since 1934.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Universal Controls, up 2½ at 15¼ on 318,600 shares.

Corporate bond trading on the New York Stock Exchange expanded to a 15-year high this week. Prices drifted upward in both corporate and U.S. government departments with many issues continuing at or near two-year peeks.

The hectic activity in corporates produced a daily average volume of $9,788,600 par value for the week, compared with the daily average of about $7 million for the year so far. Volume is running more than 20 per cent ahead of last year's pace and slightly better than 1959 when a 15-year high was set.

Only a fraction of the corporate bonds changing hands are traded on the exchange. A much larger but unrecorded volume is traded by over-the-counter dealers.

Exchange trading amounted to $48,943,000 and included two sessions (Monday and Thursday) just over $10 million. They were the best days since a $12.43 million session Sept. 9, 1955.

Volume last week was $43,554,000 and the daily average $8,672,600. The last busier week was the week ended Jan. 19, 1946, with $51,653,900 in a 5½-day trading week.

Proposals Told To Orleans Real Estate Board

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — If the Administration is sincere in its proposals to improve the tax structure, it will first sponsor legislation "which would restore fiscal responsibility to the operations of our federal government," O. G. Powell, Des Moines, Ia., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, declared here recently.

The head of the 69,000-member Realtor organization addressed the Real Estate Board of New Orleans at a luncheon meeting in the Sheraton Charles Hotel.

Powell advocated three specific measures as steps toward what he termed greater federal fiscal responsibility. The first of these — House Resolution 125 — would allow the use of Treasury funds solely on an appropriation rather than an authorization basis, the second would provide for subsequent income tax reductions out of part of the increased revenue resulting from economic growth, and the third would earmark a certain portion of each year's tax revenue for the retirement of a part of the national debt.

"Only by the enactment of these three proposals would the American people be assured that broadening the tax base will mean something more than an invitation for the federal government to embark on more and more financial adventures until private enterprise is completely smothered," the Des Moines Realtor asserted. "This is the challenge that will measure the sincerity of the tax planners of the New Frontier."

Terming it a "gross understatement to say that our income tax laws were enacted and are administered for the purpose of raising revenue to meet the cost of government," Mr. Powell said that in fact current tax laws are "powerful political weapons which have as their primary objective the redistribution of income."

The Realtor leader said that it was this underlying philosophy that makes him "uneasy" over the plans of tax writers in Congress and the Treasury to reduce the tax rates but only after broadening the base of our tax laws.

New Oil Field Is Discovered In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Argo and Charton Oil Corps, have brought in a new oil field find in the northwestern part of Jefferson County.

The Berkley-Phillips unit No. 1, sec. 14-10w-2w was reported flowing about 200 barrels of oil per day. It was producing from a lower Tuscaloosa sand at 9,188-9,206 feet.

The well is near the Mississippi River and the abandoned Buena Vista field.

In the east fork field of Amite County, Pan American Petroleum Co. has begun drilling operations on the No. 1 H. B. Moore, sec. 15-3n-5e, and continued to test the N. B. Roberts No. 2, sec. 27-3n-5e, from perforations at 11,247-50 feet.

Sun Oil Co. has set production casing at the Stewart No. 1, sec. 15-4n-6e, Amite County. The well in the new Smithdale oil field logged oil sand at 11,040-48 feet.

In the same area, Cities Service Production Co. was rigging up at the board of supervisors No. 3, sec. 16-4n-6e.

TRIAD CO.

Triad Oil and Gas Co. has abandoned as dry its No. 1 USA, sec. 36-3n-6e, after no shows were logged to 11,300 feet.

In the southeast McComb field of Pike County, two important ventures were underway.

Barnwell Drilling Co. was below 8,700 feet in the Fernwood No. 2, sec. 30-3n-8e, and Humble Oil and Refining Co. was drilling at 7,100 feet in the southeast McComb oil unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-8e.

The southeast McComb area is located about two miles from the producing limits of the big McComb oil field and currently lists one producer.

Larco Drilling Co. was nearing completion in the McIntyre No. 1, sec. 13-3n-5e, located in the Puckett field of Rankin County. The well was reported flowing oil into test tanks at the rate of 270 barrels per day from perforations at 8,616-24 feet.

In the Bentonia Area of Yazoo County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. was below 8,600 feet in a confirmation well, the Thompson No. 2, sec. 3-9n-1w, a south offset to the discovery well.

Texaco Inc., was moving in a drilling rig at the Thompson No. 1, sec. 33-10n-1w, Yazoo County, a northwest diagonal offset to the discovery well in the Bentonia area.

Northeast of Yazoo City, Continental Oil Co. was drilling below 12,400 feet in a wildcat, the Freudenberg No. 1, sec. 24-12n-2w.

Field drilling the past week brought three new oilers.

Lyle Cashion Co. completed the Freeman et al unit No. B-1, sec. 5-3n-7e, Pike County. The McComb field well flowed 88 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,958-69 feet.

Also at McComb, Sun Oil completed the Abbott - Williams No. 1, sec. 5-3n-7e, which flowed 115 barrels per day from a sand at 10,972-84 fet.

At Heidelberg in Jasper County, Gulf Oil Corp. completed the Heidelberg unit No. 1, sec. 6-10n-1w, as a dual producer. The well pumped 75 barrels per day from a sand at 11,262-302 feet and flowed 207 barrels per day from a second sand at 8,940-84 feet.

Moonshining Flourishes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Moonshining still is a flourishing industry in spite of the illegal distillers' troubles in getting sugar, the Licensed Beverage Industries reports.

Twelve southern states produce 80 per cent of the moonshine whisky and 56 per cent of it moves across state or county lines.

NEW YORK (AP)—The economy took on a checkerboard appearance last week as expectations of an upturn mounted.

Black and white spots mottled the business picture.

Economists voiced almost unanimous confidence that things would get better. But their timetable varied.

A resurgence of optimism was most noticeable in the long-lagging steel industry.

While production last week slipped minutely from the previous week, hovering a little above 50 per cent of capacity, steelmakers look for a rate of better than 60 per cent in the second quarter.

Encouraging signs were a pick-up in general orders, an improved plate and structural market, better tinplate demand and a resumption of orders by small users.

EMPLOYED

Republic Steel Corp. reopened a hearth fuace employing 100 men at its Youngstown, Ohio, plant.

However, big orders still were not forthcoming from the automobile industry. And unemployment among steel workers remained at about 150,000.

It was a two-sided coin in the automobile industry. Sales were up, production down.

In the final 10 days of February, dealers delivered 124,630 cars, or 17,804 each selling day, an increase of 21.8 per cent over mid-February and 22.8 per cent ahead of late January.

Production last week was estimated at 91,000 passenger cars, down slightly from the previous week. Eleven Ford assembly plants were closed for the week.

More shutdowns are scheduled throughout the industry this week as producers await a reduction in the approximately one million unsold cars in dealers' hands.

Retail trade racked up a gain of 10 to 14 per cent over the comparable 1960 week as the weather improved and merchants pushed Easter promotions. However, the figures were not as rosy as they might appear because a year ago much of the country was hit by a blizzard which hurt sales.

RETAIL BUYING

The government announced that in February consumers halted a three-month decline in retail buying.

The unemployment situation continued to worsen with the total idle hitting a 20-year record of 5,705,000 in mid-February. This was an increase of 320,000 in a month.

A few bright spots emerged, however. Among them was International Harvester Co.'s report that its payroll increased by 2,107 in February, the third straight monthly gain.

As for the outlook, here are some opinions:

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon—the administration expects an upturn during the April-June quarter.

Secretary of Labor Arthur L. Goldberg—there is no question that we will have an upturn in April.

Walter Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers—a rapid economic upturn isn't expected to develop until the third quarter.

Federal Reserve Bank of New York — it is too early to say that the recession is bottoming out.

The Kennedy administration maintained its swift pace in attempts to bolster the economy with more and faster spending.

The President proposed a $3.25 billion program to revive the housing industry, make better homes available to millions and help rehabilitate cities.

He directed federal departments to spend an additional $660 million in purchasing equipment and supplies before June 30. These funds are available from the current budget, he said.

Record Advertising

NEW YORK (UPI) —Soft drink bottlers will "invest" $120 million and candy manufacturers $70 million in consumer advertising this year — both all time records, according to Don Gussow Publications, Inc.

MANY AREAS OF COUNTRY

Took Recession In Stride

Editors' Note — The recession has struck hard in many areas of the nation. It has touched others lightly. In the following article, Nate Polowetzky, assistant general business editor of The Associated Press, who recently wrote about the depressed labor areas, now tells about some sections which are doing all right.

By NATE POLOWETZKY

NEW YORK (AP)—In the grim picture of recession, joblessness and hardship, some areas of the United States show a happy present and a shining hope for the future.

These are the places that have been touched little or not at all by the economic turndown, that have shown growth, where unemployment—while it exists — is far below the national average and where a good level of prosperity has been maintained.

According to the U.S. Labor Department these "major" areas are Madison, Wis.; Stamford, Conn.; Omaha, Neb.; and Hawaii.

How have they escaped where others have suffered harshly?

A composite portrait brings out the important fact:

None of them depends on a single manufacturing or production industry for their economic health —an underlying cause in sections that have become chronically "depressed" after years of prosperity.

GOOD HEALTH

Put together, the areas strikingly present the ingredients that many economists claim are necessary for good health, now and in the future.

Briefly these are an evenly balanced labor force, diversification of industry, with dozens of small selected plants, and a heavy reliance on the growing "service" industries, such as government, administration, finance, insurance real estate and tourism.

Many economists see these service industries as the great expanding sector in America's economic future. Even now, they say these industries are less affected by recession and even if hit are affected a long time after the turndown is strongest elsewhere.

Take Madison, Wis., for example, where in January unemployment was calculated at 3.6 per cent.

Out of a work force of 74,740 persons, some 25,000 are employed by government—15,000 for the state (6,300 of these at the University of Wisconsin); more than 3,000 are federal employes; and more than 5,000 work for the city or county.

WORK FORCE

In addition, the insurance industry is employing a "sizable percentage" of Madison workers. The insurance work force has shown a steady, slow rise an dis not subject to fluctuation even in fairly depressed times.

Stores and retail outlets are helped by the fact that the university has more than 17,000 students on the campus in the heart of the city.

In addition, legislators throng the capital. Their secretaries, lobbyists who make Madison their headquarters, and visitors who come to town, bring wealth.

Neither state nor federal employment officials foresee any serious unemployment in the near —or even far-off—future.

Across the Pacific is the golden state of Hawaii, where in January only 8,450 persons were unemployed out of a total work force of 231,970—a 3.5 figure.

Defense spending is the biggest single factor contributing to the high employment. With a new submarine repair facility at Pearl Harbor and Nike and other missile sites either built or under construction on the various islands, unemployment is held down. The military installations supply jobs for nearly one-fourth of the total number of employed.

Almost as important, however, is the great tourist industry, the second largest of Hawaii's dollar-income industries. Connected with this is continued construction—expansion of existing hotels and the building of new ones — creating new jobs.

The $150-million sugar industry provides year-round employment to some 20,000 workers while the $100-million pineapple industry provides seasonal jobs for some 20,000 workers at its peak.

THOMAS H. WALTON, above, has joined the Crossett Company as quality control superintendent it was reported recently. He is a graduate of Mississippi State University with a B.S. Degree in Chemical Engineering. Crossett's new plant, second of its kind in the nation, will produce memium density wood shavings board from gum wood.

Walton New Mill Chief At Crossett

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Thomas H. Walton has accepted the position of Quality Control Superintendent with Crossett lumber Company, a division of The Crossett Company. He will be in charge of the laboratory and quality control at The Crossett Company's new $6 million particle board plant.

GROUP LEADER

Before coming to Crossett, Mr. Walton was Reasearch Group Leader for the Masonite Corporation, Laurel, Mississippi. His experience also includes positions as Chief Chemist and Testing Engineer for two other Mississippi firms.

He is a graduate of Mississippi State University with a B. S. Degree in Chemical Engineering.

Crossett's new plant, second of its kind in the nation, will produce medium density wood shavings board from gum wood. The process to be used is known as the "Behr" process, named for its European inventor. The plant, which will have a payroll of over $500,000, will produce 200 tons of ¾ inch board daily.

OIL-GAS ROUNDUP

Four Wells Are Completed In Monroe District

BY RICHARD GREENE
World Oil Editor

Four wells were completed in the Monroe oil-gas district last week, and 3 new locations were staked as a result of testing and exploration throughout the area.

Duncan S. Cook, manager of the 14-parish district, also reported a total of 14 rigs active in the fields and two holes plugged and abandoned due to little or no oil flow.

The first two new producers are in the Monroe field of Union Parish. Murco Drilling Corp. has completed its B. E. McKinnie No. 1 in section 33-22-3E to flow 790 MCF with a rock pressure of 875 lbs.

The B. E. McKinnie No. 2 in section 33-22-3E was completed to flow 850 MCF with a rock pressure of 850 lbs.

In the Calhoun Field of Ouachita Parish Gulf Oil Corp. has completed its Calhoun 19-9 No. 1. It was completed to flow 780 MCF and 61 barrels of distillate with a gravity of 60.5 through a 32-64 in. choke from perforations at 9772-80 ft., gas oil ratio 12900:1.

The Justiss Mears Oil Co. Tremont Lbr. Co. well no. B-4 was re-completed in the Summerville field of LaSalle Parish. It will pump 14 barrels from perforations at 2582-84 ft., the gravity is 31.

Cotton Futures Move Higher On N.Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP) — Contracts for future delivery of cotton moved steadily higher on the New York Cotton Exchange this week, closing with gains ranging from $1.10 to $2.35 a bale.

All active months made new life of contract highs during the period.

The market's advance was attributed to moderate trade and commission house support in the face of a relative lack of selling pressure. Demand also was influenced by indications of a holding movement in anticipation of higher prices later this season and next.

Another bullish factor was said to be granting of an authorization to India to purchase 240,000 bales from the current crop.

Offerings largely were confined to light hedge selling and profit-taking attracted by the advance.

Monroe Chapter Of API To Hold Regular Meeting

The Monroe Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute will hold its regular meeting at the Paragon Club here Tuesday night. The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with a social hour followed by dinner at seven.

Paul Clinkenbeard, a Dowell Chemical Company Sales Engineer from Shreveport, will be the principal speaker and will deliver an address on Fracturing Treatments.

Representatives from oil and gas companies and drilling supply industries in the area are expected to be present. Anyone who is interested in the work of the API is extended an invitation to attend.

U.S. Economy Shows Promise

FPC To Open Hearings On Price Control

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — If anyone won the first round of the fight over area price ceilings for natural gas, it was the small producer.

The small operator received sympathy from all sides this week as industry and Federal Power Commission (FPC) representatives began the job of developing ground rules for formal hearings on the new price control program.

Distributors, big producers and the FPC staff agreed the small producer should receive special consideration in the costly proceedings on establisment of wellhead prices.

Practically everyone was in agreement that many small producers, without special rules, would spend more money on rate cases than they receive from gas sales.

SMALL PRODUCERS

A definition of a "small producer" remains to be worked out but spokesmen for the small independents are optimistic.

John Davenport, general counsel for the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said he was encouraged by the Midland pre-hearing conference and prospects for the "noble experiment."

Davenport admits the big battle still is ahead, but is confident the small operator benefited while others argued over the status of producer costs.

These developments offered encouragement:

1. Holding the conference in a producing area gave many small producers their first opportunity for actual participation in a major FPC proceeding. John C. Mason, FPC general counsel, also said at least part of the formal heading on Permian basin prices probably would be held in this West Texas area.

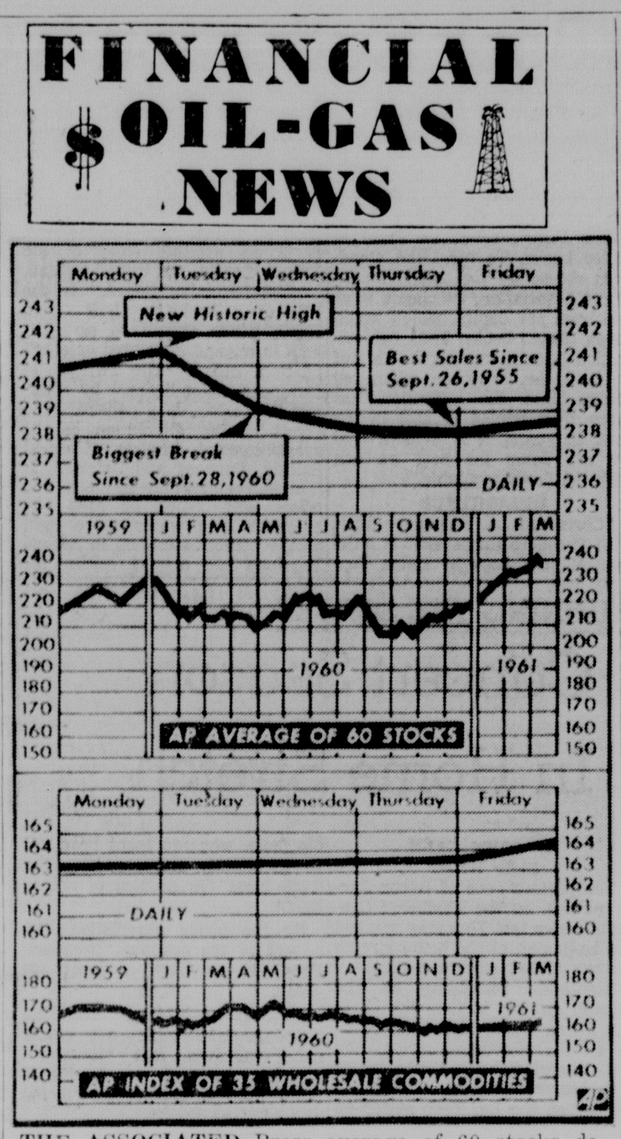
2. Distributors, big producers and the FPC staff said small producers should not be required to submit the time-consuming, costly financial information reports that are expected to be required of the major producers. Mason said such information from a small operator probably could be confined to one sheet of paper. A proposed FPC staff questionnaire on such information covered 109 pages. A spokesman for Texaco Inc., said it would cost his firm $300,000 to supply the information the FPC document indicated might be required for a formal hearing.

3. Mason also indicated issues involved in a formal hearing would be confined to "relevant facts" outlined in the FPC policy statement that created the area approach to federal controls Sept. 28.

A proposed definition of a "small" producer may be developed when the pre-hearing conference is resumed April 12 in Washington.

The cutoff point between "small" and "big" producers probably would be based on annual production.

Earlier FPC discussions with producers have indicated a cutoff point falling somewhere between 2 and 5 billion cubic feet a year.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks declined for the first time in four weeks, closing at 238.5 from 241.0 a week ago. The Commodity Index, led by industrials, advanced this week, closing at 164.2 from 163.2 a week earlier. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

AVERAGES DECLINE

Stock Market Stirs With High Volume

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market averages declined for the first time in four weeks as volume mounted this week to an even greater 28 year record.

Turnover for the latest week mounted to 29,026,120 shares from 27,102,906 the prior week. Both were the greatest since the week ended July 22, 1933, when 42,329,633 shares changed hands.

Although 683 individual stocks showed net gains as against 665 net losses, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.01 to 663.56.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 2.50 to 238.50.

The decline in the popular averages reflected a neglect of hte market wheelhorses, including the cyclical stocks such as steels, chemicals, motors, rails and nonferrous metals. The advance in issues-traded spelled out the extreme breadth of bargain-hunting proclivities among the public.

As the week ended a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $180,000, the highest price since 1934.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Universal Controls, up 2½ at 15¼ on 318,600 shares.

Corporate bond trading on the New York Stock Exchange expanded to a 15-year high this week. Prices drifted upward in both corporate and U.S. government departments with many issues continuing at or near two-year peeks.

The hectic activity in corporates produced a daily average volume of $9,788,600 par value for the week, compared with the daily average of about $7 million for the year so far. Volume is running more than 20 per cent ahead of last year's pace and slightly better than 1959 when a 15-year high was set.

Only a fraction of the corporate bonds changing hands are traded on the exchange. A much larger but unrecorded volume is traded by over-the-counter dealers.

Exchange trading amounted to $48,943,000 and included two sessions (Monday and Thursday) just over $10 million. They were the best days since a $12.43 million session Sept. 9, 1955.

Volume last week was $43,334,000 and the daily average $8,672,800. The last busier week was the week ended Jan. 19, 1946, with $51,653,900 in a 5½-day trading week.

Proposals Told To Orleans Real Estate Board

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — If the Administration is sincere in its proposals to improve the tax structure, it will first sponsor legislation "which would restore fiscal responsibility to the operations of our federal government," O. G. Powell, Des Moines, Ia., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, declared here recently.

The head of the 69,000-member Realtor organization addressed the Real Estate Board of New Orleans at a luncheon meeting in the Sheraton Charles Hotel.

Powell advocated three specific measures as steps toward what he termed greater federal fiscal responsibility. The first of these — House Resolution 125 — would allow the use of Treasury funds solely on an appropriation rather than an authorization basis, the second would provide for subsequent income tax reductions out of part of the increased revenue resulting from economic growth, and the third would earmark a certain portion of each year's tax revenue for the retirement of a part of the national debt.

"Only by the enactment of these three proposals would the American people be assured that broadening the tax base will mean something more than an invitation for the federal government to embark on more and more financial adventures until private enterprise is completely smothered," the Des Moines Realtor asserted. "This is the challenge that will measure the sincerity of the tax planners of the New Frontier."

Terming it a "gross understatement to say that our income tax laws were enacted and are administered for the purpose of raising revenue to meet the cost of government," Mr. Powell said that in fact current tax laws are "powerful political weapons which have as their primary objective the redistribution of income."

The Realtor leader said that it was this underlying philosophy that makes him "uneasy" over the plans of tax writers in Congress and the Treasury to reduce the tax rates but only after broadening the base of our tax laws.

$14,000 A YEAR ...NOW I AM REALLY LIVING!

By a Wall Street Journal Subscriber

A few years ago I was going broke on $9,000 a year. High prices and taxes were getting me down. I had to have more money or reduce my standard of living.

So I sent for a Trial Subscription to The Wall Street Journal. I heeded its warnings. I cashed in on the ideas it gave me for increasing my income and cutting expenses. I got the money I needed. And then I began to forge ahead. Last year my income was up to $14,000. Believe me, reading The Journal every day is a wonderful get-ahead plan. Now I am really living!

This experience is typical. The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000. It is valuable to the owner of a small business. It can be of priceless benefit to young men who want to win advancement.

New Oil Field Is Discovered In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Argo and Charton Oil Corps, have brought in a new oil field find in the northwestern part of Jefferson County.

The Berkley-Phillips unit No. 1, sec. 14-10w-2w was reported flowing about 200 barrels of oil per day. It was producing from a lower Tuscaloosa sand at 9,188-9,206 feet.

The well is near the Mississippi River and the abandoned Buena Vista field.

In the east fork field of Amite County, Pan American Petroleum Co. has begun drilling operations on the No. 1 H. B. Moore, sec. 15-3n-5e, and continued to test the N. B. Roberts No. 2, sec. 27-3n-5e, from perforations at 11,-247-50 feet.

Sun Oil Co. has set production casing at the Stewart No. 1, sec. 15-4n-6e, Amite County. The well in the new Smithdale oil field logged oil sand at 11,040-48 feet.

In the same area, Cities Service Production Co. was rigging up at the board of supervisors No. 3, sec. 16-4n-6e.

TRIAD CO.

Triad Oil and Gas Co. has abandoned as dry its No. 1 USA, sec. 36-3n-6e, after no shows were logged to 11,300 feet.

In the southeast McComb field of Pike County, two important ventures were underway.

Barnwell Drilling Co. was below 8,700 feet in the Fernwood No. 2, sec. 30-3n-8e, and Humble Oil and Refining Co. was drilling at 7,100 feet in the southeast McComb oil unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-8e.

The southeast McComb area is located about two miles from the producing limits of the big McComb oil field and currently lists one producer.

Larco Drilling Co. was nearing completion in the McIntyre No. 1, sec. 13-3n-5e, located in the Puckett field of Rankin County. The well was reported flowing oil into test tanks at the rate of 270 barrels per day from perforations at 8,616-24 feet.

In the Bentonia Area of Yazoo County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. was below 8,600 feet in a confirmation well, the Thompson No. 2, sec. 3-9n-1w, a south offset to the discovery well.

Texaco Inc., was moving in a drilling rig at the Thompson No. 1, sec. 33-10n-1w, Yazoo County, a northwest diagonal offset to the discovery well in the Bentonia area.

Northeast of Yazoo City, Continental Oil Co. was drilling below 12,400 feet in a wildcat, the Freudenberg No. 1, sec. 24-12n-2w.

Field drilling the past week brought three new oilers.

Lyle Cashion Co. completed the Freeman et al unit No. B-1, sec. 5-3n-7e, Pike County. The McComb field well flowed 88 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,958-69 feet.

Also at McComb, Sun Oil completed the Abbott - Williams No. 1, sec. 5-3n-7e, which flowed 115 barrels per day from a sand at 10,972-84 fet.

At Heidelberg in Jasper County, Gulf Oil Corp. completed the Heidelberg unit No. 1, sec. 6-10n-1w, as a dual producer. The well pumped 75 barrels per day from a sand at 11,262-302 feet and flowed 207 barrels per day from a second sand at 8,940-84 feet.

Moonshining Flourishes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Moonshining still is a flourishing industry in spite of the illegal distillers' troubles in getting sugar, the Licensed Beverage Industries reports.

Twelve southern states produce 80 per cent of the moonshine whisky and 56 per cent of it moves across state or county lines.

NEW YORK (AP)—The economy took on a checkerboard appearance last week as expectations of an upturn mounted.

Black and white spots mottled the business picture.

Economists voiced almost unanimous confidence that things would get better. But their timetable varied.

A resurgence of optimism was most noticeable in the long-lagging steel industry.

While production last week slipped minutely from the previous week, hovering a little above 50 per cent of capacity, steelmakers look for a rate of better than 60 per cent in the second quarter.

Encouraging signs were a pick-up in general orders, an improved plate and structural market, better tinplate demand and a resumption of orders by small users.

EMPLOYED

Republic Steel Corp. reopened a hearth fuace employing 100 men at its Youngstown, Ohio, plant.

However, big orders still were not forthcoming from the automobile industry. And unemployment among steel workers remained at about 150,000.

It was a two-sided coin in the automobile industry. Sales were up, production down.

In the final 10 days of February, dealers delivered 124,630 cars, or 17,804 each selling day, an increase of 21.3 per cent over mid-February and 22.8 per cent ahead of late January.

Production last week was estimated at 91,000 passenger cars, down slightly from the previous week. Eleven Ford assembly plants were closed for the week.

More shutdowns are scheduled throughout the industry this week as producers await a reduction in the approximately one million unsold cars in dealers' hands.

Retail trade racked up a gain of 10 to 14 per cent over the comparable 1960 week as the weather improved and merchants pushed Easter promotions. However, the figures were not as rosy as they might appear because a year ago much of the country was hit by a blizzard which hurt sales.

RETAIL BUYING

The government announced that in February consumers halted a three-month decline in retail buying.

The unemployment situation continued to worsen with the total idle hitting a 20-year record of 5,705,000 in mid-February. This was an increase of 320,000 in a month.

A few bright spots emerged, however. Among them was International Harvester Co.'s report that its payroll increased by 2,107 in February, the third straight monthly gain.

As for the outlook, here are some opinions:

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon—the administration expects an upturn during the April-June quarter.

Secretary of Labor Arthur L. Goldberg—there is no question that we will have an upturn in April.

Walter Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers—a rapid economic upturn isn't expected to develop until the third quarter.

Federal Reserve Bank of New York — it is too early to say that the recession is bottoming out.

The Kennedy administration maintained its swift pace in attempts to bolster the economy with more and faster spending.

The President proposed a $3.25 billion program to revive the housing industry, make better homes available to millions and help rehabilitate cities.

He directed federal departments to spend an additional $660 million in purchasing equipment and supplies before June 30. These funds are available from the current budget, he said.

Record Advertising

NEW YORK (UPI) —Soft drink bottlers will "invest" $120 million and candy manufacturers $70 million in consumer advertising this year — both all time records, according to Don Gussow Publications, Inc.

MANY AREAS OF COUNTRY

Took Recession In Stride

Editors' Note — The recession has struck hard in many areas of the nation. It has touched others lightly. In the following article, Nate Polowetzky, assistant general business editor of The Associated Press, who recently wrote about the depressed labor areas, now tells about some sections which are doing all right.

By NATE POLOWETZKY

NEW YORK (AP)—In the grim picture of recession, joblessness and hardship, some areas of the United States show a happy present and a shining hope for the future.

These are the places that have been touched little or not at all by the economic turndown, that have shown growth, where unemployment—while it exists — is far below the national average and where a good level of prosperity has been maintained.

According to the U.S. Labor Department these "major" areas are Madison, Wis.; Stamford, Conn.; Omaha, Neb.; and Hawaii.

How have they escaped where others have suffered harshly?

A composite portrait brings out the important fact:

None of them depends on a single manufacturing or production industry for their economic health —an underlying cause in sections that have become chronically "depressed" after years of prosperity.

GOOD HEALTH

Put together, the areas strikingly present the ingredients that many economists claim are necessary for good health, now and in the future.

Briefly these are an evenly balanced labor force, diversification of industry, with dozens of small selected plants, and a heavy reliance on the growing "service" industries, such as government, administration, finance, insurance real estate and tourism.

Many economists see these service industries as the great expanding sector in America's economic future. Even now, they say these industries are less affected by recession and even if hit are affected a long time after the turndown is strongest elsewhere.

Take Madison, Wis., for example, where in January unemployment was calculated at 3.6 per cent.

Out of a work force of 74,740 persons, some 25,000 are employed by government—15,000 for the state (6,300 of these at the University of Wisconsin); more than 3,000 are federal employes; and more than 5,000 work for the city or county.

WORK FORCE

In addition, the insurance industry is employing a "sizable percentage" of Madison workers. The insurance work force has shown a steady, slow rise an dis not subject to fluctuation even in fairly depressed times.

Stores and retail outlets are helped by the fact that the university has more than 17,000 students on the campus in the heart of the city.

In addition, legislators throng the capital. Their secretaries, lobbyists who make Madison their headquarters, and visitors who come to town, bring wealth.

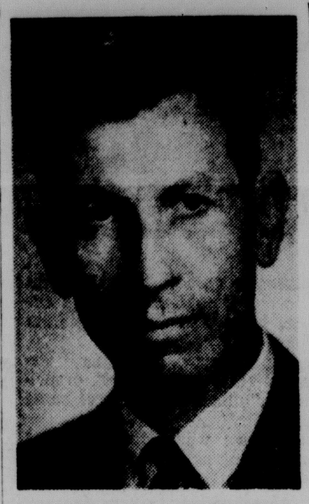
Neither state nor federal employment officials foresee any serious unemployment in the near —or even far-off—future.

Across the Pacific is the golden state of Hawaii, where in January only 8,450 persons were unemployed out of a total work force of 231,970—a 3.5 figure.

Defense spending is the biggest single factor contributing to the high employment. With a new submarine repair facility at Pearl Harbor and Nike and other missile sites either built or under construction on the various islands, unemployment is held down. The military installations supply jobs for nearly one-fourth of the total number of employed.

Almost as important, however, is the great tourist industry, the second largest of Hawaii's dollar-income industries. Connected with this is continued construction—expansion of existing hotels and the building of new ones — creating new jobs.

The $150-million sugar industry provides year-round employment to some 20,000 workers while the $100-million pineapple industry provides seasonal jobs for some 20,000 workers at its peak.



THOMAS H. WALTON, above, has joined the Crossett Company as quality control superintendent it was reported recently. He is a graduate of Mississippi State University with a B.S. Degree in Chemical Engineering. Crossett's new plant, second of its kind in the nation, will produce memium density wood shavings board from gum wood.

Walton New Mill Chief At Crossett

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Thomas H. Walton has accepted the position of Quality Control Superintendent with Crossett lumber Company, a division of The Crossett Company. He will be in charge of the laboratory and quality control at The Crossett Company's new $6 million particle board plant.

GROUP LEADER

Before coming to Crossett, Mr. Walton was Reasearch Group Leader for the Masonite Corporation, Laurel, Mississippi. His experience also includes positions as Chief Chemist and Testing Engineer for two other Mississippi firms.

He is a graduate of Mississippi State University with a B. S. Degree in Chemical Engineering.

Crossett's new plant, second of its kind in the nation, will produce medium density wood shavings board from gum wood. The process to be used is known as the "Behr" process, named for its European inventor. The plant, which will have a payroll of over $500,000, will produce 200 tons of ¾ inch board daily.

OIL-GAS ROUNDUP

Four Wells Are Completed In Monroe District

BY RICHARD GREENE
World Oil Editor

Four wells were completed in the Monroe oil-gas district last week, and 3 new locations were staked as a result of testing and exploration throughout the area.

Duncan S. Cook, manager of the 14-parish district, also reported a total of 14 rigs active in the fields and two holes plugged and abandoned due to little or no oil flow.

The first two new producers are in the Monroe field of Union Parish. Murco Drilling Corp. has completed its B. E. McKinnie No. 1 in section 33-22-3E to flow 790 MCF with a rock pressure of 875 lbs.

Cotton Futures Move Higher On N.Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP) — Contracts for future delivery of cotton moved steadily higher on the New York Cotton Exchange this week, closing with gains ranging from $1.10 to $2.35 a bale.

All active months made new life of contract highs during the period.

The market's advance was attributed to moderate trade and commission house support in the face of a relative lack of selling pressure. Demand also was influenced by indications of a holding movement in anticipation of higher prices later this season and next.

Another bullish factor was said to be granting of an authorization to India to purchase 240,000 bales from the current crop.

Offerings largely were confined to light hedge selling and profit-taking attracted by the advance.

Monroe Chapter Of API To Hold Regular Meeting

The Monroe Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute will hold its regular meeting at the Paragon Club here Tuesday night. The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with a social hour followed by dinner at seven.

Paul Clinkenbeard, a Dowell Chemical Company Sales Engineer from Shreveport, will be the principal speaker and will deliver an address on Fracturing Treatments.

Representatives from oil and gas companies and drilling supply industries in the area are expected to be present. Anyone who is interested in the work of the API is extended an invitation to attend.

He's All Wet

NEW YORK (UPI) — American ingenuity came to the front when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on his recent visit here took a swipe at the United States because it had no "barzhom," a mineral water popular in Russia.

Edward P. Schinman, a chemical entineer and president of Bogue Electric Manufacturing Co., succeeded in duplicating the product and offered Khrushchev all the barzhom he wanted.

"It was just another way of demonstrating to him that here again is an example of how he tends to underestimate the resources of this country," Schinman said.

THIS IS THE STORY OF TEMPLE DRAKE

...who sank into degradation and rose to seek redemption at the hands of the woman her silence had condemned to the gallows...

...of CANDY MAN, her Creole lover, who first lit the fires that smouldered within her and taught her the ways of evil...

...of GOVERNOR DRAKE, her father, who had never heard the truth from his daughter, and when at last he did, it was too late...

...of GOWAN, her husband, whose weakness nearly destroyed them all, who had to learn to face the truth that alone could set them free...

...and of NANCY, who laid down her life that those who lived might find salvation.

'Ben-Hur' Gets Highest Honors

The world's most honored motion picture!

Six little words. Used together, they've become synonymous with "Ben-Hur," now showing at the Jim Theatre.

No film in the history of Hollywood has been on the receiving end of so many awards and honors as has Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular production, based on Gen. Lew Wallace's famous novel.

And the end is scarcely in sight. It's entirely probable that many years from now, after it has been exhibited throughout the world, "Ben - Hur" still will be gathering the medals, plaques and statuettes that have been coming its way almost since it was first shown to the public.

As most anyone who can read, see or listen knows, "Ben-Hur" galloped to victory in the 1960 Academy Award sweepstakes as dramatically and decisively as does the hero's chariot in the climactic race of the picture. It broke all records by winning eleven of the coveted "Oscars."

ANOTHER MILESTONE

But the ceremony in Hollywood on April 4th at which the Academy Awards were presented actually marked just another milestone along the award - winning path the film has been following.

Just two weeks previously, England's Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Queen Elizabeth, had presented his country's equivalent of an "Oscar" to "Ben - Hur." He is president of the Society of Film and Television Arts, which each year honors the most noteworthy achievements in those fields.

"Ben - Hur" was named "Best film from any source released in Great Britain in 1959," and Jack Hawkins, one of the stars of the production, was there to receive it on behalf of Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer.

The ceremony in London came less than a week after the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, at its annual dinner, had awarded a Golden Globe to the production as "Best Picture of the Year." In addition, this group honored William Wyler as the "Best Director of the Year" and Stephen Boyd, who portrays Messala, as "Best Supporting Actor."

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

Everyone is working hard this week on the current production, "Damn Yankees". Elvie McGehee, the choreographer, has arrived and has been working with the dancers. He announces that he can still use more people, both male and female, in the chorus.

Dave Bingham has been busy this past week, working on the songs. When the production is a finished product, you are going to have a treat in store for you. They are doing a terrific job with the songs and dances.

SCHEDULE

All the committees are busy working out the schedule for the formal opening of the Strauss Playhouse. The new piano has arrived and the chairs for the orchestra have arrived. As soon as we can get a few days of sunshine, the street will be blacktopped. Everyone is eagerly looking forward to the opening — April 12th.

All Little Theatre members were saddened to hear that Judge David I. Garrett has been hospitalized. Judge Garrett has for many years been an ardent supporter of Little Theatre, and you could always see him and Mrs. Garrett among those in the opening night audience.

We are glad to report that he is progressing nicely, and everyone wishes him a speedy recovery.

Among the Little Theatre members who are gadding about the country are the Ted Landbys, who are in Atlanta, visiting their daughter. Landby is a former board member. Frances McHenry has just returned from New Orleans, where she enjoyed a delightful stay.

Drop by the theatre during rehearsals. You will enjoy it, and who knows, we might put you to work!

BORED?

TRY BOWLING!

Bowling is a cure for many things, but particularly boredom. In fact, bowling not only cures boredom, it replaces it with a completely opposite emotion — enthusiasm. Visit any bowling establishment and the first thing you notice is that people are having fun! They're laughing, good-naturedly kidding, and thoroughly enjoying themselves. You cannot be bored in a bowling environment; you can only have fun.

To prove our point, we invite you to be our guest for a free game of bowling. We promise that your indifference will give way to enthusiasm—and your frown will turn to a long-lasting grin.

He's All Wet

NEW YORK (UPI) — American ingenuity came to the front when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on his recent visit here took a swipe at the United States because it had no "barzhom," a mineral water popular in Russia.

Edward P. Schinman, a chemical entineer and president of Dogue Electric Manufacturing Co., succeeded in duplicating the product and offered Khrushchev all the barzhom he wanted.

"It was just another way of demonstrating to him that here again is an example of how he tends to underestimate the resources of this country," Schinman said.

THIS IS THE STORY OF TEMPLE DRAKE

...who sank into degradation and rose to seek redemption at the hands of the woman her silence had condemned to the gallows...

...of CANDY MAN, her Creole lover, who first lit the fires that smouldered within her and taught her the ways of evil...

...of GOVERNOR DRAKE, her father, who had never heard the truth from his daughter, and when at last he did, it was too late...

...of GOWAN, her husband, whose weakness nearly destroyed them all, who had to learn to face the truth that alone could set them free...

...and of NANCY, who laid down her life that those who lived might find salvation.

'Ben-Hur' Gets Highest Honors

The world's most honored motion picture!

Six little words. Used together, they've become synonymous with "Ben-Hur," now showing at the Jim Theatre.

No film in the history of Hollywood has been on the receiving end of so many awards and honors as has Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular production, based on Gen. Lew Wallace's famous novel.

And the end is scarcely in sight. It's entirely probable that many years from now, after it has been exhibited throughout the world, "Ben - Hur" still will be gathering the medals, plaques and statuettes that have been coming its way almost since it was first shown to the public.

As most anyone who can read, see or listen knows, "Ben-Hur" galloped to victory in the 1960 Academy Award sweepstakes as dramatically and decisively as does the hero's chariot in the climactic race of the picture. It broke all records by winning eleven of the coveted "Oscars."

ANOTHER MILESTONE

But the ceremony in Hollywood on April 4th at which the Academy Awards were presented actually marked just another milestone along the award - winning path the film has been following.

Just two weeks previously, England's Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Queen Elizabeth, had presented his country's equivalent of an "Oscar" to "Ben - Hur." He is president of the Society of Film and Television Arts, which each year honors the most noteworthy achievements in those fields.

"Ben - Hur" was named "Best film from any source released in Great Britain in 1959," and Jack Hawkins, one of the stars of the production, was there to receive it on behalf of Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer.

The ceremony in London came less than a week after the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, at its annual dinner, had awarded a Golden Globe to the production as "Best Picture of the Year." In addition, this group honored William Wyler as the "Best Director of the Year" and Stephen Boyd, who portrays Messala, as "Best Supporting Actor."

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

Everyone is working hard this week on the current production, "Damn Yankees". Elvie McGehee, the choreographer, has arrived and has been working with the dancers. He announces that he can still use more people, both male and female, in the chorus.

Dave Bingham has been busy this past week, working on the songs. When the production is a finished product, you are going to have a treat in store for you. They are doing a terrific job with the songs and dances.

SCHEDULE

All the committees are busy working out the schedule for the formal opening of the Strauss Playhouse. The new piano has arrived and the chairs for the orchestra have arrived. As soon as we can get a few days of sunshine, the street will be blacktopped. Everyone is eagerly looking forward to the opening — April 12th.

All Little Theatre members were saddened to hear that Judge David I. Garrett has been hospitalized. Judge Garrett has for many years been an ardent supporter of Little Theatre, and you could always see him and Mrs. Garrett among those in the opening night audience.

We are glad to report that he.. is progressing nicely, and everyone wishes him a speedy recovery.

Among the Little Theatre members who are gadding about the country are the Ted Landhys, who are in Atlanta, visiting their daughter. Landhy is a former board member. Frances McHenry has just returned from New Orleans, where she enjoyed a delightful stay.

Drop by the theatre during rehearsals. You will enjoy it, and who knows, we might put you to work!

Newman Wins Class A Title

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Embry Pickett To Rayville

When Rayville High School went shopping for a football coach to replace retiring Fraser Bailey, the Hornets landed one of Louisiana's most promising athletic tutors.

Embry Picket, an Arkansas product who has made good in Louisiana's coaching profession, is leaving Newellton High School after one year to succeed Coach Bailey, the latter remaining in the Richland parish school system although leaving the coaching field.

Rayville's gain is a blow to Newellton where Pickett took charge September and pulled the Bears from a winless last place finish in district 3-B football the year before to a 5-4-1 record and a strong conference race.

At Rayville, Pickett will inherit [illegible] the leavings of a team that finished fifth in seven-team district 2-A football last year with a 6-5-0 season and a 5-3-0 conference mark.

If he has the success he had in building an 0-9 Newellton club to a 5-4-1 mark in one year, his new conference opponents like Delhi, Tallulah, Ferriday, Winnsboro, Oak Grove, and Farmerville had better watch out. Only state champion Tallulah (24-0), and strong Winnsboro (12-6) and Delhi (13-0) teams were able to beat the Hornets in 2-A games last season.

Pickett, who formerly called Hot Springs, Ark., his home, is a graduate of Arkansas A. and M. with a master's degree from the University of Arkansas. As an athlete, he participated in football, basketball, and baseball.

After two years in submarine service with the navy, he entered the coaching field at Dayton, Tex., in 1952 where he was a junior high coach one year, high school jayvee another season, and two years as varsity line coach.

Then in 1956 he was lured to Louisiana as assistant to Armed Mathews at Mangham High where he spent four seasons as line coach and defensive strategist. He left Mangham last summer for Newellton.

Varsity teams with which he has been connected have posted a 26-year record of 56-22-3 with Denton, 14-6-0 and one district championship; Mangham, 37-12-2, and a state champion, two district titles and a north Louisiana title; and Newellton, 5-4-1 after a 0-9 mark in one year, his 19-9

Other coaching experience includes seven years basketball, two years baseball, and two years as an assistant track coach.

Pickett's wife is the former Lela Barrett of Wilmot, Ark. They have three sons — David, 7 years; Mark, 5; and John, 3. They're members of the Baptist Church.

The departure of Russell Rainbolt to accept a mathematics scholarship for advanced study at a North Carolina school leaves an opening for an assistant at Rayville. Pickett will probably make this choice, with school approval, later this year.

In the meantime, Newellton will be seeking a new coach, and offers a challenge to some young coach with a keen desire to work with young athletes, plus getting in some hunting and fishing. Johnny Johnson, a former Newellton coach now at El Dorado, Ark., once told us he really hated to leave Newellton because "I miss all those fine people, and the excellent hunting and fishing."

Some Short Shots

The Monroe Lions Club has been doing a smart business in advanced ticket sales for the Floyd Patterson - Ingemar Johansson world's heavyweight championship fight to be produced alive on the big screen via closed circuit television at Neville High School Auditorium here tomorrow night. Net proceeds of the fight party here are dedicated to futhering construction of a summer camp for Louisiana crippled children on Lake Anacoco near Leesville. Ducats here are going for $4.75, tax included.

Mrs. Lou Dean Stroud, coach of the state champion Lake Providence High School girls' basketball team will have only sophomore Shirley Johnson back next year from the starting lineup that made it two Class B titles in a row for LPHS Friday night. Departing seniors are Betty Lou Johnson, sister of Shirley; Geneva Fortenbeery, Betty Jane Sanders, and the sisters Janice and John Clements. One hundred 18 LPHS students and 11 teachers Friday followed the Panherettes to Mount Herman to see them win, 55-41 to end perfect season.

There's been so much donkey basketball going on over the state, that the Louisiana High School Athletic Association has been asked for a ruling on whether or not high school athletes playing the burro game might not be endangering their athletic eligibility.

Commissioner T. H. Waters has ruled that donkey basketball is not classified as a sport and therefore would have no bearing on a student's eligibility. Thus, the athletes can participate in the comic routine and still keep in the good graces of the athletic association.

Heavy rains last Sunday afternoon spoiled season opening shooting of skeet and trap enthusiasts for Pine Hills Gun Club at Bancroft's Camp, but with good weather, the shotgun enthusiasts expect to be blasting away at the clay targets today. Shooting starts at 2 p.m.

Athens Nips Eros 50-45 For C Title

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Athen's powerful Trojans pushed to the final buzzer by cool, calm and deliberate Eros, held on in the final seconds, here yesterday for a 50-45 victory and the Class C state championship.

The game took pretty much the same form as that played by the two teams in the finals of the Class C Regional tournament, with the Trojans jumping off to a lead as big as 32-22 in the third quarter and watching it wilt away before the long jump shots of the Panther's Robert Crowe and the inside work of Alton Spillers, David McManus and Eugene Harper.

The big man on the court as usual was steady scoring Don Henry of Athens, who hit shots from all over the court in racking up 24 points to lead all scorers.

Henry, an All-State jun or guard, and Ricky Spurlock, who got 13 for the winners, passed the champs into a 20-19 lead with 3:24 left in the half and the Trojan's Dwight Carpenter and Gaylon Chandler began a rebounding spree that enabled Athens to pull ahead 32-22 at intermission.

Eros came back in their rallying style in the third quarters as Robert Crowe, who notched 16 points for the Panthers, peppered the net from outside and big Eugene Harper hit well from the side to cut Athen's lead down to 37-35 at the end of the quarter and set the stage for a roaring fourth period battle.

Harper, McManus and Spillers, who hit 11 for Eros, held an early fourth quarter rebounding edge that helped Eros pull even with Athens at 41-41 with 4:10 left and at 45-45 with a minute left, but the Panthers could never grab the lead.

Eros lost its chance for victory when Athens picked up a vital rebound with only seconds remaining and the Trojans ahead by two points.

Don Henry sewed up Athen's 40th and biggest victory of all in the last seconds by scoring on a drive and two free throws to make it 50-45.

Greenies Nudge By Irish 63-57

By JERRY HARKNESS
World Sports Writer

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Newman's big and fast Greenies piled up a wide lead on St. Matthews last night and fought off a furious Irish rally in the last two minutes of the game to cop their 30th straight win and down the defending State Champs 63-57 in the Class A finals here last night.

St. Matthew's made its big move with less than a minute to go in the game as Victor Zagone popped a long jump shot and Charles Biggar got a big field goal underneath to cut an eight point Greenie lead to 61-57, but the breaks wouldn't come.

Newman got the ball and held it, then cashed in on St. Matthew's desperate attempt to gain control by drawing a foul.

Sid Steiner hit two free throws for Newman to close out the scoring.

The Fighting Irish of Jim Mahoney, a whale of a ball team and a whale of a coach, missed their second straight State title by the slim margin of six points as the Greenies couldn't do anything wrong and St. Matthew's never got their attack out of low gear.

St. Matthew's, with only John Varino and Charles Biggar fighting a host of big Greenies on the boards, lost out on rebounding for the most part and Newman rained in points from all angles.

John Varino led St. Matthew's in scoring with 28 points, high for the game, and Buddy Embannato popped in 12, trying desperately to cut the Greenie lead late in the show.

The Greenies had three men in the double figure department as Dick Buckman got 17, Allen Goodman and Coleman Aldler 11 each.

All three hit with accuracy from the floor and the foul line to keep St. Matthew's in the hole.

The Irish couldn't get rid of the jitters in the first quarter, and their usual net popping skill was missing. Varino tied the score 13-13 on two charity tosses with 2:24 left in the first period, but the Greenies had a fast moving offense and broke men open for easy jump shots.

Buckman got two free throws, Goodman got one, while Brown and Adler each scored on jump shots before the Irish could get back in the game.

The defending champs of 1960 found themselves behind 20-13 in the closing minutes of the first quarter.

Three foul shots by Buddy Embannato cut the Newman lead to 20-16 starting the second period.

The Greenies stepped up the pace to an even faster tempo and Speiner and Goodman pushed the winners out ahead 32-26 at intermission.

The third quarter found the Irish falling steadily behind as Newman shot wild outside shots and hit almost all of them. The Greenies led by 45-34 going into the last quarter.

Varino scored well on his turnaround jump shots and pulled the Irish into close range with Newman more than once in the last period, but it was give and take most of the way.

Varino went down with a hurt leg in the middle of St. Matthew's last ditch effort and time ran out.

St. Matthew's gained its final berth by dumping DeQuincy 40-32 in the State semifinals.

Northeast Cindermen Win Three-Way Thinclad Meet

Northeast's trackmen, third place winners in their opening three meets this spring, broke their jinx and won a three-team against Louisiana Tech, and McNeese here yesterday afternoon.

Coach Bob Groseclose's Indians scored 90 points to 74 for Tech and 17 for McNeese, in the cinder frolic that saw two GSC records fall by the wayside.

Both marks were eclipsed by weight man Hoy Rogers. The mark — setting Rogers slipped past the existing 51'5¼ shot put standard with a 51'5 ⅝ throw then put his own 1960 Gulf States discus record of 157'6 to shame with a Gargantuan heave of 171'4 ⅞.

Northeast copped firsts in the mile and two mile runs, the 4:40 and mile relay, 4:40 yard dash and 220 yard hurdles plus the discus, shot put, pole vault and broad jump in compiling their score.

Tech, which made a strong fight, and led throughout the early scoring finished number one in the 100,220 and 8:80 dashes, the 120 high hurdles, 8:80 relay, high jump and javelin.

Buddy Eiland, the Indians great distance runner and Rogers led the winning thinclads with two firsts apiece.

In fact Northeast did not notch a first until Eiland cut loose on a 4:18.5 mile run in the fourth race. His time on the two mile event was 9:44.8.

Pacing the Bulldogs was the invaluable Pat Garrett who won the 100 in 10"0 and the 220 in 22.3 while contributing heavily in Tech's relay effort.

Canine grid star Max Howard took the 120 high hurdles with a 16.2 run and tied for second in the high jump.

Wayne Melton took the bar-leaping for Tech jumping 6'0".

Northeast's 4:40 relay team of Jim Glass, John Baker, Randall Walker, and Jim Mouser swept home first in 42.7.

Walker gave the Tribe the 440 dash in 46.7 and Owen Owen the 220 low hurdles in 26.1.

Tech's surprising 8:80 relay quartet of Garrett, Shows, Albritton and Davis won that one hopes, placing first in the 880 with 1:57.3 and Joe Cage tossed the javelin 204' 5½ to win that one.

Northeast's John Pennel chopped up the pole vault competition soaring 13 even while Owen Owen went horizontally for the broad jump win with 21:9 ¾.

The Glass, Baker, Mouser, and Walker team weren't even pressed in running off with mile relay honors in 3:27:4.

McNeese, running without their fleet English distance man Fred Norris, could do no better than finish second in the 100, 880, and 220.

120 — High Hurdles — Howard, La. Tech, 16.2; Owen, Northeast; and Keisling, McNeese.
High Jump — Melton, La. Tech, 6'0"; tie between Howard, Tech, and Williams, Northeast; tie between Cupeland, Northeast, and Adams, Tech.
100 Yard Dash — Garrett, La. Tech, 10.0; Dabbs, McNeese; Goldsmith, Northeast; Mathis, La. Tech.
Mile Run — Eiland, Northeast, 4:18.5; Hays, La. Tech; Abott, Northeast; Williand, Northeast.
4:40 relay — Northeast, 42.7; La. Tech.
McNeese, Discus — Rogers, Northeast, 171.4 (New GSC record).
440 Dash — Walker, Northeast, 48.7; Mouser, Northeast; Baker, Northeast; Baker, La. Tech.
220 Low Hurdles — Owen, Northeast, 26.1; Sim, La. Tech; Hardin, Northeast; Askwe, McNeese.
880 Relay — Tech, 1:29.8; Northeast, McNeese. Shot Put — Rogers, Northeast, 51.5 ⅜ (New GSC record).

Ruston Stomps Devils For AA

63-44

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) Ruston ran Natchitoches wide open for four quarters last night and spanked the Red Devils 63-44 to win the Class AA State Championship.

It was a rough game with plenty of contact and Ruston carried the battle to the losers all the way, getting the best of the rebounding and the best of the shooting to claim the state crown.

Charles Shuffield, the main cog in Ruston's rebounding machine also led the Bearkats in scoring with 29 points. Big Jerry Hood sank 14 for the winners and tall Robert Bretz hit for 12.

The top Red Devils offensively, were Ken Arthur and Bob Metavir with 11 each.

Both teams were sky high for their last big effort of the season but the Bearkats had the speed, height and accuracy, while Natchitoches had to settle for the best they could get from outside and on driving lay-ups.

Ruston came out fighting in the first quarter as Jackie Floyd, Jerry Hood, and Charles Shuffield threw a wide open offense at the Devils and pushed out ahead 10-2 in the early minutes.

Natchitoches, with plenty of spirit themselves, fought back and closed the gap to 14-10.

The Bearkats held on for a 20-10 first quarter lead and held it 35-25 at halftime.

Both the last two quarters belonged to the hustaling Bearkats. Ruston had their lead and they made it stick. Hood and Shuffield paced the winners in the third and fourth periods as they outscored Natchitoches 13-7 in the third and 15-10 in the last.

The win was Ruston's 25th in 27 games.

Baton Rouge Grabs State AAA Crown

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Fast-stepping Braden Beck and big Bill Wilson rocked LaGrange with an early barrage Saturday night and powered fast-breaking Baton Rouge to a 51-44 victory for the state triple-A basketball title.

The 6-8 Wilson was the game's top scorer with 18 points and dominated the backboards. Beck, who took several tumbles in the first half, had 12 points.

Baton Rouge rolledup a 19-13 first period margin and had a 31-20 advantage at halftime. With Wilson spearheading the attack, Baton Rouge widened the gap in the last two periods, but sharp shooting by sub Bryan Hirsch of LaGrange prevented a rout.

With 12 points in a limited performance, Hirsch wound up as second man to Richard Guillory w topped LaGrange with 14 points.

Independent Cage Champs Are Crowned

OGDEN, La. (Special) Franklin All - Stars, Castor, Harrisonburg and Baskin won in their division in the finals last night of the Charles Hawsey Memorial tournament.

Franklin whipped the Frenchies of Monroe 89-67 in the independent girls bracket. Shirley Pierce hit 50 for Franklin while Annette Ford had 25 and Linda Thompson 24 for Frenchies.

Castor nipped Sicily Island 72 - 70 in the boys undergrad grouping. Randall had 20 for Castor and Krause 32 for the Island.

Harrisonburg won a 57-51 girls under grad fray from Baskin with Randall notching 26 for the winners and Jarrett 24 for the losers.

Baskin slammed Franklin Sheriff's Posse 100 - 82 to win the men's independent wreath in the last game. H. T. Gist canned 32 for Baskin and Hawkins 22 for Franklin.

Missouri Spoil Kansas Loop Hopes

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri ruined Kansas' chances of gaining a tie for the Big Eight basketball title Saturday by upsetting the Jayhawks 79-76 in a rough battle that saw two players ejected from the game and many fans battling on the floor.

The game was halted for 10 minutes in the second half after an exchange of blows between Wayne Hightower, Kansas star, and Charlie Henke, Tiger high scorer. Fans streamed on the floor in a tension-packed melee.

After order was restored Hightower and Henke were sent from the game.

The loss was Kansas' fourth in conference play, against 10 victories. The setback gave Kansas State the undisputed title, regardless of the outcome of its game Saturday night with Colorado. Kansas and Kansas State tied for the crown last year.

Kansas started off in the lead but at halftime had fallen back, the Tigers taking a 41-36 advantage. Henke hit four straight baskets in the last minute and 45 seconds of the first half to give the Tigers their lead.

The second half was only five minutes gone when Hightower scored a layup for Kansas. Henke was driving in at the time and there was contact. Hightower swung at Henke, and Henke swung back. Both benches emptied onto the floor and then the spectators rushed into the battle.

It took officers and officials about four minutes to break up the fight.

The battle began as Missouri was leading 48-44.

After the battle, Missouri began pulling away and at one time had a 12-point lead. In the final minutes Kansas closed the lead and trimmed it to three points.

Ringgold Claims Class B Honors

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) Mighty Ringgold, top team in North Louisiana, used its towering height and the record breaking scoring of accurate Barrie Haynie to plaster Lawtell's game Eagles, 72-59 in the Class B State Finals yesterday.

The difference in the game was the rebounding and scoring power of the 6'5 Haynie, who broke the Hirsch Auditorium scoring record with 38 points, and the clutch shooting of 6'4 Billy Ray, who added 24 markers to the Redskin's side.

The Redskins found themselves in a 10-3 hole early in the opening period but got hot enough to score 10 straight points on the short and scrappy Eagles and gain a 13-10 lead with 3:23 left in the opening period.

From that point Bob Corley's "Skins" were never hard pressed as they hung-up their 15th win in 47 games and notched their second straight state crown.

Lawtell used its only weapons, the outside shot and fast break, but with unstoppable Haynie scoring from close in the best they could do was stay in the game.

The Eagles were hot in the first quarter and trailed Ringgold by only two points, to start the second frame, but Ray's outside jump shot and Haynie's lay-ups increased it to 38-24 at halftime.

Aubrey Bourgeoius was top man in the Eagle attack with 21 points and Arthur Latiolais tallied 20 markers with his outside jumpers.

It was Bourgeouis and Latiolais who sparked Lawtell's drive in the fourth quarter that pulled the Eagles to within nine points on three different occasions, but Haynie was always there to pad the Redskin lead. Bob Corley's crew eased down the stretch in the last minute to nail down their 13 point victory..

Villanova Goes Into Lead In Defending Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champion Villanova shot into a commanding lead with 23 points after seven events in the IC4A Track and Field Championships before a crowd of 10,727 at Madison Square Garden.

Billy Joe, Frank Budd and Leon Pras were the big scorers for Jumbo Jim Elliott's Wildcats. Yale was trailing with 14 points.

Joe won the shot put with a toss of 54 feet 6¼ inches and he was followed by teammate Gerry Dunini, who finished with a flip at 54-3½.

Budd, the defending champion in the 60-yard dash whipped to a record tying victory in 6.1 seconds while Pras, the favorite, won the 60-yard high hurdles in :07.4, which also equaled the meet record.

Paul Drayton picked up two more points for Villanova by finishing third in the dash and Charles Hammock got another bonus point for Elliott's crew with a fifth in the hurdles.

Yale, the favorite, made its first big splash in the 1,000 when Tommy Carroll, last year's winner, hit the finish in 2:10.7, beating Art Evans of Manhattan by about 5 yards.

The Elis also pulled down seven points in the 60-yard hurdles. Jay Luck finished right behind Pras, while Bill Flippin, another Eli, was third.

Southwestern Spring Grid Work Stops

LAFAYETTE, La. (Special) — Spring football practice for the University of Southwestern Louisiana gridmen will come to a close next Friday night when the annual intrasquad game is staged here in McNaspy Stadium.

Hampered the past four weeks by rainy weather, head coach Russ Faulkinberry and his staff are initiating a vast rebuilding program. Only 15 lettermen can be counted among the 55 candidates, and this small group consists of six backs and nine linemen.

Missing from the training sessions are 21 lettermen, including seven starters on the 1960 lineup. The departed regulars are quarterback Danny Bridges, fullback Dan Mastrean, guards Morris Elder and Jerry Allen, tackles Tony Ledet and Rouce Whittington, and end Jerry King.

The list of absentees reveals six four-year lettermen: Ledet; left half Steve Gossen; center Richard Machen; tackle Walter Janoe; and ends Gerald Kapp and Richard Coffey. Gossen was the team captain last fall, while Ledet, Elder and King divided alternate captain honors.

Guard Melvin Joseph; tackles L. J. Poimboeuf, Irwin Sibille, Hugh Verlander and Howard McCann; and ends Bob Berlander, Fletcher Senge, and Cliff O'Neal.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Embry Pickett To Rayville

When Rayville High School went shopping for a football coach to replace retiring Fraser Bailey, the Hornets landed one of Louisiana's most promising athletic tutors.

Embry Picket, an Arkansas product who has made good in Louisiana's coaching profession, is leaving Newellton High School after one year to succeed Coach Bailey, the latter remaining in the Richland parish school system although leaving the coaching field.

Rayyville's gain is a blow to Newellton where Pickett took charge September and pulled the Bears from a winless last place finish in district 3-B football the year before to a 5-4-1 record and a strong conference race.

At Rayville, Pickett will inherit the leavings of a team that finished fifth in seven-team district 2-A football last year with a 6-5-0 full season and a 3-3-0 conference mark.

If he has the success he had in building an 0-0-9 Newellton club to a 5-4-1 mark in one year, his new conference opponents like Delhi, Tallulah, Ferriday, Winnsboro, Oak Grove, and Farmerville had better watch out. Only state champion Tallulah (24-0), and strong Winnsboro (12-6) and Delhi (13-0) teams were able to beat the Hornets in 2-A games last season.

Pickett, who formerly called Hot Springs, Ark., his home, is a graduate of Arkansas A. and M. with a master's degree from the University of Arkansas. As an athlete, he participated in football, basketball, and baseball.

After two years in submarine service with the navy, he entered the coaching field at Dayton, Tex., in 1952 where he was a junior high coach one year, high school jayvee another season, and two years as varsity line coach.

Then in 1956 he was lured to Louisiana as assistant to Armed Mathews at Mangham High where he spent four seasons as line coach and defensive strategist. He left Mangham last summer for Newellton.

Varsity teams with which he has been connected have posted a seven-year record of 56-22-3 with Denton, 14-6-0 and one district champion; Mangham, 37-12-2, and a state champion, two district titles and a north Louisiana title; and Newellton, 5-4-1 after a winless 1959.

Other coaching experience includes seven years basketball, two years baseball, and two years as an assistant track coach.

Pickett's wife is the former Lela Barrett of Wilmot, Ark. They have three sons — David, 7 years; Mark, 5; and John, 3. They're members of the Baptist Church.

The departure of Russell Rainbolt to accept a mathematics scholarship for advanced study at a North Carolina school leaves an opening for an assistant at Rayville. Pickett will probably make this choice, with school approval, later this year.

In the meantime, Newellton will be seeking a new coach, and offers a challenge to some young coach with a keen desire to work with young athletes, plus getting in some hunting and fishing. Johnny Johnson, a former Newellton coach now at El Dorado, Ark., once told us he really hated to leave Newellton because "I miss all those fine people, and the excellent hunting and fishing."

Some Short Shots

The Monroe Lions Club has been doing a smart business in advanced ticket sales for the Floyd Patterson - Ingemar Johansson world's heavyweight championship fight to be produced alive on the big screen via closed circuit television at Neville High School Auditorium here tomorrow night. Net proceeds of the fight party here are dedicated to futhering construction of a summer camp for Louisiana crippled children on Lake Anacoco near Leesville. Ducats here are going for $4.75, tax included.

Mrs. Lou Dean Stroud, coach of the state champion Lake Providence High School girls' basketball team will have only sophomore Shirley Johnson back next year from the starting lineup that made it two Class B titles in a row for LPHS Friday night. Departing seniors are Betty Lou Johnson, sister of Shirley; Geneva Fortenbeery, Betty Jane Sanders, and the sisters Janice and John Clements. One hundred and 18 LPHS students and 11 teachers Friday followed the Panherettes to Mount Herman to see them win, 55-41 to end perfect season.

There's been so much donkey basketball going on over the state, that the Louisiana High School Athletic Association has been asked for a ruling on whether or not high school athletes playing the burro game might not be endangering their athletic eligibility.

Commissioner T. H. Waters has ruled that donkey basketball is not classified as a sport and therefore would have no bearing on a student's eligibility. Thus, the athletes can participate in the comic routine and still keep in the good graces of the athletic association.

Heavy rains last Sunday afternoon spoiled season opening shooting of skeet and trap enthusiasts for Pine Hills Gun Club at Bancroft's Camp, but with good weather, the shotgun enthusiasts expect to be blasting away at the clay targets today. Shooting starts at 2 p.m.

Athens Nips Eros 50-45 For C Title

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Athen's powerful Trojans, pushed to the final buzzer by cool, calm and deliberate Eros, held on in the final seconds here yesterday for a 50-45 victory and the Class C state championship.

The game took pretty much the same form as that played by the two teams in the finals of the Class C Regional tournament, with the Trojans jumping off to a lead as big as 32-22 in the third quarter and watching it wilt away before the long jump shots of the Panther's Robert Crowe and the inside work of Alton Spillers, David McManus and Eugene Harper.

The big man on the court as usual was steady scoring Don Henry of Athens who hit shots from all over the court in racking up 24 points to lead all scorers.

Henry, an All-State junior guard, and Ricky Spurlock, who got 14 for the winners, pushed the champs into a 20-19 lead with 3:24 left in the half and the Trojan's Dwight Carpenter and Gaylon Chandler began a rebounding spree that enabled Athens to pull ahead 32-22 at intermission.

Eros came back in their rallying style in the third quarters as Robert Crowe, who notched 16 points for the Panthers, peppered the net from outside and big Eugene Harper hit well from the side to cut Athen's lead down to 37-35 at the end of the quarter and set the stage for a roaring fourth period battle.

Harper, McManus and Spillers, who hit 11 for Eros, held an early fourth quarter rebounding edge that helped Eros pull even with Athens at 41-41 with 4:10 left and at 45-45 with a minute left, but the Panthers could never grab the lead.

Eros lost its chance for victory when Athens picked up a vital rebound with only seconds remaining and the Trojans ahead by two points.

Don Henry sewed up Athen's 40th and biggest victory of all in the last seconds by scoring on a drive and two free throws to make it 50-45.

Northeast Cindermen Win Three-Way Thinclad Meet

Northeast's trackmen, third place winners in their opening three meets this spring, broke their jinx and won a three-team against Louisiana Tech and McNeese here yesterday afternoon.

Coach Bob Groseclose's Indians scored 90 points to 74 for Tech and 17 for McNeese, in the cinder frolic that saw two GSC records fall by the wayside.

Both marks were eclipsed by weight man Hoy Rogers. The mark — setting Rogers slipped past the existing 51'5¼ shot put standard with a 51'5 ⅜ throw then put his own 1960 Gulf States discus record of 157'6 to shame with a Gargantuan heave of 171'4 ⅜.

Northeast copped firsts in the mile and two mile runs, the 4:40 and mile relay, 4:40 yard dash and 220 yard hurdles plus the discus, shot put, pole vault and broad jump in compiling their score.

Tech, which made a strong fight, and led throughout the early scoring finished number one in the 100,220 and 8:80 dashes, the 120 high hurdles, 8:80 relay, high jump and javelin.

Buddy Eiland, the Indians great distance runner and Rogers led the winning thinclads with two firsts apiece.

In fact Northeast did not notch a first until Eiland cut loose on a 4:18.5 mile run in the fourth race. His time on the two mile event was 9:44.8.

Pacing the Bulldogs was the invaluable Pat Garrett who won the 100 in 10"0 and the 220 in 22.3 while contributing heavily in Tech's relay effort.

Canine grid star Max Howard took the 120 high hurdles with a 16.2 run and tied for second in the high jump.

Wayne Melton took the barleaping for Tech jumping 6'0".

Northeast's 4:40 relay team of Jim Glass, John Baker, Randall Walker, and Jim Mouser swept home first in 42.7.

Walker gave the Tribe the 440 dash in 48.7 and Owen Owen the 220 low hurdles in 26.1.

Tech's surprising 8:80 relay quartet of Garrett, Shows, Albritton and Davis won that one hopes, placing first in the 880 with 1:57.3 and Joe Cage tossed the javelin 204' 5½ to win that one.

Northeast's John Pennel chopped up the pole vault competition soaring 13 even while Owen Owen went horizontally for the broad jump win with 21:9 ¾.

The Glass, Baker, Mouser, and Walker team weren't even pressed in running off with mile relay honors in 3:27:4.

McNeese, running without their fleet English distance man Fred Norris, could do no better thas finish second in the 100, 880, and 220.

Ruston Stomps Devils For AA

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) Ruston ran Natchitoches wide open for four quarters last night and spanked the Red Devils 63-44 to win the Class AA State Championship.

It was a rough game with plenty of contact and Ruston carried the battle to the losers all the way, getting the best of the rebounding and the best of the shooting to claim the state crown.

Charles Shuffield, the main cog in Ruston's rebounding machine also led the Bearkats in scoring with 29 points. Big Jerry Hood sank 14 for the winners and tall Robert Bretz hit for 12.

The top Red Devils offensively, were Ken Arthur and Bob Methvir with 11 each.

Both teams were sky high for their last big effort of the season but the Bearkats had the speed, height and accuracy, while Natchitoches had to settle for the best they could get from outside and on driving lay-ups.

Ruston came out fighting in the first quarter as Jackie Floyd, Jerry Hood, and Charles Shuffield threw a wide open offense at the Devils and pushed out ahead 10-2 in the early minutes.

Natchitoches, with plenty of spirit themselves, fought back and closed the gap to 14-10.

The Bearkats held on for a 20-10 first quarter lead and held it 35-25 at halftime.

Both the last two quarters belonged to the hustaling Bearkats. Ruston had their lead and they made it stick. Hood and Shuffield paced the winners in the third and fourth periods as they outscored Natchitoches 13-7 in the third and 15-10 in the last.

The win was Ruston's 25th in 27 games.

Greenies Nudge By Irish 63-57

By JERRY HARKNESS
World Sports Writer

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Newman's big and fast Greenies piled up a wide lead on St. Matthews last night and fought off a furious Irish rally in the last two minutes of the game to cop their 30th straight win and down the defending State Champs 63-57 in the Class A finals here last night.

St. Matthew's made its big move with less than a minute to go in the game as Victor Zagone popped a long jump shot and Charles Biggar got a big field goal underneath to cut an eight point Greenie lead to 61-57, but the breaks wouldn't come.

Newman got the ball and held it, then cashed in on St. Matthew's desperate attempt to gain control by drawing a foul.

Sid Steiner hit two free throws for Newman to close out the scoring.

The Fighting Irish of Jim Mahoney, a whale of a ball team and a whale of a coach, missed their second straight State title by the slim margin of six points as the Greenies couldn't do anything wrong and St. Matthew's never got their attack out of low gear.

St. Matthew's, with only John Varino and Charles Biggar fighting a host of big Greenies on the boards, lost out on rebounding for the most part and Newman rained in points from all angles.

John Varino led St. Matthew's in scoring with 28 points, high for the game, and Buddy Embannato popped in 12, trying desperately to cut the Greenie lead late in the show.

The Greenies had three men in the double figure department as Dick Buckman got 17, Allen Goodman and Coleman Aldler 11 each.

All three hit with accuracy from the floor and the foul line to keep St. Matthew's in the hole.

The Irish couldn't get rid of the jitters in the first quarter, and their usual net popping skill was missing. Varino tied the score 13-13 on two charity tosses with 2:24 left in the first period, but the Greenies had a fast moving offense and broke men open for easy jump shots.

Buckman got two free throws, Goodman got one, while Brown and Adler each scored on jump shots before the Irish could get back in the game.

The defending champs of 1960 found themselves behind 20-13 in the closing minutes of the first quarter.

Three foul shots by Buddy Embannato cut the Newman lead to 20-16 starting the second period.

The Greenies stepped up the pace to an even faster tempo and Speiner and Goodman pushed the winners out ahead 32-26 at intermission.

The third quarter found the Irish falling steadily behind as Newman shot wild outside shots and hit almost all of them. The Greenies led by 45-34 going into the last quarter.

Varino scored well on his turnaround jump shots and pulled the Irish into close range with Newman more than once in the last period, but it was give and take most of the way.

Varino went down with a hurt leg in the middle of St. Matthew's last ditch effort and time ran out.

St. Matthew's gained its final berth by dumping DeQuincy 40-32 in the State semifinals.

BEATS LAWTELL 72-59

Ringgold Claims Class B Honors

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) Mighty Ringgold, top team in North Louisiana, used its towering height and the record breaking scoring of accurate Barrie Haynie to plaster Lawtell's game Eagles, 72-59 in the Class B State Finals yesterday.

The difference in the game was the rebounding and scoring power of the 6'5 Haynie, who broke the Hirsch Auditorium scoring record with 38 points, and the clutch shooting of 6'4 Billy Ray, who added 24 markers to the Redskin's side.

The Redskins found themselves in a 10-3 hole early in the opening period but got hot enough to score 10 straight points on the short and scrappy Eagles and gain a 13-10 lead with 3:23 left in the opening period.

From that point Bob Corley's "Skins" were never hard pressed as they hung-up their 45th win in 47 games and notched their second straight state crown.

Lawtell used its only weapons, the outside shot and fast break, but with unstoppable Haynie scoring from close in the best they could do was stay in the game.

The Eagles were hot in the first quarter and trailed Ringgold by only two points, to start the second frame, but Ray's outside jump shot and Haynie's lay-ups increased it to 38-24 at halftime.

Aubrey Bourgeoius was top man in the Eagle attack with 21 points and Arthur Latiolais tallied 20 markers with his outside jumpers.

It was Bourgeouis and Latiolais who sparked Lawtell's drive in the fourth quarter that pulled the Eagles to within nine points on three different occasions, but Haynie was always there to pad the Redskin lead. Bob Corley's crew eased down the stretch in the last minute to nail down their 13 point victory..

Villanova Goes Into Lead In Defending Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champion Villanova shot into a commanding lead with 23 points after seven events in the IC4A Track and Field Championships before a crowd of 10,727 at Madison Square Garden.

Billy Joe, Frank Budd and Leon Pras were the big scorers for Jumbo Jim Elliott's Wildcats. Yale was trailing with 14 points.

Joe won the shot put with a toss of 54 feet 6¼ inches and he was followed by teammate Gerry Donini, who finished with a flip of 54-3½.

Budd, the defending champion in the 60-yard dash whipped to a record tying victory in 6.1 seconds while Pras, the favorite, won the 60-yard high hurdles in :07.4, which also equaled the meet record.

Paul Drayton picked up two more points for Villanova by finishing third in the dash and Charles Hammock got another bonus point for Elliott's crew with a fifth in the hurdles.

Yale, the favorite, made its first big splash in the 1,000 when Tommy Carroll, last year's winner, hit the finish in 2:10.7, beating Art Evans of Manhattan by about 5 yards.

The Elis also pulled down seven points in the 60-yard hurdles. Jay Luck finished right behind Pras, while Bill Flippin, another Eli, was third.

Southwestern Spring Grid Work Stops

LAFAYETTE, La. (Special) — Spring football practice for the University of Southwestern Louisiana gridmen will come to a close next Friday night when the annual intrasquad game is staged here in McNaspy Stadium.

Hampered the past four weeks by rainy weather, head coach Russ Faulkinberry and his staff are initiating a vast rebuilding program. Only 15 lettermen can be counted among the 55 candidates, and this small group consists of six backs and nine linemen.

Missing from the training sessions are 21 lettermen, including seven starters on the 1960 lineup. The departed regulars are quarterback Danny Bridges, fullback Dan Mastrean, guards Morris Elder and Jerry Allen, tackles Tony Ledet and Rouce Whittington, and end Jerry King.

The list of absentees reveals six four-year lettermen: Ledet; left half Steve Gossen; center Richard Machen; tackle Walter Janoe; and ends Gerald Kapp and Richard Coffey. Gossen was the team captain last fall, while Ledet, Elder and King divided alternate captain honors.

Guard Melvin Joseph; tackles L. J. Poimboeuf, Irwin Sibille, Hugh Verlander and Howard McCann; and ends Bob Berlander, Fletcher Songe, and Cliff O'Neal.

Baton Rouge Grabs State AAA Crown

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Fast-stepping Braden Beck and big Bill Wilson rocked LaGrange with an early barrage Saturday night and powered fast-breaking Baton Rouge to a 51-44 victory for the state triple-A basketball title.

The 6-8 Wilson was the game's top scorer with 18 points and dominated the backboards. Beck, who took several tumbles in the first half, had 12 points.

Baton Rouge rolledup a 19-13 first period margin and had a 31-20 advantage at halftime. With Wilson spearheading the attack, Baton Rouge widened the gap in the last two periods, but sharp shooting by sub Bryan Hirsch of LaGrange prevented a rout.

With 12 points in a limited performance, Hirsch wound up as second man to Richard Guillory w topped LaGrange with 14 points.

Missouri Spoil Kansas Loop Hopes

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri ruined Kansas' chances of gaining a tie for the Big Eight basketball title Saturday by upsetting the Jayhawks 79-76 in a rough battle that saw two players ejected from the game and many fans battling on the floor.

The game was halted for 10 minutes in the second half after an exchange of blows between Wayne Hightower, Kansas star, and Charlie Henke, Tiger high scorer. Fans streamed on the floor in a tension-packed melee.

After order was restored Hightower and Henke were sent from the game.

The loss was Kansas' fourth in conference play, against 10 victories. The setback gave Kansas State the undisputed title, regardless of the outcome of its game Saturday night with Colorado. Kansas and Kansas State tied for the crown last year.

Kansas started off in the lead but at halftime had fallen back the Tigers taking a 41-36 advantage. Henke hit four straight baskets in the last minute and 4 seconds of the first half to give the Tigers their lead.

The second half was only five minutes gone when Hightower scored a layup for Kansas. Kenk was driving in at the time and there was contact. Hightower swung at Henke, and Henke swung back. Both benches emptied onto the floor and the the spectators rushed into the battle.

It took officers and officials about four minutes to break up the fight.

The battle began as Missouri was leading 48-44.

After the battle, Missouri began pulling away and at one time had a 12-point lead. In the final minutes Kansas closed the lead and trimmed it to three points.

Patterson Holds 30-Minute Drill

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson worked out more than 30 minutes Saturday in his last gym drill for his title defense against Ingemar Johansson Monday night.

The New Yorker punched the rope, shadow boxed and exercised on the floor mat. He ran 2½ miles in the morning.

Floyd broke a speed bag right down the seam with his rapid fire punching. A few days ago he knocked a bag off its moorings.

Patterson said he felt "fine."

"He's in the best shape ever," trainer Dan Florio, said.

Sunday, Patterson will run about a mile in the morning then go to church.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

The New Senators Have A Triumphant Opening

SENATORS

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) —The new Washington Senators made a triumphant debut Saturday, even though their opposition was second-grade, by following the slugging of Marty Keough and Pete Daley to a 7-5 victory over the Kansas City Athletics' "B" team.

Knuckle-baller Tom Sturdivant became the first winning pitcher for the Senators, the new club formed for the nation's capital when the old Senators moved to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Each team bagged 11 hits but seven of the Senator socks were for extra bases. Keough led the assault with a single, double, and triple to drive in three runs. Daley walloped the Senators' first home run, the only homer of the game, in the sixth inning with the bases empty.

There were nine doubles in the free-hitting game, five by Kansas City.

PHILLIES

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies shut out the Milwaukee Braves with five hits, 4-0, in the opener of the Grapefruit League season for both teams Saturday.

Robin Roberts and Frank Sullivan were especially impressive for the Phils. Each pitched three innings. Roberts did not allow a hit or walk, while Sullivan gave up a single in the sixth and a walk in the fifth. The Braves got four of their five safeties off Dallas Green in the last two innings.

CARDINALS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Veteran slugger Ken Boyer slammed a triple, double and single and drove in two runs Saturday as the St. Louis Cardinals opened their grapefruit League exhibition schedule with a 6-1 win over the New York Yankees before 7,084 fans.

Ray Sadecki, Ernie Broglio, Bob Miller and Mel Nelson combined to limit the Yankees to five hits and had a shut-out until one out in the ninth when Tony Kubek pinch-hit a home run.

Miller was forced to leave the game in the ninth when he was hit in the chin by a deflected drive off the bat of Leroy Thomas.

ATHLETICS

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Kansas City drove Dodger ace Don Drysdale to cover with four runs and seven hits in four innings Saturday and went on to defeat Los Angeles, 6-3, in the exhibition opener for both clubs.

Marv Throneberry, Heywood Sullivan and rookie Elwood Huyke each drove in two runs for the A's while Dick Williams collected three hits, including a double.

Dick Hall and Jim Archer blanked the Dodgers for six innings. All three Dodger runs came off Johnny Kucks in the ninth inning.

WHITE SOX

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)— Herb Score, Cal McLish and Frank Baumann combined their efforts for a three-hitter Saturday as the White Sox blanked Cincinnati, 3-0.

Ray Hook and Jim O'Toole matched the shutout hurling of the White Sox for six innings, but Zack Monroe, the one-time Yankee, was rapped for three runs in two innings.

A walk, Bob Roselli's double and an error by Jerry Lynch handed the White Sox a run in the seventh. They pushed over a pair on their own in the eighth when Luis Aparicio, Nellie Fox, Stan Johnson and Roy Sievers singled successively.

PIRATES

MIAMI (UPI) — The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates won their second straight exhibition game Saturday, turning 10 walks into five runs to defeat the Baltimore Orioles, 8-3. All of the damage came off front line Oriole pitchers.

The Bucs accepted three passes from Milt Pappas and turned one of them into a run. Against Jack Fisher they drew four bases on balls with two tallies resulting. Wes Stock gave up three walks and saw two of the Trollers make the circuit.

TIGERS

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers ruined the American Grapefruit League debut of the Minnesota Twins, 4-1, Saturday.

There was only one earned Tiger run until veteran Ray Moore was nicked hard in the eighth inning, the big blow being a triple by young outfielder George Thomas who, ironically, is a Minneapolis boy.

Both managers, Cookie Lavagetto and Bob Scheffing, looked at youngsters. Paul Giel started for the Twins and his own errors led to two runs. He threw wild to first on a pickoff play in the first inning, and issued two walks in the third with successive outs accounting for another tally.

Young southpaw Jim Katt pitched three scoreless innings and Joe Kaiser hurled a runless ninth for Minnesota. Phil Regan gave up the lone twin tally in the ninth on singles by Bob Allison, Dan Dobbek and Rego Bertoia.

CUBS

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Ernie Banks and Ed Bouchee hit home runs on consecutive pitches by Bill Monbouquette in the first inning Saturday to give the Chicago Cubs an easy 3 to 1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the opening game of the Cactus League season.

Banks' homer came behind singles by Bob Will and Don Zimmer.

The Cubs scored another cluster of four runs off Earl Wilson in the fifth on three hits combined with bases on balls.

INDIANS

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Veterans Willie Kirkland and Vic Power drove in two runs apiece Saturday to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 9-1 win over the San Francisco Giants in the first exhibition game of the season.

Jim Perry, who won 18 last year, started for the Indians and allowed only one hit in taree innings. Russ Hieman was the Tribe's winning pitcher. He allowed the Giants to score one run which tied the score in the top of the fifth.

Juan Marichal was the loser.

Winston-Salem Pro Has Lead In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Jim Ferree, bespectacled young pro from Winston-Salem, N.C., will carry a three-stroke lead into the final round of the Jamaica Open Golf Championship.

Ferree fired a 1-under-par 71 on the third round Saturday and increased his lead by one stroke with a 54-hole total of 207.

Don Whitt of Borrego Springs, Calif., shot a third-round 71 and tied veteran Manuel de la Torre of Milwaukee and Bob Watson of Ardsley, N.Y., for second place at 210. Whitt, winner of the Maracaibo and Caracas opens in successive weeks of the Caribbean tour, is the top contender for the over-all trophy.

The Jamaica Open not only is worth $1,200 to the winner, but it is expected to settle the Caribbean championship with a $5,000 extra jackpot, $2,000 of it going to the top point scorer.

Watson, Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., Roberto De Vicenzo, Argentine-born pro from Mexico City, and Milon Marusic of St. Louis turned in scores of 69, the day's best.

Coach Bill Strannigan of Wyoming says he has seen only one basketball player better than North Carolina's Doug Moe, 6-foot-6 senior. "He was Wilt Chamberlain when he played for Kansas," says Strannigan.

U.S. Loses Again In Hockey

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States absorbed its fifth defeat in six starts while the top three teams, Czechoslovakia, Canada and Russia, won their games Saturday in the World Ice Hockey Championships.

The Swedes rallied for four goals in the third period to defeat the Americans 7-3. Czechoslovakia beat East Germany 5-1, Canada downed Finland 12-1 and Russia beat West Germany 11-1.

The results left the surprising Czechs and the Canadians tied for first place with 11 points each. Russia is third with 10. The outcome of the 11-day tournament will be decided Sunday when Canada meets Russia and Czechoslovakia faces Sweden.

The Americans started fast against the Swedes, taking a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Johnny Mayasick of Eveleth, Minn. and Bob Turk, former University of Minnesota star. But Sweden rallied to tie the score 3-3 after two periods before its final drive. Turk also scored a second period goal on a pass from Jack Williams of Duluth, Minn.

The United States and West Germany are the only teams without a victory in the eight-nation group One competition. West Germany has two ties and the Americans one.

RUBBER MATCH

Ingo-Patterson Bout Is Monday

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Champion Floyd Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson meet in their showdown fight for the world heavyweight crown at Convention Hall Monday night at 10:30 p.m. EST, after a knockout apiece in their two previous title bouts.

Although each is a destructive puncher of uncertain ruggedness Patterson of Rockville Centre, N. Y., is favored at 18-5 partially because he became the first man to win back the heavyweight title last une 20 by knocking out Ingemar in the fifth round of their second encounter.

That was a Hall-of-Fame comeback for the lightning left-hooker who had been floored seven times in the third round of their first fight for a technical knockout by Ingemar's right-handed thunderbolts on June 26, 1959.

Like their other two bouts, Monday's "rubber match" is scheduled for 15 rounds; but the betting is at "even money" that it doesn't last more than six rounds, regardless of who wins. And it's 8-1 that it doesn't go the full 15 sessions.

This fight has attracted worldwide attention and drawn sports writers from most American and many foreign cities. Nevertheless, a disappointing crowd of about 10,000 and a gate of less than $500,000 are expected, largely because the bout is being staged at a resort city, far from population centers and too close to the end of its "season."

When Feature Sports, Inc., chose the Miami Beach Convention Hall as the fight-site the FSI officials aimed at a sellout of all 15,952 seats and a gate of $1,100,000 — with tickets ranging from $100 to $20. They were overoptimistic.

But they can't lose money because Bill MacDonald, a Miami Beach sportsman and auto-trailer tycoon, has guaranteed a gross gate of $400,000.

Moreover, Irving B. Kahn, president of Teleprompter Corporation, says this fight will still be the richest in history because of nearly certain receipts of at least $3,700,000 from its "ancillaries"—closed-circuit TV to 100,000 homes on 30 antenna systems, domestic radio, domestic films, foreign films and foreign radio and TV.

Johansson — brown-haired, dimpled, destructive and apparently determined to be the second man to recapture the heavy crown — has gone through the hardest training grind of his career for this title shot.

He sparred 272 rounds at his new home in Genea, Switzerland and at the swanky Sea Breeze Motel in Palm Beach, Fla.

Although 28, his workouts indicated he had changed his style for this fight. Instead of using the upright stance, fast footwork, and long-range flicking with the left glove to make openings for his right, he has been pressing his opponents from a semi-crouch, jabbing them with solid lefts and trying to force them into close-quarter exchanges. Apparently he hopes to blast Patterson with close quarter shots to the body and right uppercuts to the jaw.

Twenty-six-year-old Patterson likewise has polished new weapons here at the plush Deauville Hotel. The square-shouldered, steel spring champion has modified his "peekaboo" stance so that the left shoulder is slightly forward, and he has been concentrating on "repeater" left jabs and straight rights instead of his trusty left hook.

Figuring that Ingo will be watching for the left hook, Floyd apparently plans to set him up with left jabs and knock him out with the right.

Because each has been kayoed by the other, one thing is certain: Neither underestimates the other this time. Each will come into the ring in the best possible condition and "keyed up" — as Floyd puts it—when they square off with the deadly six-ounce gloves.

Should Johansson provide an upset Monday, as he did in the first fight when he was a 5-1 underdog, he will be free to defend against whom he chooses; for there is no return-bout contract with Floyd.

Each fighter gets 25 per cent of the net live gate, and Feature Sports receives 50 per cent. Patterson receives 50 per cent of the promotional portion and the ancillaries; Johansson, 35 per cent. Feature Sports gets 15 per cent. In addition Johansson has the entire Scandinavian rights to radio and films.

Westminister Gets Set For NIT Tourney

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Westminster College of New Wilmington, Pa., beaten in the final last year, appears set for another strong championship bid in the 24 National Intercollegiate (NAIA) Basketball Tournament opening Monday morning.

Coach Buzz Ridl's Titans are top-seeded in the 32-team field on a basis of their team experience and 20-3 season record. In the tournament last year Westminster knocked off top-seeded Tennessee State in the semifinals before losing the championship game to Southwest Texas State. The Titans beat Pittsburgh twice this season, by margins of 25 and 17 points.

Conspicuously absent for only the second time in nine years will be Tennessee State, three-time champion of the small college tournament, beaten 92-82 by Winston-Salem (N.C.) in a district playoff.

Seeded second and heading the lower bracket is Northern Michigan of Marquette. Coach Stan Albeck's Michigan team won 20 games, one of them with Michigan State of the Big Ten, and was beaten by only Bradley and Mankato (Minn.)

The other seeded teams in order are Georgetown (Ky.) (23-8), Oglethorpe (20-3), Anderson (Ind.) (24-3), Steubenville Ohio (16-10), Central Oklahoma (19-6), Whitworth (19-9), Winston-Salem (21-4), Illinois Wesleyan (16-10), Southwest Texas (19-7), Emporia State (17-5), Grambling (27-4), Redlands (26-6), Princess Anne (Md.) State (17-5) and Newberry (S.C.) College (22-7).

Coach Fred Hobby's Grambling Tigers, beaten in the quarterfinals by Southwest Texas last year, were fifth-ranked nationally in the final poll of small college teams. The Tigers had a 27-4 regular season record and drew the 13th-seeded tournament spot.

Among the individual stars are Carl Short of Newberry who has a 26.7-point scoring average, and Cleo Hill of Winston-Salem with a 26.7-point average.

Newberry and Sampson (Texas) College (13-11) will open the tournament at 10:30 a.m., (CST), Monday. There'll be four games daily and nightly through Wednesday. The quarter-finals will be played Thursday night, the semi-finals Friday night and the championship and consolation game Saturday night.

Westminster will make its start in a game with Arkansas State (19-6) at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Northern Michigan will open against Carson-Newman (29-7) at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Southwest Texas State hasn't played up to its championship form of last season, but has 19-7 record and is considered a contender.

The NAIA — National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics — holds its annual convention at this time of the tournament.

The New Senators Have A Triumphant Opening

SENATORS

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) —The new Washington Senators made a triumphant debut Saturday, even though their opposition was second-grade, by following the slugging of Marty Keough and Pete Daley to a 7-5 victory over the Kansas City Athletics' "B" team.

Knuckle-baller Tom Sturdivant became the first winning pitcher for the Senators, the new club formed for the nation's capital when the old Senators moved to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Each team bagged 11 hits but seven of the Senator socks were for extra bases. Keough led the assault with a single, double, and triple to drive in three runs. Daley walloped the Senators' first home run, the only homer of the game, in the sixth inning with the bases empty.

There were nine doubles in the free-hitting game, five by Kansas City.

PHILLIES

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies shut out the Milwaukee Braves with five hits, 4-0, in the opener of the Grapefruit League season for both teams Saturday.

Robin Roberts and Frank Sullivan were especially impressive for the Phils. Each pitched three innings. Roberts did not allow a hit or walk, while Sullivan gave up a single in the sixth and a walk in the fifth. The Braves got four of their five safeties off Dallas Green in the last two innings.

CARDINALS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Veteran slugger Ken Boyer slammed a triple, double and single and drove in two runs Saturday as the St. Louis Cardinals opened their grapefruit League exhibition schedule with a 6-1 win over the New York Yankees before 7,084 fans.

Ray Sadecki, Ernie Broglio, Bob Miller and Mel Nelson combined to limit the Yankees to five hits and had a shut-out until one out in the ninth when Tony Kubek pinch-hit a home run.

Miller was forced to leave the game in the ninth when he was hit in the chin by a deflected drive off the bat of Leroy Thomas.

ATHLETICS

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Kansas City drove Dodger ace Don Drysdale to cover with four runs and seven hits in four innings Saturday and went on to defeat Los Angeles, 6-3, in the exhibition opener for both clubs.

Marv Throneberry, Heywood Sullivan and rookie Elwood Huyke each drove in two runs for the A's while Dick Williams collected three hits, including a double.

Dick Hall and Jim Archer blanked the Dodgers for six innings. All three Dodger runs came off Johnny Kucks in the ninth inning.

WHITE SOX

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)— Herb Score, Cal McLish and Frank Baumann combined their efforts for a three-hitter Saturday as the White Sox blanked Cincinnati, 3-0.

Ray Hook and Jim O'Toole matched the shutout hurling of the White Sox for six innings, but Zack Monroe, the one-time Yankee, was rapped for three runs in two innings.

A walk, Bob Roselli's double and an error by Jerry Lynch handed the White Sox a run in the seventh. They pushed over a pair on their own in the eighth when Luis Aparicio, Nellie Fox, Stan Johnson and Roy Sievers singled successively.

PIRATES

MIAMI (UPI) — The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates won their second straight exhibition game Saturday, turning 10 walks into five runs to defeat the Baltimore Orioles, 8-3. All of the damage came off front line Oriole pitchers.

The Bucs accepted three passes from Milt Pappas and turned one of them into a run. Against Jack Fisher they drew four bases on balls with two tallies resulting. Wes Stock gave up three walks and saw two of the Trollers make the circuit.

TIGERS

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers ruined the American Grapefruit League debut of the Minnesota Twins, 4-1, Saturday.

There was only one earned Tiger run until veteran Ray Moore was nicked hard in the eighth inning, the big blow being a triple by young outfielder George Thomas who, ironically, is a Minneapolis boy.

Both managers, Cookie Lavagetto and Bob Scheffing, looked at youngsters. Paul Giel started for the Twins and his own errors led to two runs. He threw wild to first on a pickoff play in the first inning, and issued two walks in the third with successive outs accounting for another tally.

Young southpaw Jim Katt pitched three scoreless innings and Joe Kaiser hurled a runless ninth for Minnesota. Phil Regan gave up the lone twin tally in the ninth on singles by Bob Allison, Dan Dobbek and Reno Bertoia.

CUBS

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Ernie Banks and Ed Bouchee hit home runs on consecutive pitches by Bill Monbouquette in the first inning Saturday to give the Chicago Cubs an easy 3 to 1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the opening game of the Cactus League season.

Banks' homer came behind singles by Bob Will and Don Zimmer.

The Cubs scored another cluster of four runs off Earl Wilson in the fifth on three hits combined with bases on balls.

INDIANS

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Veterans Willie Kirkland and Vic Power drove in two runs apiece Saturday to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 9-1 win over the San Francisco Giants in the first exhibition game of the season.

Jim Perry, who won 18 last year, started for the Indians and allowed only one hit in three innings. Russ Hieman was the Tribe's winning pitcher. He allowed the Giants to score one run which tied the score in the top of the fifth.

Juan Marichal was the loser.

Winston-Salem Pro Has Lead In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Jim Ferree, bespectacled young pro from Winston-Salem, N.C., will carry a three-stroke lead into the final round of the Jamaica Open Golf Championship.

Ferree fired a 1-under-par 71 on the third round Saturday and increased his lead by one stroke with a 54-hole total of 207.

Don Whitt of Borrego Springs, Calif., shot a third-round 71 and tied veteran Manuel de la Torre of Milwaukee and Bob Watson of Ardsley, N.Y., for second place at 210. Whitt, winner of the Maracaibo and Caracas opens in successive weeks of the Caribbean tour, is the top contender for the over-all trophy.

The Jamaica Open not only is worth $1,200 to the winner, but it is expected to settle the Caribbean championship with a $5,000 extra jackpot, $2,000 of it going to the top point scorer.

Watson, Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., Roberto De Vicenzo, Argentine-born pro from Mexico City, and Milon Marusic of St. Louis turned in scores of 69, the day's best.

Coach Bill Strannigan of Wyoming says he has seen only one basketball player better than North Carolina's Doug Moe, 6-foot-6 senior. "He was Wilt Chamberlain when he played for Kansas," says Strannigan.

U.S. Loses Again In Hockey

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States absorbed its fifth defeat in six starts while the top three teams, Czechoslovakia, Canada and Russia, won their games Saturday in the World Ice Hockey Championships.

The Swedes rallied for four goals in the third period to defeat the Americans 7-3. Czechoslovakia beat East Germany 5-1, Canada downed Finland 12-1 and Russia beat West Germany 11-1.

The results left the surprising Czechs and the Canadians tied for first place with 11 points each. Russia is third with 10. The outcome of the 11-day tournament will be decided Sunday when Canada meets Russia and Czechoslovakia faces Sweden.

The Americans started fast against the Swedes, taking a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Johnny Mayasick of Eveleth, Minn. and Bob Turk, former University of Minnesota star. But Sweden rallied to tie the score 3-3 after two periods before its final drive. Turk also scored a second period goal on a pass from Jack Williams of Duluth, Minn.

The United States and West Germany are the only teams without a victory in the eight-nation group One competition. West Germany has two ties and the Americans one.

Patterson Holds 30-Minute Drill

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson worked out more than 30 minutes Saturday in his last gym drill for his title defense against Ingemar Johansson Monday night.

The New Yorker punched the rope, shadow boxed and exercised on the floor mat. He ran 2½ miles in the morning.

Floyd broke a speed bag right down the seam with his rapid fire punching. A few days ago he knocked a bag off its moorings.

Patterson said he felt "fine."

"He's in the best shape ever," trainer Dan Florio, said.

Sunday, Patterson will run about a mile in the morning then go to church.

RUBBER MATCH

Ingo-Patterson Bout Is Monday

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Champion Floyd Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson meet in their showdown fight for the world heavyweight crown at Convention Hall Monday night at 10:30 p.m. EST, after a knockout apiece in their two previous title bouts.

Although each is a destructive puncher of uncertain ruggedness Patterson of Rockville Centre, N. Y., is favored at 13-5 partially because he became the first man to win back the heavyweight title last une 20 by knocking out Ingemar in the fifth round of their second encounter.

That was a Hall-of-Fame comeback for the lightning left-hooker who had been floored seven times in the third round of their first fight for a technical knockout by Ingemar's right-handed thunderbolts on June 26, 1959.

Like their other two bouts, Monday's "rubber match" is scheduled for 15 rounds; but the betting is at "even money" that it doesn't last more than six rounds, regardless of who wins. And it's 8-1 that it doesn't go the full 15 sessions.

This fight has attracted worldwide attention and drawn sports writers from most American and many foreign cities. Nevertheless, a disappointing crowd of about 10,000 and a gate of less than $500,000 are expected, largely because the bout is being staged at a resort city, far from population centers and too close to the end of its "season."

When Feature Sports, Inc., chose the Miami Beach Convention Hall as the fight-site the FSI officials aimed at a sellout of all 15,952 seats and a gate of $1,100,000 — with tickets ranging from $100 to $20. They were overoptimistic.

But they can't lose money because Bill MacDonald, a Miami Beach sportsman and auto-trailer tycoon, has guaranteed a gross gate of $400,000.

Moreover, Irving B. Kahn, president of Teleprompter Corporation, says this fight will still be the richest in history because of nearly certain receipts of at least $3,700,000 from its "ancillaries"—closed-circuit TV to 100,000 homes on 30 antenna systems, domestic radio, domestic films, foreign films and foreign radio and TV.

Johansson — brown-haired, dimpled, destructive and apparently determined to be the second man to recapture the heavy crown — has gone through the hardest training grind of his career for this title shot.

He sparred 272 rounds at his n w home in Genea, Switzerland and at the swanky Sea Breeze Motel in Palm Beach, Fla.

Although 28, his workouts indicated he had changed his style for this fight. Instead of using the upright stance, fast footwork, and long-range flicking with the left glove to make openings for his right, he has been pressing his opponents from a semi-crouch, jabbing them with solid lefts and trying to force them into close-quarter exchanges. Apparently he hopes to blast Patterson with close quarter shots to the body and right uppercuts to the jaw.

Twenty-six-year-old Patterson likewise has polished new weapons here at the plush Deauville Hotel. The square-shouldered, steel spring champion has modified his "peekaboo" stance so that the left shoulder is slightly forward, and he has been concentrating on "repeater" left jabs and straight rights instead of his trusty left hook.

Figuring that Ingo will be watching for the left hook, Floyd apparently plans to set him up with left jabs and knock him out with the right.

Because each has been kayoed by the other, one thing is certain: Neither underestimates the other this time. Each will come into the ring in the best possible condition and "keyed up" — as Floyd puts it—when they square off with the deadly six-ounce gloves.

Should Johansson provide an upset Monday, as he did in the first fight when he was a 5-1 underdog, he will be free to defend against whom he chooses; for there is no return-bout contract with Floyd.

Each fighter gets 25 per cent of the net live gate, and Feature Sports receives 50 per cent. Patterson receives 50 per cent of the promotional portion and the ancillaries; Johansson, 35 per cent. Feature Sports gets 15 per cent. In addition Johansson has the entire Scandinavian rights to radio and films.

Westminister Gets Set For NIT Tourney

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Westminster College of New Wilmington, Pa., beaten in the final last year, appears set for another strong championship bid in the 24 National Intercollegiate (NAIA) Basketball Tournament opening Monday morning.

Coach Buzz Ridl's Titans are top-seeded in the 32-team field on a basis of their team experience and 20-3 season record. In the tournament last year Westminster knocked off top-seeded Tennessee State in the semifinals before losing the championship game to Southwest Texas State. The Titans beat Pittsburgh twice this season, by margins of 25 and 17 points.

Conspicuously absent for only the second time in nine years will be Tennessee State, three-time champion of the small college tournament, beaten 92-82 by Winston-Salem (N.C.) in a district playoff.

Seeded second and heading the lower bracket is Northern Michigan of Marquette. Coach Stan Albeck's Michigan team won 20 games, one of them with Michigan State of the Big Ten, and was beaten by only Bradley and Mankato (Minn.)

The other seeded teams in order are Georgetown (Ky.) (23-8), Oglethorpe (20-3), Anderson (Ind.) (24-3), Steubenville Ohio (16-10), Central Oklahoma (19-6), Whitworth (19-9), Winston-Salem (24-4), Illinois Wesleyan (16-10), Southwest Texas (19-7), Emporia State (17-5), Grambling (27-4), Redlands (26-6), Princess Anne (Md.) State (17-5) and Newberry (S.C.) College (22-7).

Coach Fred Hobby's Grambling Tigers, beaten in the quarterfinals by Southwest Texas last year, were fifth-ranked nationally in the final poll of small college teams. The Tigers had a 27-4 regular season record and drew the 13th-seeded tournament spot.

Among the individual stars are Carl Short of Newberry who has a 28.7-point scoring average, and Cleo Hill of Winston-Salem with a 26.7-point average.

Newberry and Simpson (Iowa) College (13-11) will open the tournament at 10:30 a.m., (CST), Monday. There'll be four games daily and nightly through Wednesday. The quarter-finals will be played Thursday night, the semifinals Friday night and the championship and consolation game Saturday night.

Westminster will make its start in a game with Arkansas State (19-6) at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Northern Michigan will open against Carson-Newman (29-7) at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Southwest Texas State hasn't played up to its championship form of last season, but has 19-7 record and is considered a contender.

The NAIA — National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics — holds its annual convention at this time of the tournament.

24TH RUNNING

NIT Set To Open This Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Invitation Basketball Tournament, the grandpappy of post-season college basketball, opens its 24th run in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

There is a cast of familiar names, an evenly-matched field of 12 teams who were strong at the finish, and a total absence of major conference champions and teams that were rated near the top of the national heap.

The champions and a good many of the leading independent college teams now are committed to the younger but larger national collegiate (NCAA) championship. This sometimes ranles the NIT sponsors, who had more than a little trouble this year rounding up a dozen worthy representatives for their tournament.

The last of the 12 was to be decided Saturday night in the playoff between the Utah and Colorado State University for the Skyline Conference championship. The NIT gets the loser while the champion goes to the NCAA tournament.

Colorado State U. never has played in the NIT. Utah has appeared in five and won the championship in 1947.

After pondering at length over invitations and seeing a couple of old Garden favorites defect to the NCAA tournament, the NIT selection committee wound up with teams so evenly rated that it didn't try to rank the four chosen for seeding. Dayton and the Utah-Colorado State loser were placed in the quarter-finals in one half of the draw, Memphis State and Niagara in the other half.

The committee also wound up with something of a headache because it passed over Tennessee State, an all-Negro team with a 24-4 season record, mostly in small college circles.

Percy Sutton, a New York lawyer who heads the 10,000-member New York branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, charged that racial prejudice was indicated when Tennessee State was given "a flagrant run-around."

Ken Norton of Manhattan, chairman of the selection committee, replied that Tennessee State was under consideration "right down to the wire" before the committee decided to invite St. Louis, third-place team in the Missouri Valley Conference. St. Louis, NIT winner in 1948 and a contender in nine previous tournaments, was chosen after Bradley, last year's winner, rejected an invitatio.

The tournament schedule:

Thursday (first round) — 7:30 p.m., EST, St. Louis (18-8) vs. Miami (Fla.) (19-6); 9:15 p.m., Holy Cross (18-4) vs. Detroit (13-9).

Saturday (first round) — 2:15 p.m., Temple (19-6) vs. Army (17-6); 4 p.m., DePaul (17-7) vs. Providence (19-5).

Saturday (quarter-finals) — 7:30 p.m., Colorado State or Utah vs. St. Louis-Miami winner; 9:15 p.m. Memphis State (20-2) vs. Holy Cross-Detroit winner.

Tuesday, March 21 (quarter-finals) 7:30 p.m., Dayton (19-7) vs. Temple-Army winner; 9:15 p.m., Niagara (16-4) vs. DePaul-Providence winner.

Thursday, March 23 (night)—Semifinals.

Saturday, March 25 (afternoon)—Consolation game and championship.

The DePaul - Providence game March 18 and the finals March 25 will be televised.

Temple won the first NIT title when the tournament was started in 1938.

Tudor Way Wins By 10 At Appleton

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Argentine-bred Tudor Way romped home a 10-length winner Saturday in the $17,350 Appleton Handicap at gulfstream Park, a prep for next Saturday's $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap.

The gray, 5-year-old son of Tudor Castle had things all his own way in a field of eight in this one and ⅛ mile event before 21,201 people. He went the distance in 1:48 2-5.

All except Better Bee are eligible for the Gulfstream Handicap.

Nickle Boy, coupled with Micarlo as the Elmendorf Stable entry, finished a badly beaten second, a half length in front of Derrici, winner of the Orange Bowl Handicap at Tropical Park earlier in the season.

Tudor Way had confined his racing to springs in previous U.S. appearances, but he proved Saturday he could cover a piece of ground. The Gulfstream Handicap, in which he probably will face the favored Yorky, will be at one and ¼ miles. However, his owner, J. J. D'Augostino, said through an interpreter after the race, "He is in the Gulfstream Handicap, but I will not make up my mind about starting him until I see the weights."

The Argentine horse, ridden by Bill Hartack, was an odds-on favorte and paid $3.70, $2.80 and $2.40.

It was Hartack's third victory of the afternoon. Nickle Boy, with Helidoro Gustines up, paid $5.70 and $3.70. Derrick, a length ahead of Trans-Way, paid $3.60. Micarlo was fifth, followed by Better Bee, Moslem Chief and Bourbon Prince in that order.

Tudor Way, who had won three sprints at Hialeah, took command midway in the second turn and increased his advantage through the stretch.

After the race, Hartack was asked if he thought Tudor Way could beat Yorky and whether he'd like to ride the horse next Saturday. "I don't know whether he can beat Yorky," said Hartack. "Yes, I'd definitely would like to ride him in the Gulfstream. He's a nice horse."

The winner earned a net of $10,350. It was his fourth victory in seven starts this year, all of them in Florida.

Tech Golfers Go After 2nd Straight Win

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech's golfers will be seeking their second straight win Tuesday afternoon when they meet Northwestern State at Natchitoches.

Coach Joe Aillet's team downed Ouachita college 23-4 last Friday.

The remainder of the Tech schedule:

March 21 — University of Southwestern at Lafayette.
March 24 — Centenary college at Shreveport.
April 5 — Centenary at Ruston.
April 8 — Northwestern State at Ruston.
April 12 — Northeast State at Ruston.
April 14 — Mississippi Southern at Hattiesburg.
April 17 — Tulane at New Orleans
April 29 — McNeese State at Ruston.
May 4 — Ouachita College a tArkadelphia, Ark.
May 11-12 — GSC tourney at Monroe.

Since 1951, catcher Clint Courtney has played with five American League clubs. Kansas City will be his sixth stop in the circuit this season.

22ND ANNUAL CONVENTION

State Wildlife Group To Meet Here Next Week

Louisiana sportsmen will meet in Monroe next weekend for the 22nd annual convention of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

About 300 persons are expected to attend the three-day convention at the Virginia Hotel. The Ouachita Wildlife Unit, joined by Northeast Louisiana clubs, will host the convention.

With registration beginning at 2 p.m. Friday, the convention will run through Sunday noon, highlighted by the election of state officers for 1961.

Director L. D. Young of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission will deliver the key address at a banquet Saturday night.

The Louisiana Outdoor Writers Association will meet in conjunction with the conventionaand will name Louisiana's "Outstanding Conservationist" of 1960 at the Saturday night banquet.

A special program for outdoor writers over the state has been planned aside from the federation events.

Sportsmen attending the convention will sit in on numerous panels and discussions, but the chief panel will come Friday night when four top wildlife professionals discuss waterfowl.

Charles Bosch, federation executive secretary, has arranged for the following to participate on the waterfowl symposium:

D. H. Janzen, director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries & Wildlife, U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service; T. L. Kimball, executive director, National Wildlife Federation; Richard Yancey, assistant director, Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission; and E. L. Paynter, director, Wildlife Branch, Department of Natural Resources, Province of Saskatchewan, Canada.

Other panels will be held on quail, deer, conservation education, game preserves and habitat improvement, and game and fish law enforcement.

Co-chairmen of the convention are A. S. Tidwell and Jack Rushing, representing the Ouachita club. Jake Benton and Mrs. Benton of Monroe are co-chairmen of a special entertainment committee for the ladies.

Meantime, Joe L. Herring, former district biologist here and now chief education biologist, of Monroe is in charge of exhibits. Herring said wildlife exhibits would be on display in the hotel lobby.

Features of the convention are talks, including, "Plans and Programs of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission," delivered by Young; "A Progress Report on the F.A.I.R. Program," by Erle Barham of Oak Ridge; and, "Plans and Program of the Commission's Fish & Game Division," J. D. Newsom, chief, Fish & Game Division, Louisiana.

Committee meetings will be held on doves and other migratory birds, fresh and salt water fish, pollution abatement, rabbit and squirrel, and forestry.

Steve Harmon, education chief, will give a special report on National Wildlife Week, which starts Sunday. Harmon is the state co-chairman.

Outdoor writers will be entertained Friday night by Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation and International Paper Co., while an outdoor writers' panel will be held Saturday morning.

With Grits Gresham of Natchitoches as moderator, the panel participants include:

Paul Martin, sports editor, News Star—World; Dan Hardesty, sports editor, State Teimes, Baton Rouge; Harry Arthur, assistant general manager, KNOE-TV; Jimmy Plaisance, manager, KMLB; and Robert Wagner, publisher, the Jena Times.

NEW TEAMS WIN

Majors Have 1st Exhibition Games

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Victories by major league baseball's newest teams, the Los Angeles Angels and Washington Senators, plus the batting of Ernie Banks, Ken Boyer and Larry Osborne featured the first full-scale exhibition program of the 1961 season Saturday.

Shutout efforts by Philadelphia and Chicago White Sox pitchers and a losing debut by the Minnesota Twins also marked the 10-game slate.

The Angels got off on the right foot by defeating a Chicago Cub team 8-3. The Senators downed a Kansas City Athletics' squad 7-5. Banks' three-run homer led another Cubs' unit to an 8-1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Boyer's three runs batted in paced St. Louis to a 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees while Osborne had two doubles and a single to lead Detroit to a 4-1 success over the Twins, moved from Washington to Minneapolis - St. Paul during the winter to complete a 10-team setup in the American League.

Herb Score, Cal McLish and Frank Baumann combined on a three - hitter as the White Sox downed Cincinnati 3-0 and Robin Roberts, Frank Sullivan and Dallas Green limited Milwaukee to five safeties in a 4-0 victory for the Phillies.

In other games, the champion Pittsburgh Pirates walloped Baltimore 8-3, Cleveland routed the San Francisco Giants 9-1 and a second Kansas City team beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3.

Kansas City and the Chicago Cubs split their squads.

Home runs by Ted Kluszewski and Julio Becquer featured a 13-hit attack by the Angels. Jack Harshman was the winning pitcher.

Pete Daley slammed a home run and a double and Marty Keough a triple and a double in Washington's victory as Dick Donovan and Tom Sturdivant pitched well for the Senators.

Banks' homer followed singles by Bob Will and Don Zimmer off the Red Sox' Bill Monbouquette, and Ed Bouchee followed with another home run. Don Cardwell and Glenn Hobbie limited Beston to five hits.

Tony Kubek's pinch homer kept the Yanks from Being shut out. St. Louis tagged Ryne Duren for three runs in the first inning and added another three off Art Ditmar in the sixth. Boyer got his RBI with a triple and a double.

Osborne had to share honors for Detroit with pitchers Bob Bruce and Hank Aguirre, who combined for six shutout innings. Lenn'e Green had two of the Twins' six safeties.

Score, the White Sox' erratic southpaw, walked the first two Reds' batters he faced. He settled down, striking out three and giving up only a single to Vada Pinson in three innings. Baumann worked three perfect innings. McLish yielded doubles to Gordon Coleman and Wally Post while striking out four in his three innings.

Roberts, the Phils' veteran, held Milwaukee hitless in three innings. Philadelphia got the only runs it needed in the sixth on a walk to Bob Sadowski, a single by rookie Ted Savage, a double by Tony Curry and a wild pitch.

Pittsburgh capitalized on 10 walks and three errors to whip Baltimore. Right-handers George Witt, Curt Raydon, Larry Foss and lefty Diomedes Olivo limited the Orioles to four singles.

The Indians pounded Giants' righty Juan Marichal for six runs in the fifth inning to break a 1-1 deadlock. Willie Kirkland and Vic Power each batted in two runs during the uprising.

The other Kansas City squad shelled Dodger ace Don Drysdale for seven hits in four innings. Dick Williams had two singles and a double for the winners. Norm Sherry drove in two Dodger runs with a triple.

A double by catcher Earl Averill in the sixth inning put the Angels ahead to stay. The two-bagger scored Albie Pearson to break a 3-3 tie.

West Monroe Wins 3-Way Track Meet

West Monroe smashed home with 72 2-3's points to win a three - way track meet against Ruston and Jonesboro - Hodge, at Northeast State College yesterday afternoon.

Ruston was second with 47 and Jonesboro third with 30 1-3.

The Rebels took firsts in the broad jump, javelin throw, pole vault, high jump and discus in field events while winning the 880 relay, 100 dash, 440 relay, 880 dash and 220 dash.

Ruston copped the high jump, shot put, 120 high hurdles, 440 dash, and 180 low hurdles while Jonesboro was best in the mile run, and mile relay.

Summary of meet:

Broad Jump — Covington, West Monroe, Peel, Jonesboro - Hodge; Alford, Ruston, 20'3 ¾.

High Jump — Parker, Ruston; Walworth, West Monroe and Hobgood, West Monroe, tie; Oetgen, Jonesboro, 5'7".

Shot Put — Gary, Ruston, Sheppard, West Monroe; Newman, Jonesboro, 44'6 ¾.

Tommy Bolt Takes Slim Lead In Pensacola Golf

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Tommy Bolt of Crystal River, Fla., shot a 4-under-par 68 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead in the third round of the $20,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

The 1958 U.S. Open champion's card after 54 holes was 72-68-68—208. One stroke behind were Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., 72-70-67—209, and Marty Furgol, Le-Mont, Ill., 71-70-68—209.

Four players were bunched at 210. They were Tommy Jacobs, Bermuda Dunes, Calif.; Gay Brewer, Crystal River; Arnold Palmer, Miami, the halfway leader, and big George Bayer, South Pasadena, Calif.

Bolt, playing without a bogey since the 11th hole of the first round, hit 15 greens in his 33-35 round.

Bolt, 41, has picked up $2,999 in seven tournaments this year. He lost in a sudden death playoff at the Tucson Open.

Furgol started his round with a 4-under-par 32 on the first nine, including four birdies. But he drew a double bogey on 16 and bogied 18.

On the other hand, Finsterwald began the round poorly and was 1-over-par through seven holes after a bogey on the fifth. But he collected six birdies in the last 11 holes for a 36-31 round.

Dave Ragan, Orlando, Fla., who was tied for second at the halfway mark, blew a good chance when he bogied the final three holes. He finished with a par 72 over the 6,392-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

The lowest round of the day, a 34-32—66, was turned in by Ken Venturi, Palo Alto, Calif.

Palmer skidded to 72. He fell victim to three bogies. He took a three from the edge on No. 9. On the 13th, he was trapped and missed a three-putt, and on 18, he caught a trap to the left of the green. He blasted out 15 feet away and two-putted.

NEW SYSTEM

Wildlife Count Provides Data

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — Information received to date as the result of Louisiana's new deer-turkey law which went into affect this past season has provided the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries commission with valuable data about the number of deer hunters and the approximate kill, according to an announcement today by John D. Newsom, chief of the fish and game division.

For the first time in the history of the State of Louisiana, the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries commission will have more comprehensive information on which to base deer hunting regulations during the 1961-62 deer hunting season. ...

For the 1960-61 hunting season, the Louisiana Legislature adopted a system of deer and turkey licensing, tagging and reporting of kill as recommended by the commission, Newsom said.

Commission records reveal that the total deer kill reported by hunters as of now is 6,850.

A total of 66,927 deer and turkey license and permit packets were issued during the past deer season.

These packets contained two deer tags, two kill report cards, along with the single wild turkey kill tag and report.

Under the framework of the reporting system approved by the commission, a hunter was to report his deer kill within five days using the hunter report card.

Each of these packets was numbered and the number of the deer - turkey special license was filled in on the basic hunting license.

The only measure of control that could be exercised was through game management area hunts, where the deer killed were checked at designated weighing stations.

It is interesting to note, Newsom said, that the known total of 6,850 deer killed in Louisiana during the past season, only nine were killed by hunters using bows and arrows. Of the nine, eight were killed on game management areas during the special archery season.

Every effort was made to determine the non-response rate for the state. A controlled test in the game management areas indicates that the failure of hunters to return the postage-paid kill reports would come to a minimum of 14 per cent.

Newsom pointed out that the deer kill by parish cannot be considered exact because of discrepancies in reporting, however, the deer kill per parish as reported is adequate for management purposes.

Massachusetts Girl Is Track Show Stealer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A twinkle-eyed 17-year-old Massachusetts miss, running the first race of her career, stole the show Saturday at the 1961 Senior Women's AAU Indoor Track and Field Championships.

Tennessee State's Wilma Rudolph, triple Olympic gold medal winner, was on hand and performed brilliantly. The Chicago Mayor Daley's Youth Foundation powerhouse team halted Tennessee State's seven-year reign as team champion. A host of records were broken.

But Petite Helen Shipley, a Dana Hall senior at Wellesley and a resident of Newton, Mass., outshone everyone and everything. The 120-pound 5-5 freckled miss, representing the Liberty A. C. of Lexington, Mass., came up with the greatest half mile in AAU history.

She did it in 2:21.6 on a flat 220-yard track, to put in total eclipse the AAU record of 2:36.3 set in 1959 by Grace Butcher and Pat Douthitt of Cleveland—both of whom finished far back Saturday.

Helen, a pretty brunette with hazel eyes, said she ran a practice half mile last Monday and had no "kick" left at the finish.

"So I knew I wouldn't have one today," she said. "I was frightened, going against all those stars so I decided I'd start fast and keep going as long as I could."

The plan paid off. She roared out front by 15 yards on the first lap and stayed there. When the challengers spurted on the final round she moved right out, too, and won by at least 10 yards over unattached Sandra Pashkin of New York. Defending champion Batcher was third.

Miss Rudolph, whose gazelle gait made her the star of the Olympics, won the 100-yard dash with a record-breaking 10.3-second performance, and then ran into trouble.

She lost her 220-yard title to teammate Vivian Brown, who nipped her by a tenth in a record 25.2 seconds, and as anchor on the 440-yard relay team finished 5 feet back of Leahseneth O'Neal of the Chicago Mayor Daley club which set a new record of 46.6.

On a 5-3-2-1 scoring basis the Daley club finished with 38 to Tennessee State's 29½. Other team totals were: Ohio Track Club 10½, Colorado State University 10, Liberty A. C. 7, Topeka Cosmopolitan 6, Chicago O'Hallaren Club 5, Montclair (N. J.) State College 4, DeKalb 3, Cleveland Magyar 2, Cleveland Recreation 2.

Kansas State Wins Big Eight Downing Buffs

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas State Wildcats, ranked No. 4 nationally, celebrated their newly won Big Eight Conference basketball championship by defeating Colorado's Buffaloes 82-65 Saturday night.

The Wildcats had the undisputed championship handed them during the afternoon when Missouri eliminated second-place Kansas 79-76.

It's the fourth straight conference title, including a tie with Kansas last year, for Coach Tex Winter's K-Staters.

Kansas State completed its season 12-2 in the conference and 21-4 over-all. Colorado wound up in a fourth-place tie in the Big Eight with Missouri at 7-7.

The Wildcats were led by Ced Price's 24-point shooting. High scoring honors went to Colorado's Ken Charlton with 27.

McDermott, Mary Novak Win In Skating Opener

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Terry McDermott and national indoor women's champion Mary Novak flashed to opening victories Saturday in the senior men's and women's division of the North American Speedskating Championships.

McDermott, from Essexville, Mich., negotiated the men's half-mile in 1:22.9, to score a surprise victory over Keity Meyer of Glen Ellyn, Ill., a favored contender for the men's title.

Miss Novak, from Lombard, Ill. scored in the women's 440-yard sprint in 45.6 seconds. Defending senior women's champion Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, Mass., tumbled to the ice while driving to overtake the leaders on the next-to-last lap.

In the intermediate boy's three-quarters mile final, 17-year-old Bobby Fenn of Flushing, N. Y., stumbled momentarily but regained his balance and finished in a record 2:07.7. The old mark of 2:08 was set by Steve Stenson of New York six years ago.

Mary Novak's brother, Ray, scored another first place for the family when he tied the record in the juvenile boys' 440-yard race He was timed in :44.1, the record established in 1955 by Jon Mars.

24TH RUNNING

NIT Set To Open This Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Invitation Basketball Tournament, the grandpappy of post-season college basketball, opens its 24th run in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

There is a cast of familiar names, an evenly-matched field of 12 teams who were strong at the finish, and a total absence of major conference champions and teams that were rated near the top of the national heap.

The champions and a good many of the leading independent college teams now are committed to the younger but larger national collegiate (NCAA) championship. This sometimes ranles the NIT sponsors, who had more than a little trouble this year rounding up a dozen worthy representatives for their tournament.

The last of the 12 was to be decided Saturday night in the playoff between the Utah and Colorado State University for the Skyline Conference championship. The NIT gets the loser while the champion goes to the NCAA tournament.

Colorado State U. never has played in the NIT. Utah has appeared in five and won the championship in 1947.

After pondering at length over invitations and seeing a couple of old Garden favorites defect to the NCAA tournament, the NIT selection committee wound up with teams so evenly rated that it didn't try to rank the four chosen for seeding. Dayton and the Utah-Colorado State loser were placed in the quarter-finals in one half of the draw. Memphis State and Niagara in the other half.

The committee also wound up with something of a headache because it passed over Tennessee State, an all-Negro team with a 24-4 season record, mostly in small college circles.

Percy Sutton, a New York lawyer who heads the 10,000-member New York branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, charged that racial prejudice was indicated when Tennessee State was given "a flagrant run-around."

Ken Norton of Manhattan, chairman of the selection committee, replied that Tennessee State was under consideration "right down to the wire" before the committee decided to invite St. Louis, third-place team in the Missouri Valley Conference. St. Louis, NIT winner in 1948 and a contender in nine previous tournaments, was chosen after Bradley, last year's winner, rejected an invitatio.

The tournament schedule:

Thursday (first round) — 7:30 p.m., EST, St. Louis (18-8) s. Miami (Fla.) (19-6); 9:15 p.m., Holy Cross (18-4) vs. Detroit (18-8).

Saturday (first round) — 2:15 p.m., Temple (19-6) vs. Army (17-6); 4 p.m., DePaul (17-7) vs. Providence (19-5).

Saturday (quarter-finals)— 7:30 p.m., Colorado State or Utah vs. St. Louis-Miami winner; 9:15 p.m. Memphis State (20-2) vs. Holy Cross-Detroit winner.

Tuesday, March 21 (quarter-finals)—7:30 p.m., Dayton (19-7) vs. Temple-Army winner; 9:15 p.m., Niagara (16-4) vs. DePaul-Providence winner.

Thursday, March 23 (night(—Semifinals.

Saturday, March 25 (afternoon) —Consolation game and championship.

The DePaul - Providence game March 18 and the finals March 25 will be televised.

Temple won the first NIT title when the tournament was started in 1938.

Tudor Way Wins By 10 At Appleton

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Argentine-bred Tudor Way romped home a 10-length winner Saturday in the $17,350 Appleton Handicap at gulfstream Park, a prep for next Saturday's $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap.

The gray, 5-year-old son of Tudor Castle had things all his own way in a field of eight in this one and ⅛ mile event before 21,204 people. He went the distance in 1:48 2-5.

All except Better Bee are eligible for the Gulfstream Handicap.

Nickle Boy, coupled with Micarlo as the Elmendorf Stable entry, finished a badly beaten second, a half length in front of Derrici, winner of the Orange Bowl Handicap at Tropical Park earlier in the season.

Tudor Way had confined his racing to springs in previous U.S. appearances, but he proved Saturday he could cover a piece of ground. The Gulfstream Handicap, in which he probably will face the favored Yorky, will be at one and ¼ miles. However, his owner, J. J. D'Augostino, said through an interpreter after the race, "He is in the Gulfstream Handicap, but I will not make up my mind about starting him until I see the weights."

The Argentine horse, ridden by Bill Hartack, was an odds-on favorte and paid $3.70, $2.80 and $2.40.

It was Hartack's third victory of the afternoon. Nickle Boy, with Helidoro Gustines up, paid $5.70 and $3.70. Derrick, a length ahead of Trans-Way, paid $3.60. Micarlo was fifth, followed by Better Bee, Moslem Chief and Bourbon Prince in that order.

Tudor Way, who had won three sprints at Hialeah, took command midway in the second turn and increased his advantage through the stretch.

After the race, Hartack was asked if he thought Tudor Way could beat Yorky and whether he'd like to ride the horse next Saturday. "I don't know whether he can beat Yorky," said Hartack. "Yes, I'd definitely would like to ride him in the Gulfstream. He's a nice horse."

The winner earned a net of $10,350. It was his fourth victory in seven starts this year, all of them in Florida.

22ND ANNUAL CONVENTION

State Wildlife Group To Meet Here Next Week

Louisiana sportsmen will meet in Monroe next weekend for the 22nd annual convention of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

About 300 persons are expected to attend the three-day convention at the Virginia Hotel. The Ouachita Wildlife Unit, joined by Northeast Louisiana clubs, will host the convention.

With registration beginning at 2 p.m. Friday, the convention will run through Sunday noon, highlighted by the election of state officers for 1961.

Director L. D. Young of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission will deliver the key address at a banquet Saturday night.

The Louisiana Outdoor Writers Association will meet in conjunction with the conventionaand will name Louisiana's "Outstanding Conservationist" of 1960 at the Saturday night banquet.

A special program for outdoor writers over the state has been planned aside from the federation events.

Sportsmen attending the convention will sit in on numerous panels and discussions, but the chief panel will come Friday night when four top wildlife professionals discuss waterfowl.

Charles Bosch, federation executive secretary, has arranged for the following to participate on the waterfowl symposium:

D. H. Janzen, director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries & Wildlife, U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service; T. L. Kimball, executive director, National Wildlife Federation; Richard Yancey, assistant director, Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission; and E. L. Paynter, director, Wildlife Branch, Department of Natural Resources, Province of Saskatchewan, Canada.

Other panels will be held on quail, deer, conservation education, game preserves and habitat improvement, and game and fish law enforcement.

Co-chairmen of the convention are A. S. Tidwell and Jack Rushing, representing the Ouachita club. Jake Benton and Mrs. Benton of Monroe are co-chairmen of a special entertainment committee for the ladies.

Meantime, Joe L. Herring, former district biologist here and now chief education biologist, of Monroe is in charge of exhibits. Herring said wildlife exhibits would be on display in the hotel lobby.

Features of the convention are talks, including, "Plans and Programs of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission," delivered by Young; "A Progress Report on the F.A.I.R. Program," by Erle Barham of Oak Ridge; and, "Plans and Program of the Commission's Fish & Game Division," J. D. Newsom, chief, Fish & Game Division, Louisiana.

Committee meetings will be held on doves and other migratory birds, fresh and salt water fish, pollution abatement, rabbit and squirrel, and forestry.

Steve Harmon, education chief, will give a special report on National Wildlife Week, which starts Sunday. Harmon is the state co-chairman.

Outdoor writers will be entertained Friday night by Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation and International Paper Co., while an outdoor writers' panel will be held Saturday morning.

With Grits Gresham of Natchitoches as moderator, the panel participants include:

Paul Martin, sports editor, News Star—World; Dan Hardesty, sports editor, State Teimes, Baton Rouge; Harry Arthur, assistant general manager, KNOE-TV; Jimmy Plaisance, manager, KMLB; and Robert Wagner, publisher, the Jena Times.

NEW TEAMS WIN

Majors Have 1st Exhibition Games

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Victories by major league baseball's newest teams, the Los Angeles Angels and Washington Senators, plus the batting of Ernie Banks, Ken Boyer and Larry Osborne featured the first full-scale exhibition program of the 1961 season Saturday.

Shutout efforts by Philadelphia and Chicago White Sox pitchers and a losing debut by the Minnesota Twins also marked the 10-game slate.

The Angels got off on the right foot by defeating a Chicago Cub team 8-3. The Senators downed a Kansas City Athletics' squad 7-5. Banks' three-run homer led another Cubs' unit to an 8-1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Boyer's three runs batted in paced St. Louis to a 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees while Osborne had two doubles and a single to lead Detroit to a 4-1 success over the Twins, moved from Washington to Minneapolis - St. Paul during the winter to complete a 10-team setup in the American League.

Herb Score, Cal McLish and Frank Baumann combined on a three - hitter as the White Sox downed Cincinnati 3-0 and Robin Roberts, Frank Sullivan and Dallas Green limited Milwaukee to five safeties in a 4-0 victory for the Phillies.

In other games, the champion Pittsburgh Pirates walloped Baltimore 8-3, Cleveland routed the San Francisco Giants 9-1 and a second Kansas City team beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3.

Kansas City and the Chicago Cubs split their squads.

Home runs by Ted Kluszewski and Julio Becquer featured a 13-hit attack by the Angels. Jack Harshman was the winning pitcher.

Pete Daley slammed a home run and a double and Marty Keough a triple and a double in Washington's victory as Dick Donovan and Tom Sturdivant pitched well for the Senators.

Banks' homer followed singles by Bob Will and Don Zimmer off the Red Sox' Bill Monbouquette, and Ed Bouchee followed with another home run. Don Cardwell and Glenn Hobbie limited Boston to five hits.

Tony Kubek's pinch homer kept the Yanks from Being shut out. St. Louis tagged Ryne Duren for three runs in the first inning and added another three off Art Ditmar in the sixth. Boyer got his RBI with a triple and a double.

Osborne had to share honors for Detroit with pitchers Bob Bruce and Hank Aguirre, who combined for six shutout innings. Lenn'e Green had two of the Twins' six safeties.

Score, the White Sox' erratic southpaw, walked the first two Reds' batters he faced. He settled down, striking out three and giving up only a single to Vada Pinson in three innings. Baumann worked three perfect innings. McLish yielded doubles to Gordon Coleman and Wally Post while striking out four in his three innings.

Roberts, the Phils' veteran, held Milwaukee hitless in three innings. Philadelphia got the only runs it needed in the sixth on a walk to Bob Sadowski, a single by rookie Ted Savage, a double by Tony Curry and a wild pitch.

Pittsburgh capitalized on 10 walks and three errors to whip Baltimore. Right-handers George Witt, Curt Raydon, Larry Foss and lefty Diomedes Olivo limited the Orioles to four singles.

The Indians pounded Giants' righty Juan Marichal for six runs in the fifth inning to break a 1-1 deadlock. Willie Kirkland and Vic Power each batted in two runs during the uprising.

The other Kansas City squad shelled Dodger ace Don Drysdale for seven hits in four innings. Dick Williams had two singles and a double for the winners. Norm Sherry drove in two Dodger runs with a triple.

A double by catcher Earl Averill in the sixth inning put the Angels ahead to stay. The two-bagger scored Albie Pearson to break a 3-3 tie.

McDermott, Mary Novak Win In Skating Opener

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Terry McDermott and national indoor women's champion Mary Novak flashed to opening victories Saturday in the senior men's and women's division of the North American Speedskating Championships.

McDermott, from Essexville, Mich., negotiated the men's half-mile in 1:22.9, to score a surprise victory over Keity Meyer of Glen Ellyn, Ill., a favored contender for the men's title.

Miss Novak, from Lombard, Ill, scored in the women's 440-yard sprint in 45.6 seconds. Defending senior women's champion Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, Mass., tumbled to the ice while driving to overtake the leaders on the next-to-last lap.

In the intermediate boy's three-quarters mile final, 17-year-old Bobby Fenn of Flushing, N. Y., stumbled momentarily but regained his balance and finished in a record 2:07.7. The old mark of 2:08 was set by Steve Stenson of New York six years ago.

Mary Novak's brother, Ray, scored another first place for the family when he tied the record in the juvenile boys' 440-yard race He was timed in :44.1, the record established in 1955 by Jon Mars.

Tommy Bolt Takes Slim Lead In Pensacola Golf

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Tommy Bolt of Crystal River, Fla., shot a 4-under-par 68 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead in the third round of the $20,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

The 1953 U.S. Open champion's card after 54 holes was 72-68-68—208. One stroke behind were Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., 72-70-67—209, and Marty Furgol, Le-Mont, Ill., 71-70-68—209.

Four players were bunched at 210. They were Tommy Jacobs, Bermuda Dunes, Calif.; Gay Brewer, Crystal River; Arnold Palmer, Miami, the halfway leader, and big George Bayer, South Pasadena, Calif.

Bolt, playing without a bogey since the 11th hole of the first round, hit 15 greens in his 33-35 round.

Bolt, 41, has picked up $2,999 in seven tournaments this year. He lost in a sudden death playoff at the Tucson Open.

Furgol started his round with a 4-under-par 32 on the first nine, including four birdies. But he drew a double bogey on 16 and bogied 18.

On the other hand, Finsterwald began the round poorly and was 1-over-par through seven holes after a bogey on the fifth. But he collected six birdies in the last 11 holes for a 36-31 round.

Dave Ragan, Orlando, Fla., who was tied for second at the halfway mark, blew a good chance when he bogied the final three holes. He finished with a par 72 over the 6,392-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

The lowest round of the day, a 34-32—66, was turned in by Ken Venturi, Palo Alto, Calif.

Palmer skidded to 72. He fell victim to three bogies. He took a three from the edge on No. 9. On the 13th, he was trapped and missed a three-putt, and on 18, he caught a trap to the left of the green. He blasted out 15 feet away and two-putted.

The leaders:

NEW SYSTEM

Wildlife Count Provides Data

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — Information received to date as the result of Louisiana's new deer-turkey law which went into affect this past season has provided the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries commission with valuable data about the number of deer hunters and the approximate kill, according to an announcement today by John D. Newsom, chief of the fish and game division.

For the first time in the history of the State of Louisiana, the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries commission will have more comprehensive information on which to base deer hunting regulations during the 1961-62 deer hunting season. ...

For the 1960-61 hunting season, the Louisiana Legislature adopted a system of deer and turkey licensing, tagging and reporting of kill as recommended by the commission, Newsom said.

Commission records reveal that the total deer kill reported by hunters as of now is 6,850.

A total of 66,927 deer and turkey license and permit packets were issued during the past deer season.

These packets contained two deer tags, two kill report cards, along with the single wild turkey kill tag and report.

Under the framework of the reporting system approved by the commission, a hunter was to report his deer kill within five days using the hunter report card.

Each of these packets was numbered and the number of the deer - turkey special license was filled in on the basic hunting license.

The only measure of control that could be exercised was through game management area hunts, where the deer killed were checked at designated weighing stations.

It is interesting to note, Newsom said, that the known total of 6,850 deer killed in Louisiana during the past season, only nine were killed by hunters using bows and arrows. Of the nine, eight were killed on game management areas during the special archery season.

Every effort was made to determine the non-response rate for the state. A controlled test in the game management areas indicates that the failure of hunters to return the postage-paid kill reports would come to a minimum of 14 per cent.

Newsom pointed out that the deer kill by parish cannot be considered exact because of discrepancies in reporting, however, the deer kill per parish as reported is adequate for management purposes.

Massachusetts Girl Is Track Show Stealer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A twinkle-eyed 17-year-old Massachusetts miss, running the first race of her career, stole the show Saturday at the 1961 Senior Women's AAU Indoor Track and Field Championships.

Tennessee State's Wilma Rudolph, triple Olympic gold medal winner, was on hand and performed brilliantly. The Chicago Mayor Daley's Youth Foundation powerhouse team halted Tennessee State's seven-year reign as team champion. A host of records were broken.

But Petite Helen Shipley, a Dana Hall senior at Wellesley and a resident of Newton, Mass., outshone everyone and everything. The 120-pound 5-5 freckled miss, representing the Liberty A. C. of Lexington, Mass., came up with the greatest half mile in AAU history.

She did it in 2:21.6 on a flat 220-yard track, to put in total eclipse the AAU record of 2:36.3 set in 1959 by Grace Butcher and Pat Douthitt of Cleveland—both of whom finished far back Saturday.

Helen, a pretty brunette with hazel eyes, said she ran a practice half mile last Monday and had no "kick" left at the finish.

"So I knew I wouldn't have one today," she said. "I was frightened, going against all those stars so I decided I'd start fast and keep going as long as I could."

The plan paid off. She roared out front by 15 yards on the first lap and stayed there. When the challengers spurted on the final round she moved right out, too, and won by at least 10 yards over unattached Sandra Pashkin of New York. Defending champion Butcher was third.

Miss Rudolph, whose gazelle gait made her the star of the Olympics, won the 100-yard dash with a record-breaking 10.8-second performance, and then ran into trouble.

She lost her 220-yard title to teammate Vivian Brown, who nipped her by a tenth in a record 25.2 seconds, and as anchor on the 440-yard relay team finished 5 feet back of Leahseneth O'Neal of the Chicago Mayor Daley club which set a new record of 48.8.

On a 5-3-2-1 scoring basis the Daley club finished with 33 to Tennessee State's 29½. Other team totals were: Ohio Track Club 10½, Colorado State University 10, Liberty A. C. 7, Topeka Cosmopolitan 6, Chicago O'Hallaren Club 5, Montclair (N. J.) State College 4, DeKalb 3, Cleveland Magyar 2, Cleveland Recreation 2.

Kansas State Wins Big Eight Downing Buffs

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas State Wildcats, ranked No. 4 nationally, celebrated their newly won Big Eight Conference basketball championship by defeating Colorado's Buffaloes 82-65 Saturday night.

The Wildcats had the undisputed championship handed them during the afternoon when Missouri eliminated second-place Kansas 79-76.

It's the fourth straight conference title, including a tie with Kansas last year, for Coach Tex Winter's K-Staters.

Kansas State completed its season 12-2 in the conference and 21-4 over-all. Colorado wound up in a fourth-place tie in the Big Eight with Missouri at 7-7.

The Wildcats were led by Ced Price's 24-point shooting. High scoring honors went to Colorado's Ken Charlton with 27.

Ohio State Ends Season Unbeaten

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Top-ranked Ohio State, which opens defense of its NCAA basketball championship next week, completed its 24-game regular season schedule unbeaten by defeating Illinois 95-66 Saturday. The Buckeyes are the first undefeated major college team since the 1956-57 North Carolina Tar Heels and the first unbeaten Big Ten team since 1919.

Herded by All-America Jerry Lucas with 27 points and Mel Nowell with 22, the tight-pressing, ball-stealing Buckeyes ballooned a five-point halftime lead into a 54-40 margin in the opening 2½ minutes of the second half and won going away.

It was the Buckeyes' 29th straight victory in a streak stretching back to last year.

The last Big Ten team to go through an entire season without defeat was Minnesota's Gophers, who had a 13-0 record 42 years ago. The Bucks, 14-0 in the Big Ten, also became the first team since Illinois' Whiz Kids of 1943 to win the crown with an undefeated record in conference competition.

In the opening 10 minutes the score was tied five times and the lead changed six times. Larry Siegfried's long one-hander then put Ohio State ahead to stay 20-18. At intermission they were in front 43-38 after Nowell had hit 15 points and Lucas 13.

Up to his point, Illinois' hopes were kept alive by John Wessels who scored 12 points, long-hitting Jerry Colangelo with 11 and sophomore Dave Downey with 9.

But Wessels, Illinois' tallest man, had collected four personal fouls and was benched.

John Havlicek, Siegried, Lucas and Nowell began peppering the baskets at the start of the second half and in the first 11 minutes the Buckeyes were breezing 75-51.

Wessels came back in but fouled out with seven minutes to play after scoring 12 points. Colangelo followed him out two minutes later after tallying 16 points.

Nowell and Lucas were taken out of the game in the final four minutes with the Buckeyes ahead 84-54.

Ohio State hit 36 out of 81 floor shots for a .444 percentage while the Illini made 25 of 67 for .373. The Buckeyes gathered in 55 rebounds and Illinois 38.

The game was regionally televised.

Jud Sage Sets New 35-Pound Throw Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry (Jud) Sage, a 6-3, 235-pound muscleman from Navy, got off the best toss of his life—63 feet, 4¼ inches—and broke the meet record for the 35-pound weight throw in the IC4A Track and Field Championships Saturday.

Bob O'Brien, a 21-year-old Manhattan senior, won the other final on the matinee program when he soared 24 feet in the broad jump. This was O'Brien's best ever, too.

Sage, a second classman (junior) at Navy, suddenly has blossomed into one of the top weight throwers in the country. Until two weeks ago, he never had tossed the hardware as much as 60 feet.

"But in our dual meet with Army, I hit 60-3," related the 24-year-old Sage. "Then last week in the Heptagonal Games, I made 61-9½."

There are only a half-dozen or so better efforts than Sage's. The big one, of course, is Hal Connolly's 71-2½.

His winning effort bettered the meet record of 63-1¼ set last year by John Lawlor of Boston University.

Stan Doten of Harvard was second with a 61-1¾ throw. Doten got off four 60-footers—all in a row—but couldn't make the big one.

Ed Bailey, also of Harvard, was third with a 59-7½ throw.

O'Brien had been having trouble all through the Madison Square Garden competition getting a good jump.

His winner came on his final try, and pushed him past Michigan State's Solomon Akpata, a Nigerian, who wound up second at 23-5½.

Jim Thomas of Wesleyan was third with a 23-3½ leap.

Royals Nip Lakers By 108-105

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cincinnati kept alive its playoff hopes Saturday by defeating the Los Angeles Lakers 108-105 in a nationally televised NBA game.

Jack Twyman scored 23 points, Oscar Robertson and Wayne Embry 22 each to pace the Royals to their 8th win in 12 games against the Lakers.

Cincinnati is now tied with Detroit for third place in the leagues Western Division, and the playoff berth hinges on the outcome of Sunday's games. The Royals play the Lakers here and Detroit meets New York Sunday. The Lakers already have clinched second place.

A crowd of 4,737 saw the Royals get off to a fast start with Robertson hitting 14 points in the first quarter. The Royals led 57-55 at halftime.

Cincinnati led by as much as 10 points during the game. The Lakers rallied to tie at 94-all with five minutes left. But Embry hit three quick baskets to give Cincinnati a six-point bulge, and the Royals never again trailed.

Elgin Baylor scored 27 points to lead the Lakers. Teammate Frank Selvy got 24 before fouling out with six minutes left.

Wins Race

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) —Henrijan moved up in the final strides and beat the favored Revel by a head Saturday in the $10,625 East Bay Handicap as Golden Gate Fields opened its 50-day spring season.

Social Event was third in the field of six in the 6-furlong sprint.

The crowd of 17,233 was one of the largest for opening day at the bayside track.

Henrijan, owned by Stephen H. Elmore of Brawley, Calif., lacked early foot but responded strongly on the outside in the stretch run. Revel, a winner over Prove It in his last start Jan. 2, appeared to tire under his top imposition of 130 pounds.

It was jockey Pete Moreno's fourth victory of the day. Henrijan's time was a fast 1:09. He paid $6.40, $3.40 and $2.60. Revel returned $3.20 and $2.80 and Social Event $3.20.

NEW LOOK

Houk Won't Try To Copy Stengel

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees without Casey Stengel have a strange new look. It is something like the time when Joe McCarthy left Yankee Stadium or when Leo Durocher left Brooklyn. A newcomer, a relatively unknown, has stepped into the shoes of a man who must rank with the greatest.

Instead of a grizzled story teller who could double talk you from Kankakee to Ned in the first reader (a Stengel literary classic), the young man in charge is Ralph Houk, "The Major," with a calm, assured approach.

Houk makes no pretense of matching Stengel's picturesque but fractured phraseology that writers called "good copy." The 40-year-old new manager speaks his piece plainly, politely and precisely.

Visitors might expect to see Houk squirming on the hot seat of baseball's toughest challenge. All he has to do is win 10 pennants in 12 years to rank with Old Case. But he doesn't think that way.

"I honestly haven't given a thought to it," he said. "I don't feel that way. Possibly I would if I didn't know all the fellows, or had come in from some other organization.

"But I've been in this organization so long (since 1939) that I think things will be more or less the same. We aren't going to make many startling changes."

Houk has been grooming himself for a big league manager's job since he went to Denver in 1955. Before that he never had been more than a second or third string catcher with the Yankees. He came back in 1958 as a coach under Stengel. Last year he managed the Yanks from May 27 to June 3 when Casey was ill.

"Casey did an awful lot for me," he said. "Without Casey I wouldn't be here. He was a great manager.

"I never knew I was in line for this job until three days before the announcement when they called me up to meet with (Dan) Topping, (Del) Webb and (Roy) Hamey."

There is added emphasis on the sliding pit at Miller Huggins Field, an area that has been neglected in recent years. There is more concentration on the playing situations that come up every day—the pickoff play, fielding of bunts and drives hit back to the box.

"I have a feeling that certain pitchers counted on for starters have not been ready to open the season," he said. "(Bob) Turley, (Art) Ditmar and (Ralph) Terry had a rough time getting started last year. I'm going to give my starting pitchers more work down here. If we can get them ironed out, I would like to have all of them go nine innings."

Houk said during the winter that he planned to abandon some of the platooning that Stengel had done.

"Actually that was forced upon me," he said. "We lost men like (Bob) Cerv, (Dale) Long and (Gil) McDougald who used to play a lot. I think it is a good thing that we have some spots to fill. We have to find replacements for those fellows and men like (Bobby) Shantz, (Duke) Maas and (Eli) Grba that we lost to the new clubs. It makes for more competition in the spring.

"We have a good ball club. Yes, I think we can win with this club. They say others have improved. If they have improved much it is going to be tough. We weren't in first place to stay last year until the last two weeks.

"The young fellows like (Bobby) Richardson, (Tony) Kubek and Boyer should be better. And (Bill) Stafford should help when he gets out of the Army. You'd have to say Baltimore, Chicago and Cleveland are going to be tough."

Yankee Bobby Richardson was retired the first nine times as a World Series batter. Then he made three straight hits. He now has a .314 average for 13 World Series games.

Boston Whips Syracuse By 126-116 Edge

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics, forced to get serious by a late Syracuse surge, beat the Nats 126-116 Saturday for their sixth straight victory behind the basketball artistry of Bill Russell, Sam Jones and Tommy Heinsohn.

The Celtics took the lead for good early in the second quarter as they outscored the visitors 11-2 to move out to a 50-42 advantage. Frank Ramsey contributed five big ones in the stretch.

But the Nats, apparently angered by the care-free clowning of the National Basketball Association Eastern Division champs, made a big move midway in the final period. At one juncture outscoring the defending world titlists 13-1, Syracuse pulled up to 106-101 deficit.

At this point Russell blocked two shots and grabbed a rebound, old pro Bob Cousy fed Heinsohn and Sam Jones on key baskets and the Celtics were flying again.

Down the stretch Russell, who had 24 points as did Syracuse's Dolph Schayes, began deflecting a large percentage of those shots which he didn't block or rebound on the miss.

Heinsohn, who missed Thursday's game because of a knee injury, was at his finest over the final four minutes, collecting a majority of his 20 points. Sam Jones got 12 of his 20 in the first period when he single handedly pulled the Celtics from behind.

Dick Barnett had 18 for the Nats.

Tops At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Mrs. Emil Denemark's Mangam set a track record of 1:39.3 for a mile and 70 yards while scoring a neck victory over T. Alie Grisson's Eight Again in the $10,000 Southland Handicap at Oaklawn Park Saturday before the season's largest crowd of 17,106.

Mangam took the lead in the final strides of a driving finish. W. H. Bishop's Santiago finished third. John C. Hauer's favored Little Fitz was fifth in the field of nine.

Mangam clipped a fifth of a second from the old record of 1:39.4, set by Roman Artist in 1959.

Overlooked in the betting, Mangam paid $34.

MARCH 18

Northeast Squad Game Coming Up

With only a week of spring training remaining, the Northeast Louisiana State football squad is preparing for the annual maroon and gold intra-squad game March 18. A football clinic for highschool coaches will also take place on this date.

"We feel that we have accomplished a great deal this spring in evaluating our boys and when the squad is divided, I believe the intra - squad affair will be quite a battle," head coach Jack Rowan said yesterday.

"Our clinic looks as if it will be an outstanding success," Rowan continued, "and 200 high school coaches have indicated that they will attend."

Charles McClendon and George Terry, assistant coaches at Louisiana State University along with John Bridgers, athletic director and head football coach from Baylor University, will be the clinic's featured speakers. Morning and afternoon lectures will be held in Brown Hall on the Northeast campus.

The intra-squad game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday night, and admission is $1.00 for adults, $.50 for students. All pre-school students will be admitted free with their parents.

Shaughnessy Is First In Nat. Bowling Tilt

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Shaughnessy of Janesville, Wis., moved into first place in the regular all-events division of the American Bowling Congress Tournament Saturday with a nine-game total of 1859.

The 50-year-old bowling proprietor rolled 603 in the team event Friday night and came back with 660 in the doubles and 596 in the singles. Shaughnessy replaced John Farah at the top of the all-events board. Farah of St. Paul, Minn., rolled 1,853.

Glen Blakesley, 45, a member of Kansas City's Schlitz team, claimed the lead in the classic division singles with a 640 series. Blakesley rolled games of 235, 182 and 223. His total of 1,835 for the first nine games enabled Blakesley to take third place in the classic all-events.

Blakesley was outclassed by regular division bowler Peter Mossotti of Syracuse, N. Y., who whacked a 236-189-247—672 singles series to move into second place in his division. Joe Santek of Kalamazoo, Mich., leads the regular singles with 687 of March 7.

Mossotti's nine game aggregate of 1,850 earned him third place in the regular all-events.

Ed Bailey, also of Harvard, was third with a 59-7½ throw.

O'Brien had been having trouble all through the Madison Square Garden competition getting a good jump.

His winner came on his final try, and pushed him past Michigan State's Solomon Akpata, a Nigerian, who wound up second at 23-10.

Jim Thomas of Wesleyan was third with a 23-8½ leap.

Royals Nip Lakers By 108-105

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cincinnati kept alive its playoff hopes Saturday by defeating the Los Angeles Lakers 108-105 in a nationally televised NBA game.

Jack Twyman scored 23 points, Oscar Robertson and Wayne Embry 22 each to pace the Royals to their 8th win in 12 games against the Lakers.

Cincinnati is now tied with Detroit for third place in the leagues Western Division, and the playoff berth hinges on the outcome of Sunday's games. The Royals play the Lakers here and Detroit meets New York Sunday. The Lakers already have clinched second place.

A crowd of 4,737 saw the Royals get off to a fast start with Robertson hitting 14 points in the first quarter. The Royals led 57-55 at halftime.

Cincinnati led by as much as 10 points during the game. The Lakers rallied to tie at 94-all with five minutes left. But Embry hit three quick baskets to give Cincinnati a six-point bulge, and the Royals never again trailed.

Elgin Baylor scored 27 points to lead the Lakers. Teammate Frank Selvy got 24 before fouling out with six minutes left.

Wins Race

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) —Henrijan moved up in the final strides and beat the favored Revel by a head Saturday in the $10,625 East Bay Handicap as Golden Gate Fields opened its 50-day spring season.

Social Event was third in the field of six in the 6-furlong sprint.

The crowd of 17,233 was one of the largest for opening day at the bayside track.

Henrijan, owned by Stephen H. Elmore of Brawley, Calif., lacked early foot but responded strongly on the outside in the stretch run. Revel, a winner over Prove It in his last start Jan. 2, appeared to tire under his top imposition of 130 pounds.

It was jockey Pete Moreno's fourth victory of the day. Henrijan's time was a fast 1:09. He paid $6.40, $3.40 and $2.60. Revel returned $3.20 and $2.80 and Social Event $3.20.

NEW LOOK

Houk Won't Try To Copy Stengel

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees without Casey Stengel have a strange new look. It is something like the time when Joe McCarthy left Yankee Stadium or when Leo Durocher left Brooklyn. A newcomer, a relatively unknown, has stepped into the shoes of a man who must rank with the greatest.

Instead of a grizzled story teller who could double talk you from Kankakee to Ned in the first reader (a Stengel literary classic), the young man in charge is Ralph Houk, "The Major," with a calm, assured approach.

Houk makes no pretense of matching Stengel's picturesque but fractured phraseology that writers called "good copy." The 40-year-old new manager speaks his piece plainly, politely and precisely.

Visitors might expect to see Houk squriming on the hot seat of baseball's toughest challenge. All he has to do is win 10 pennants in 12 years to rank with Old Case. But he doesn't think that way.

"I honestly haven't given a thought to it," he said. "I don't feel that way. Possibly I would if I didn't know all the fellows, or had come in from some other organization.

"But I've been in this organization so long (since 1939) that I think things will be more or less the same. We aren't going to make many startling changes."

Houk has been grooming himself for a big league manager's job since he went to Denver in 1955. Before that he never had been more than a second or third string catcher with the Yankees. He came back in 1958 as a coach under Stengel. Last year he managed the Yanks from May 27 to June 3 when Casey was ill.

"Casey did an awful lot for me," he said. "Without Casey I wouldn't be here. He was a great manager.

"I never knew I was in line for this job until three days before the announcement when they called me up to meet with (Dan) Topping, (Del) Webb and (Roy) Hamey."

There is added emphasis on the sliding pit at Miller Huggins Field, an area that has been neglected in recent years. There is more concentration on the playing situations that come up every day—the pickoff play, fielding of bunts and drives hit back to the box.

"I have a feeling that certain pitchers counted on for starters have not been ready to open the season," he said. "(Bob) Turley, (Art) Ditmar and (Ralph) Terry had a rough time getting started last year. I'm going to give my starting pitchers more work down here. If we can get them ironed out, I would like to have all of them go nine innings."

Houk said during the winter that he planned to abandon some of the platooning that Stengel had done.

"Actually that was forced upon me," he said. "We lost men like (Bob) Cerv, (Dale) Long and (Gil) McDougald who used to play a lot. I think it is a good thing that we have some spots to fill. We have to find replacements for those fellows and men like (Bobby) Shantz, (Duke) Maas and (Eli) Grba that we lost to the new clubs. It makes for more competition in the spring.

"We have a good ball club. Yes, I think we can win with this club. They say others have improved. If they have improved much it is going to be tough. We weren't in first place to stay last year until the last two weeks.

"The young fellows like (Bobby) Richardson, (Tony) Kubek and Boyer should be better. And (Bill) Stafford should help when he gets out of the Army. You'd have to say Baltimore, Chicago and Cleveland are going to be tough."

Yankee Bobby Richardson was retired the first nine times as a World Series batter. Then he made three straight hits. He now has a .314 average for 13 World Series games.

Boston Whips Syracuse By 126-116 Edge

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics, forced to get serious by a late Syracuse surge, beat the Nats 126-116 Saturday for their sixth straight victory behind the basketball artistry of Bill Russell, Sam Jones and Tommy Heinsohn.

The Celtics took the lead for good early in the second quarter as they outscored the visitors 11-2 to move out to a 50-42 advantage. Frank Ramsey contributed five big ones in the stretch.

But the Nats, apparently angered by the care-free clowning of the National Basketball Association Eastern Division champs, made a big move midway in the final period. At one juncture outscoring the defending world titlists 13-1, Syracuse pulled up to 106-101 deficit.

At this point Russell blocked two shots and grabbed a rebound, old pro Bob Cousy fed Heinsohn and Sam Jones on key baskets and the Celtics were flying again.

Down the stretch Russell, who had 24 points as did Syracuse's Dolph Schayes, began deflecting a large percentage of those shots which he didn't block or rebound on the miss.

Heinsohn, who missed Thursday's game because of a knee injury, was at his finest over the final four minutes, collecting a majority of his 20 points. Sam Jones got 12 of his 20 in the first period when he single handedly pulled the Celtics from behind.

Dick Barnett had 18 for the Nats.

Tops At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Mrs. Emil Denemark's Mangam set a track record of 1:39.3 for a mile and 70 yards while scoring a neck victory over T. Alie Grisson's Eight Again in the $10,000 Southland Handicap at Oaklawn Park Saturday before the season's largest crowd of 17,106.

Mangam took the lead in the final strides of a driving finish. W. H. Bishop's Santiago finished third. John C. Hauer's favored Little Fitz was fifth in the field of nine.

Mangam clipped a fifth of a second from the old record of 1:39.4, set by Roman Artist in 1959.

Overlooked in the betting, Mangam paid $34.

MARCH 18

Northeast Squad Game Coming Up

With only a week of spring training remaining, the Northeast Louisiana State football squad is preparing for the annual maroon and gold intra-squad game March 18. A football clinic for highschool coaches will also take place on this date.

"We feel that we have accomplished a great deal this spring in evaluating our boys and when the squad is divided, I believe the intra - squad affair will be quite a battle," head coach Jack Rowan said yesterday.

"Our clinic looks as if it will be an outstanding success," Rowan continued, "and 200 high school coaches have indicated that they will attend."

Charles McClendon and George Terry, assistant coaches at Louisiana State University along with John Bridgers, athletic director and head football coach from Baylor University, will be the clinic's featured speakers. Morning and afternoon lectures will be held in Brown Hall on the Northeast campus.

The intra-squad game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday night, and admission is $1.00 for adults, $.50 for students. All pre-school students will be admitted free with their parents.

Shaughnessy Is First In Nat. Bowling Tilt

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Shaughnessy of Janesville, Wis., moved into first place in the regular all-events division of the American Bowling Congress Tournament Saturday with a nine-game total of 1859.

The 50-year-old bowling proprietor rolled 603 in the team event Friday night and came back with 660 in the doubles and 596 in the singles. Shaughnessy replaced John Farah at the top of the all-events board. Farah of St. Paul, Minn., rolled 1,853.

Glen Blakesley, 45, a member of Kansas City's Schlitz team, claimed the lead in the classic division singles with a 640 series. Blakesley rolled games of 235, 182 and 223. His total of 1,835 for the first nine games enabled Blakesley to take third place in the classic all-events.

Blakesley was outclassed by regular division bowler Peter Mossotti of Syracuse, N. Y., who whacked a 236-189-247—672 singles series to move into second place in his division. Joe Santek of Kalamazoo, Mich., leads the regular singles with 687 of March 7.

Mossotti's nine game aggregate of 1,850 earned him third place in the regular all-events.

CIVIL WAR CENTENNIAL

34 States Revive Historic Events

EDITORS NOTE — A century ago the United States split in a bitter drama of Civil War that nearly shattered the young republic and left a legacy of unsolved problems that still, at least in part, divide the nation. These include the current civil rights battles in Congress and the problem of integration. This centennial year, the nation remembers the epic struggle of 1861-65 when the men in blue and the men in gray thought they could settle the issues on the field of battle.

By NEIL GILBRIDE

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The nation this year is living again the dark series of events that culminated in a bloody Civil War and almost shattered the young republic a century ago.

Memorial observances in 11 Southern states that made up the Confederacy, and in 23 of the Union, are making the pages of history live again.

Abraham Lincoln's inauguration was restaged March 4 in Washington with a costumed stand-in.

The counterpart of Jefferson Davis swore his oath to the Confederacy in full dress panoply Feb. 18 at Montgomery, Ala.

On this day a century ago, only one month of grace remained before the cataclysm would break upon the nation and drench it in blood.

Next month — on April 12 — these centennial observances will be climaxed by a re-enactment of the firing on Ft. Sumter.

The National Civil War Centennial Commission will attend the ceremonies signalizing Confederate Gen. Pierre Beauregard's 34-hour bombardment that drove a federal garrison out of this island stronghold in Charleston's harbor.

Not a soldier was killed in that artillery duel that plunged the nation into savage strife; but within the next four years, historians estimate, one million fighting men died or were wounded.

The shattering struggle — from 1831 to 1865 — still looms as history and its fascination for Americans seems to grow each year. Now in its centennial year, its interest has risen of a new height.

The list of battles still has the power to stir the imagination like the roll of a war drum and the cry of a bugle: Shiloh, Vicksburg, Chickamauga, the Wilderness, Bull Run, Gettysburg, Antietam and Atlanta.

It was the first modern war of massed artillery and troops, of grand strategy along hundreds of miles of fronts. The battles have been fought thousands of times in thousands of volumes; they are still studied in the world's war colleges.

There still remain the tantalizing questions raised by historians and scholars, by armchair strategists and second-guessers.

Would the South have won if—

If Pierre Gustave Toutant Beauregard had followed his victory at the first Battle of Bull Run by pursuing the disorganized and fleeing Yankees and seizing Washington, perhaps to end the war at a single brilliant stroke.

If Jeb Stuart had ridden straight to Gen. Robert E. Lee at Gettysburg instead of scampering off after the rare prize of a huge wagon train.

If Pickett's valiant charge had not failed atop Gettysburg's Cemetery Ridge and the South had been provided a mighty springboard from which to deal the North a fell and perhaps fatal blow.

If England and France had heeded the plea of the Confederacy and come into the conflict on the side of the South.

Would the war have been less bitter and shorter if Lee had accepted Lincoln's offer of the Union's field command? Would Lee then have been named 13th president of the United States by a grateful people, instead of Ulysses S. Grant, thus sparing the nation the long hard years of reconstruction?

Second guesses are academic, now. History followed its fateful course; the Union prevailed, and all that remains of the Confederacy are long rows of plain white tombstones, a few priceless relics, and the memory of a dauntless spirit.

King, President Stage Ski Race

OSLO, Norway (AP)—The 57-year-old king of Norway raced six miles on skis Saturday against the president of Finland, three years his senior. The king puffed across the finish line a ski length ahead.

King Olav V and President Urho Kekkonen made the race to open the 31-mile cross-country event of the Holmenkollen ski games.

Kekkonen wanted to go the whole route but he and the king had to pull over to let the competition skiers race by.

Witness Says Peel Bared Murder Plot

FORT PIERCE, Fla., (AP) — Another important state witness, P. O. Wilber, testified Saturday that Joseph A. Peel Jr. told him he plotted the killing of Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth because "it was either that s.o.b. or himself."

When Peel made the statement, Wilber said, "he was more frightened than I ever saw him. He was standing up on his toes like a little boy."

They were in Peel's law office at the time, Wilber testified, and he had asked Peel "why he had done the job on the judge."

Peel, 37, is accused of ordering the slaying to prevent Chillingworth from exposing alleged protection and gambling rackets operated by Peel while he was a West Palm Beach city judge.

Subsequently — in June 1955— both Chillingworth and his wife, Marjorie, were thrown overboard from a boat and drowned in the Atlantic Ocean near their home.

Wilber, a West Palm Beach bondsman and former policeman, testified in the sixth day of Peel's trial that he knew of a bolita—numbers — racket operated by Peel and was retained to bail out "any member of his operation" who was picked up by police.

To be sure he would know all of them, he said he issued cards. When a card-carrying bolita seller came into court, Wilber said he had instructions to "get him out quick and brief him on keeping his mouth shut."

Defense attorney Carlton Welch contended that Wilber was testifying against Peel because he expected to get some of the $100,000 in rewards offered on conviction.

"I have never discussed the reward with anybody," Wilber said.

"Will you here and now waive any claim to any part of the reward?" Welch demanded.

Before Wilber could reply, State Atty. Phil O'Connell got in a successful objection.

Wilber became an undercover agent for the State Sheriff's Bureau and with James Yenzer, another agent, induced the confessed killer of the Chillingsworths, Floyd A. Holzapfel, to tell the story during a drinking session in a motel room.

A tape recording of that story made by hidden officers led to Holzapfel's arrest and confession. He has testified that he killed the Chillingsworths on Peel's command.

Senator Adcock Will Address Palsy Meeting

Senator Jamar Adcock will be the guest speaker at the Cerebral Palsy school P-TA meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the school-clinic located at Selman Field.

Mrs. J. Y. Pipes Jr., president of the P-TA, said that the group was having their first night meeting of the year so that the fathers could attend.

She stated that the election of officers for the next year will be the main item of business.

"The Cerebral Palsy P-TA extends an invitation to all friends and interested persons to attend this meeting," she added.

Refreshments will be served by the hostesses, Mrs. Mildred Cantrell and Mrs. J. D. Brooks.

My Answer

QUESTION: There are many things that I cannot understand about God. One thing I cannot understand about Him is how He can exist in three persons. Does that not mean that there are actually three Gods, or am I mistaken at this point? Can you help me understand all about God?
M.C.

ANSWER: A well known preacher recently made this statement, "If I could understand everything about God, I would turn my back on Him." What the preacher meant really was that because man's mind is finite and because God is infinite, it is never possible for man to fully understand God. With all of our knowledge of the Bible, we do not claim that we understand everything about God. All we claim is that man can understand all that is necessary in order that his sins might be forgiven and that we might know Him personally —and enjoy His fellowship. What the Bible teaches about the Trinity is that God who is One exists in three Persons. The very first verse in the Bible reads, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." The word for God in the Hebrew language takes the plural form, "Elhoim." Many times in the New Testament the expression will be found — the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, such as when Jesus commanded the disciples to make disciples of all nations and baptize in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. (Matthew 28:19) These three, the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are One in wisdom, in knowledge, in holiness, in power, in will and in every other essential because they think alike, and act alike and are alike. The Bible teaches that they are One. That is what is meant by the Trinity . . . but we will never be able to fully understand or explain it!

Grant Approved For Health Unit

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The U.S. Public Health Service approved a $52,000 grant toward construction of a new parish health unit facility here.

Louisiana representatives in Washington said Friday an appropriation was made from Hill-Burton funds to pay half the cost of a $105,000 structure to replace the facility at the abandoned Magnolia School.

Part of the building had been used by the East Baton Rouge Parish health unit before it was condemned.

All we claim is that man can understand all that is necessary in order that his sins might be forgiven and that we might know Him personally —and enjoy His fellowship. What the Bible teaches about the Trinity is that God who is One exists in three Persons. The very first verse in the Bible reads, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." The word for God in the Hebrew language takes the plural form, "Elhoim." Many times in the New Testament the expression will be found — the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, such as when Jesus commanded the disciples to make disciples of all nations and baptize in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. (Matthew 28:19) These three, the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are One in wisdom, in knowledge, in holiness, in power, in will and in every other essential because they think alike, and act alike and are alike. The Bible teaches that they are One. That is what is meant by the Trinity . . . but we will never be able to fully understand or explain it!

Grant Approved For Health Unit

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The U.S. Public Health Service approved a $52,000 grant toward construction of a new parish health unit facility here.

Louisiana representatives in Washington said Friday an appropriation was made from Hill-Burton funds to pay half the cost of a $105,000 structure to replace the facility at the abandoned Magnolia School.

Part of the building had been used by the East Baton Rouge Parish health unit before it was condemned.

In town this week, catching some glorious and some not-so-glorious Spring weather, have been several visitors. A few of the days have been nice enough to encourage plans for boating parties.

Let us all hold a positive thought for sunshine for MEA-BELLE and DERWOOD CANN, SPEED BANCROFT, and MARGUERITE LAMKIN HARRITY, who are planning a boat ride for today. Marguerite is here from Los Angeles, California, visiting her mother, LAYTON LAMKIN, and a number of friends from Arcadia will be driving up to attend the party. Plans are for the boat to leave the dock at noon, with a barbecue dinner to be served on the river. There will be a band on board to provide music for the occasion.

Those coming from out of town for the affair are BARBARA and LEDOUX PROVOSTY ABBY and BLOB NEBLETT, LEIGH PIERSON, and JULIA and CHARLES RUGDEN of Mesamonia, and MARY and FRANK MONTAGUE of Hotchkiss, Miss.

Last weekend, when NANCY SNELLINGS was home from Newcomb college with a box of boxwood greens. Saturday's weather did not permit a moon bedside. A group of us were up the night on A. L. SMITH'S roof. Nancy's visitors were MARTHA BELL of Mineral, Texas, LOUIS de la VERGNE and LOUIS FREEMAN of New Orleans.

That night MARIE LOUISE and GEORGE SNELLINGS entertained at dinner, honoring their daughter's friends. Pink and white quince and bridal wreath decorated the Snellings home for the party . . . . A massive arrangement of camellias in a footed urn centered the table, where sixteen guests were seated. Dishes were served as a main course, and for dessert, boiled Alaska brought flames to the table.

Next morning members of the bon vivants went to the home of JACKIE and HAROLD WOODS, JR., for milk punch before going to the Lotus Club for Sunday dinner . . . . They returned to New Orleans Sunday evening.

Former Monroyans BILLIE and BILL JACKSON, with their children, DANNY, DOUG, and POLLY, stopped off briefly last weekend. They visited their parents, W. M. Harpers and the W. E. Jacksons. The Jacksons were en route from Trinidad, where they have been living for the past four years, to their new home in Casper, Wyoming.

A visitor greatly awaited by flower lovers and of what better time could he come?—is J. GREGORY CONWAY, who is being presented tomorrow and Tuesday at Bayou DeSiard country club by Monroe Garden club. The nationally known author and arranger will lecture tomorrow. Tuesday's program includes beginners' classes in the morning; advanced in the afternoon.

MR. and MRS. W. M. LANE left yesterday for their home in Jacksonville, Florida, after a week's visit with their daughter, LEILA EWING; JIM and the boys, JIM and LANE. . . . Thursday afternoon JUNE M'HENRY and CHIC LEWIS were hostesses at a small party at the Lewis home, honoring Mrs. Lone Spring. Bouquets of quince, daffodils, and camellias were the flowers in the living room. Sherry and coffee were served from the dining table, which was centered with camellias. About twenty-five ladies called.

Last Saturday night a group of friends surprised JEANETTE and CARTER ACKEL with a house-warming at their new home. The honorees expected three couples for a game of cards, and ended up with eighteen guests, bringing gifts for the house and refreshments for the buffet table.

The Ackels have built on the new block of E. Street, just opened and sealed by Ecology Dr. . . . Construction is of rose faced brick with white wrought iron trim.

One enters a white-walled entrance hall with Terrazzo flooring, separated from the living room at the right by an iron grill. White is also used for walls, ceiling, and carpet in the living room. Jeanette prefers antique furniture, and the room's focal point is the long table flanked with velvet side chairs at the end of the room.

Terrazzo flooring continues from the entrance hall into the home - kitchen which stretches across the back of the house. Living area, with television, book shelves, and easy chairs, is separated from work areas by the serving counter, covered with gold-flecked white Formica. The room opens onto a roofed terrace.

Bedrooms are to the left of the entrance hall, and all have walls of the same shade of pink mist, and carpets of rosy beige. Daughter JERI's is first, with it's love-ly brass bed . . . . Sons BARTON and CHARLES share a room with brown coverlets on the twin beds and bedwide stripes of brown and blue in the draperies. One wall features built - in shelves above a long, long desk . . . . The children's bath, with pale pink tile, has curtains of brown, banded in pink.

In the master bedroom and bath, curtains are printed with butterflies in shades of blue and brown on a beige background. The coverlet on the four - poster bed echoes the blue of the material.

BILLIE and BERT ROOT and VERA and JOHN KELSO were hosts at a party in the Root home last Saturday night. Guests included members of Bayou DeSiard country club's Mardi Gras committee for the young people's lounge, of which group Billie and Vera were co-chairmen. Camellias and quince, used in profusion throughout the house, created an atmosphere of springtime. Red quince and red camellias formed a tall arrangement placed on a large coffee table in the living room. Camellias in various shades floated in flat bowls in the den and bedrooms.

Centering the dining table was white quince, banked at the base with variegated red and white camellias. Among the goodies on the buffet were lobster salad, chili dip, two unusually delicious cheese dips, ham sandwiches, tiny peppers stuffed with shrimp salad, and, for dessert, miniature cream puffs filled with apricot creme. About fifteen couples attended.

Closest invitation of the week were those issued by CINDY WILLIAMS for her seventh birthday party last Friday afternoon. They were in the form of a strung of paper dolls cutout to resemble little girls with petals. Details of party time, date, and place were lettered on successive skirts. . . . Eighteen girl friends gathered at Cindy's home to play Bingo and Stop the Music and other party games. JERRALD RYAN, CATHEY WATTLEY and KAREN ROBERTS were prize winners. . . . Ice cream was served, and cut with pale pink birthday cake decorated with fuzzy rabbit candle holders.

Each guest at the party received as a favor her own picture made with the bathing cap, taken by a Polaroid camera. Snapshots were mounted on "slates" of black paper, lettered "Me at Cindy's, 1961."

For tax season, here is "A Threnody" by Frank D. Winters: The tax assessor flatters me,
Tells me I'm worth a pot.
Oh, what a very wealthy guy he seems to think I am!
Makes me want to strut and preen like some theatrical old hen.
I who drive an ancient Chevy
Am informed he'd like to list
Taxes on a list of property he seems to think I own.
In my modest urban dwelling
He's not hesitant in spelling
Out the things he thinks we may ture, things we've pastured here and grown.
He says, "Count, count, count!" While his hopes within him mount:
"Count your horses, mares and geldings, mules tall ages shoes and swine Count your jennets and neat cattle."
No untidy ones? Well, that'll Cut the total down immensely.
Oh, such slobs, these cows of mine.
After that, our inquisitioners
Say count your air - conditioners,
Your silver plate, your golden plate, refrigerators, too.
Count your trailers, trucks and tractors.
Number them among the factors
Which create this mighty empire that he thinks belongs to you.
Whether city folk, or rural,
He suspects we own, in plura'
Things like steamboats, keel and whart boats. Have we count them this year?
Well, we won't be long a counting,
Let the tax man's hopes quit mounting,
For our domicile's a cubicle called 3HEA 'rear'!

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE H. WHITE JR.

White-McNeil Nuptials Read In West Monroe

A double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Beth McNeil and Clarence H. White Jr., was solemnized Saturday, February 25 at 8 p.m. in McCondon Baptist church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McNeil of West Monroe, and Mr. White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. White Sr., of Sawtz.

Baskets of white gladioli and pompon chrysanthemums banked the altar where the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. L. Strittman. An open Bible was placed on the altar and in the background were two candelabra and a cascade tree.

Mrs. Van Cloyd, organist, accompanied Rebecca Cates as she sang Malotte's The Lord's Prayer, and the bridegroom, who sang "Because." She also provided traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin with basque and front panel of the princess line. Cut in Chantilly lace, the dress was styled with sheer bouffe sleeves and full satin skirt which swept into a train. Her veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of seed pearls with the pearls motif repeated on the veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilacs to which centered with a white orchid, atop a white Bible.

Miss Lucy McNeil, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wore a sheath dress of deep aqua crystal satin with overskirt of pale blue silk organza. Her headdress matched her gown and she carried a bouquet of rose glamelias. Bridesmaids, who were dressed identically to the honor attendant, were Miss Mary Martin and Miss Dale Andding.

Flower girl was Miss Cathey McNeil, who wore a full skirted frock of the same material as the other attendants' and she carried a basket of pompon petals.

Monte G. Parks served as best man. Groomsmen were Ronnie Barnes and Vernon Brooks, who also acted as candlelighters and the ushers were Sonny Ramsey and David Ray Spier.

Mrs. McNeil, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue suit with matching accessories and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a wool jersey dress of olive green with matching accessories and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth over pink was centered with an arrangement of pink sweetheart roses and statice. The punch bowl at one end, was encircled with a sprayed pink arrangement opposite the tiered wedding cake, surmounted by a miniature bride and groom.

Miss Sarah Wright and Mrs. Charles Shelton presided at the table and Miss Sandra Odom had charge of the guest book. Out -of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin, Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kelly, Bastrop; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shelton, Miss Margaret Shelton, Pine Bluff, Ark., Miss Jean Shelton, Mer Rouge; Billy Ramsey, Ruston; Mrs. J. L. Stittman, Misses Barbara and Carol Strittman, all of Alto.

A graduate of Ouachita Parish high school Mr. White is currently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. Mrs. White graduated from West Monroe high school and Louisiana Business college.

Vows Of Area Interest Are Solemnized

The marriage of Mrs. Stella Whitworth and Mr. Cleve Sherrouse Sr. was solemnized at the home of Senator and Mrs. J. C. Gilbert of Sicily Island March 3.

The couple left immediately following the ceremony for a wedding trip to Palm Olive Farm, Miss. On their return they reside in Crowville.

EASTER SEAL PACKETS for the annual parade, sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Society for Crippled Children and Adults, are distributed by Mrs. Milling Bernstein, center and Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, right, chairman for Monroe, respectively, to Mrs. Glen B. Rossee, one of the drive workers.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS AND MATERIAL were given majors participating in the Easter Seal Parade next Sunday, at a coffee this week at Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center. Pictured, left to right, Mrs. W. M. McElroy Jr., Mrs. G. W. Wade, Mrs. Joe Tippit, Mrs. Harold Chilton and Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, discuss plans for the house to house canvass over coffee.

Easter Seal Parade Set Throughout City March 19

Annual Easter Seal Parade scheduled Sunday, March 19 will highlight the 1961 Easter Seal campaign of the Ouachita Parish Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Monroe.

Mrs. Milling Bernstein is chairman of the event in Monroe, with Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, West Monroe chairman.

Plans for the parade were launched this week at a coffee given by Mrs. Bernstein and Mrs. DeFreese at the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center, for majors who will head the various zones in the drive.

Packets of Easter Seals and other material were distributed to the workers for use in the city-wide house to house canvass scheduled next Sunday.

Other events are also planned during the drive from March 2 through Easter Sunday, April 2. An Easter lily sale is planned in the business areas throughout town and on Friday, March 17 the Bowlero Bowling Alley will donate all proceeds from bowling to the campaign.

The drive this year is being held in memory of Dr. Scott Hamilton, one of the founders of the Society. Children of the entire parish benefit from the drive as well as other parishes in the area through their respective drives. Through funds collected in the campaign the society pays for treatment of crippled children and adults at the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center, also purchases artificial limbs, braces and supports, buys wheel chairs, provides transportation to more specialized clinics in New Orleans and provides for speech therapy work at the center and in the home.

Primary source of solicitation is the Easter Seal Parade, which is a door to door canvass made by volunteer women.

Majors named by the two chairmen for the parade in Monroe and West Monroe, are Mrs. L. B. Armstrong, Mrs. Richard Pipes, Mrs. Hugo Angelini, Mrs. Jay Pierron, Mrs. Bucky McElroy, Mrs. Joe Tippit, Mrs. Glen Rossee, Mrs. Harry Frazer Sr., Mrs. Orbie Lee Gassett, Miss Armandine Renaud, Mrs. Leon Dennis and Mrs. Jack Liles, in Monroe and Mrs. Clayton Calhoun, Mrs. E. C. Vanderwerker, Mrs. Harold Chilton, Mrs. George Wade and Mrs. Oscar Harrell, West Monroe. Each will be assisted by groups of workers in covering the various zones of the cities.

String Quartet Performs For Musical Coterie

Three guests, including Mrs. Joseph B. Millwee, Mrs. William W. Hatcher and Mrs. J. F. Sandrock, were present when the Musical Coterie met Friday March 3 at the home of Mrs. F. V. Allison.

After a brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, a study of "Chamber Music," was presented by Miss Emy - Lou Biedenharn.

In keeping with the theme a musical program was presented by a string quartet, composed of David Smith, first violinist; junior at Neville high school; Carolyn Causey, sophomore at Neville, second violinist; Charles Williams, eighth grade student at Lee Junior high, violist and Gerrie Frasier, sophomore at Neville, cellist. The group is the first quartet to participate in the School Music Festival. They played "Two Chorales," by Bach; "Overture from 'Ptolomy" by Handel; "Jakiana" by Bosman, three movements, prelude, aria and bouree.

Refreshments were served at conclusion of the afternoon to the guests and members present who were Mrs. B. D. Allbritton, Miss Jonnie Bankhead, Miss Biedenharn, Mrs. Jerry Thomas, Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr., Mrs. Tex Kilpatrick, Mrs. Elmer Marshall, Mrs. Kedwick Martin, Mrs. H. G. McDonald, Mrs. James Murphy, Mrs. Phanor Perot, Mrs. Estelle Sanders, Miss Gertrude Sandrock, Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale Jr., Mrs. Henry Whitfield, Mrs. Felix Willey, Mrs. Everett Zeagler.

The next meeting will be March 7 at 3:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Leroy Anspach.

Currys At Home In Alexandria

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wyatt Curry have established a home in Alexandria following their marriage on February 27. Mrs. Curry is the former Marie Duncan Perritt, daughter of Mrs. Phil Duncan of Winnsboro. Mr. Curry is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Curry of Pollock, and grandson of Mrs. Henrietta Walker.

The wedding was solemnized in the Pollock home of Mrs. Hazel Lemon, aunt of the bridegroom. The Rev. Donald Lemon, cousin of the bridegroom, and minister of the Baptist church, officiated at the 7 p.m. ceremony.

Bullock-Rush Wedding Held In Bride's Home

Rev. J. D. Cheatham, pastor of First Baptist church of Oak Grove, performed the wedding ceremony which united Miss Patsy Ruth Rush, daughter of Mrs. Wiley L. Rush and the late Mr. Rush of Oak Grove, and Morris Irving Bullock son of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrous L. Bullock, West Monroe.

Vows were exchanged on March 4 at 6 p.m. in the home of the bride's mother. Miss Mary Alice Thomas sang "Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Miss Martha Ann Lipp, pianist, preceding the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white peau de soie and a shoulder-length veil of illusion attached to a tiara of white iridescent sequins with teardrop pearls. Her bouquet was a white orchid with lily of the valley and streamers, which she carried atop a white Bible.

Miss Billie Jean Rush attended her sister as maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a frock of winter green tulle over taffeta, styled with full skirt, with which she wore matching green satin pumps and carried a nosegay of yellow pompon chrysanthemums with mint and winter green streamers.

Raymond Harold Bullock, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Rush wore a navy blue sheath with white accessories and a corsage of white pompons. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Bullock, wore a navy and white ensemble with a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

A reception was held in the home following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over yellow and centered by the tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. J. M. Kees, aunt of the bride, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. J. E. Shivers served the cake. Miss Leah Rush, sister of the bride, had charge of Springs, Arkansas, the couple will the guest book. be at home at 300 Mill Street in After a wedding trip to Hot West Monroe.

Coronation Of Queen Features Military Ball

Highlighting social activities of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Northeast Louisiana State College was Saturday night's military ball in Gunby Dining Hall on campus.

Sponsoring the event were Scabbard and Blade and the Pershing Rifles, honorary military organizations.

Special feature of the evening was coronation of Miss Kirby Jane Mooney of Centralia, Illinois, as Military Queen, with other nominees for the title serving as honor attendants. They were Misses Carol Shipp of Bosco; Kati McKenzie of Shreveport and Norma Jean Magee of Monroe.

Queen Kirby was escorted by Cadet Col. Robert Tatum, commander of Scabbard and Blade. Her highness was presented a bouquet of crimson roses and a loving cup, and congratulated by Lt. Col. Lawrence R. Longfellow, professor of military science at Northeast.

Other nominees also received loving cups, following their presentation as members of the royal court.

Additional coed sponsors of the ROTC also were honored in special ceremonies. They and their escorts entered the dance hall under an arch of sabres formed by cadets, and were given silver bracelets, bearing charms engraved with their initials and ROTC 1961.

Dancing was against a background of miniature houses above which letters suspended from the ceiling, developed the theme, "Paint the Town Red."

Featured with Queen Kirby and Cadet Col. Robert Tatum were the following candidates and their escorts: Miss Shipp and Julian Fontana; Miss Magee and Cadet Capt. Jack Harper; Kati McKenzie and Cadet Capt. Joe Swendson.

The sponsors and their escorts included: Miss Karen Strozier and Cadet Lt. Ronnie Sanford; Mrs. Donnie Nolan and Cadet Capt. Donnie Nolan, who was master of ceremonies; Miss Celia Mantrozos and Cadet Lt. Gene Bates; Miss Jeanie Duffey and Cadet Lt. Perry Beaver; Miss Esta Ford and Cadet Capt. Mickey Yerger; Miss Alien Gunn and Cadet Ronald Mock; Miss Gwen Barnes and Cadet Sgt. Rodney Johnson; Miss Carolyn Oliver and Cadet Lt. Carl Shambro; Miss Merilyn Burson and Cadet Sgt. Lannie Johnson; Miss Annette Parra and Cadet Lt. Charles Watkins.

Miss Jane Crawford and Cadet Lt. Bobby Walker; Miss Kathryn Wiggly and Cadet Lt. Maurice Gold; Miss Brenda Crowe and and Cadet Capt. J. L. Furlow; Miss Nita Denmon and Cadet Lt. Larry Denmon, commander of the Pershing Rifles.

Coronation Of Queen Features Military Ball

Highlighting social activities of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Northeast Louisiana State College was Saturday night's military ball in Gunby Dining Hall on campus.

Sponsoring the event were Scabbard and Blade and the Pershing Rifles, honorary military organizations.

Special feature of the evening was coronation of Miss Kirby Jane Mooney of Centralia, Illinois, as Military Queen, with other nominees for the title serving as honor attendants. They were Misses Carol Shipp of Bosco; Kati McKenzie of Shreveport and Norma Jean Magee of Monroe.

Queen Kirby was escorted by Cadet Col. Robert Tatum, commander of Scabbard and Blade. Her highness was presented a bouquet of crimson roses and a loving cup, and congratulated by Lt. Col. Lawrence R. Longfellow, professor of military science at Northeast.

Other nominees also received loving cups, following their presentation as members of the royal court.

Additional coed sponsors of the ROTC also were honored in special ceremonies. They and their escorts entered the dance hall under an arch of sabres formed by cadets, and were given silver bracelets, bearing charms engraved with their initials and ROTC 1961.

Dancing was against a background of miniature houses above which letters suspended from the ceiling, developed the theme, "Paint the Town Red."

Featured with Queen Kirby and Cadet Col. Robert Tatum were the following candidates and their escorts: Miss Shipp and Julian Fontana; Miss Magee and Cadet Capt. Jack Harper; Kati McKenzie and Cadet Capt. Joe Swendson.

The sponsors and their escorts included: Miss Karen Strozier and Cadet Lt. Ronnie Sanford; Mrs. Donnie Nolan and Cadet Capt. Donnie Nolan, who was master of ceremonies; Miss Celia Mantrozos and Cadet Lt. Gene Bates; Miss Jeanie Duffey and Cadet Lt. Perry Beaver; Miss Esta Ford and Cadet Capt. Mickey Yerger; Miss Alien Gunn and Cadet Ronald Mock; Miss Gwen Barnes and Cadet Sgt. Rodney Johnson; Miss Carolyn Oliver and Cadet Lt. Carl Shambro; Miss Merilyn Burson and Cadet Sgt. Lannie Johnson; Miss Annette Parra and Cadet Lt. Charles Watkins.

Miss Jane Crawford and Cadet Lt. Bobby Walker; Miss Kathryn Wiggly and Cadet Lt. Maurice Gold; Miss Brenda Crowe and and Cadet Capt. J. L. Furlow; Miss Nita Denmon and Cadet Lt. Larry Denmon, commander of the Pershing Rifles.

Pierce-Miller Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Mary Jacqueline Miller and Charles Bentley Pierce in a candlelight setting Sunday, March 5 at 3 p.m. in Temple Baptist church in Winnsboro. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Olion Miller of Winnsboro and Mr. Pierce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Deloyt Pierce of Newellton.

The Rev. Joe Mongle, pastor of the church, performed the double ring ceremony before baskets of white gladioli and fern interspersed with branched candelabra holding white cathedral tapers. Chancel rails were garlanded with English ivy, caught at intervals with sprays of white spring flowers. In center of the altar setting was an arrangement of white camellias and bridal wreath and family pews were marked with satin bows in tulle ruffles.

Mrs. Joe Mongle presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Sgt. Joe Westerburg, uncle of the bride, who sang "I Love You Truly," and "Whither Thou Goest." Candles were lighted by Bill Miller, brother of the bride and Tommy Lupo, preceding entrance of the bridal party.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an original gown of white bridal satin, lace and tulle, fashioned with scalloped neckline and long fitted sleeves which tapered to points over the hands. Lace of the bodice was styled into a bustle effect extending over tiny ruffles of the floor length skirt. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a crown of lace and satin and her bouquet was of white carnations showered with satin streamers.

Miss Evelyn Nelson served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Ruby Nell Vines and Miss Edith Jean Hassell. Miss Sherron Pierce, sister of the bridegroom, served as junior bridesmaid and Marilyn Stewart was flower girl.

The attendants wore identical gowns of beige and pink brocade taffeta, styled with puff sleeves, round necklines and full skirts accented with double boxed pleats. Their headdresses were small crowns, to which short scalloped veils matching their gowns were attached. Miss Nelson carried a bouquet of pink carnations and the other attendants' bouquets were of blue iris and pink feathered carnations, tied with pink satin ribbon.

John Robert Ezell served as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Bobby Colvin, Jerry Henry and Sonny Pierce, with Joey Westerburg as ring bearer.

Mrs. Miller wore for her daughter's wedding a mauve lace frock with complementary accessories and a white corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a coral blue dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception followed in the recreation rooms of the church. Miss Beth Westerburg presided at the bride's book. The serving table was covered with a pink linen cloth, featuring a full net ruffle, caught at intervals with pink and white satin bows. Centerpiece was an arrangement of variegated pink and white camellias in a silver footed bowl, based with lacy fern. Pink bows and camellias were attached to the candelabra which held white tapers.

Mrs. Jean P. Peterson, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. John W. Collins served the wedding cake, which was topped with a miniature bride and groom and encircled on a mirror by pink tulle ruching.

Misses Janet Westerburg, Donna Westerburg and Martha Lupo served as tea girls.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a blue spring suit with matching accessories and a corsage from her bouquet. The couple will establish a home in Lubbock, Texas, where the bridegroom will be stationed at Reese Air force base.

Mrs. Pierce graduated from Winnsboro High School and completed a business course at Northeast Louisiana Vocational School. A graduate of Newellton High School, Mr. Pierce has been in the air force the past six months.

Among out - of - town guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Palmer Jr., Mrs. Lelia M. Segers, Newellton; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Collins, Baton Rouge; Mrs. Jean P. Peterson, Dallas, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Pierce, Virgil B. Pierce, Miss Martha Louise Pierce, Rita Pierce, Mrs. F. A. Crane, Mrs. T. R. Melancon, of Pollack, Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Pierce of Vidalia; Mrs. Oscar Krouse and Ben Westerburg of Sicily Island; Sgt. and Mrs. Joe R. Westerburg, Beth and Donna of Biloxi, Miss.

Joyce Lanier, Mr. Files Wed In Twilight Ceremony

A candlelight ceremony solemnized at twilight Saturday, March 11 in the First Baptist church of Monroe, united in marriage Miss Joyce Ann Lanier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Elvin Lanier of Monroe and James Ernest Files Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ernest Files Sr., of Oak Ridge.

Myriads of lighted tapers formed a background for the double-ring ceremony performed at 6:30 p.m. by Dr. James T. Horton. Spiral candelabra, entwined with greenery were used across the choir loft to form a semi-circle and were adjoined with garlands of white satin ribbon. Tall pedestal baskets of white gladioli and stock flanked either side of the altar.

Candles were lighted by Miss Sheila Rester, niece of the bride and Miss Sandy Bailey. They wore frocks of pale aqua silk organza, fashioned with scoop necklines and brief sleeves. Floating front panels fell from a flat bow high on the basque bodice to the hemline of the bouffant skirts. They wore matching headdresses and wristlets of pale pink carnations.

Preceding the exchange of vows appropriate nuptial music was presented by the organist, Mrs. B. D. Albritton, who also accompanied Veo T. Gray, as he sang "O Perfect Love," "Calm As the Night," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Robert B. Lanier of Pine Bluff, Arkansas. She wore an original gown of pure silk satin - faced organza, with French reembroidered Alencon lace roses embellished with tiny pearls encircling the rounded neckline and repeated on the three - quarter sleeves. The front waist extended to a slight point and billowed out in huge pleats, caught up in back with large folds, in which nestled two oversize roses. The voluminous skirt swept into a cathedral train and tiny self - covered buttons enclosed the back bodice. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a single large rose of the dress fabric with sprays of lily of the valley extending over the forehead. The bride's bouquet was a cascade arrangement of large white roses and satin ribbons.

Mrs. M. T. Lester, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a frock of palest aqua silk organza, fashioned with draped bodice crossing in front with a small bow at the waistline. The bell shaped skirt featured a petal effect in front and her headdress, encrusted with tiny aqua pearls and sequins, was worn low on her forehead, with a matching veil extending to her shoulders in back. Her slippers matched the gown and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and green foliage combined with poufs of pink jet.

Bridesmaids were Miss Wanda Lou Lanier, Little Rock, Arkansas, niece of the bride; Mrs. Marshall Gilbert, Birmingham, Alabama; Miss Gyl Rowell and Mrs. Ira Phillips Jr., both of Monroe. They wore frocks identical to the honor attendant's, with matching headdresses and veils over their faces. Their bouquets were also identical to the honor attendant's.

Miss Marilynn Lanier, niece of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a white organdy dress, styled with Peter Pan collar and puff sleeves. Her headdress was a band of tiny white flowers and she carried a white basket of rose petals, tied with ribbon streamers.

Serving as best man was the bridegroom's cousin, Jack Bernard Files. Groomsmen and ushers were Henry A. Pipes Jr., Oak Ridge; Thomas Lewis Lanier, Little Rock, Ark., nephew of the bride; Richard Steadman, Jonesboro, cousin of the bridegroom and Ira Phillips Jr., Monroe.

For the occasion the bride's mother was wearing a tailored lace dress of champagne beige, styled with V neckline and an organza drape from the belt was fastened with a jeweled pin. She wore a beige flower hat, matching shoes and bag and long gloves in bone, and a yellow orchid corsage. She was escorted by her grandson, Thomas L. Lanier. Mrs. Files, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of pale blue silk chiffon with lace bodice, and wide tucks accenting the skirt. Completing her costume were matching blue shoes, a small white flower hat and white gloves and a white orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social room. The refreshment table covered with a white cutwork cloth, held two silver punch bowls opposite a central arrangement of white carnations and stock, flanked by triple candelabra holding lighted candles. Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Jr., Oak Ridge and Mrs. Sam Campbell Jr. presided at the punch bowls.

The bride's bouquet was placed on the cake table, at the base of a silver candelabra. The tiered cake was served from a silver tray, more than 100 years old belonging to one of the oldest Oak Ridge families. Greenery and tiny white flowers encircled the tray. Mrs. E. H. Bailey and Mrs. Rudy Ramsey served the wedding cake and Miss Helen Smith presided at the bride's book from another table which held a memory candle.

Tea girls were Miss Helen Lucille Heidingsfelder, Port Arthur, Texas; Miss Beth Moore, Alexandria; Miss Nancy Files and Miss Marcia Files, Oak Ridge, all cousins of the bridegroom; and Miss Doris Rhea Taylor, Pineville. Rice bags were distributed by the bride's nieces, Bobby Sue Lanier and Linda Jean Rester.

For a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, through Biloxi, Gulfport, and New Orleans, the bride changed to a spring wool suit in clover pink, styled with full-sleeved jacket and skirt of unpressed pleats. Her hat was of matching flowers with shoes and bag of peau de soie and a white orchid corsage. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1403 Forsythe.

Mrs. Files graduated from Ouachita Parish High school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College and is a member of Gamma Zeta and Beta Sigma Phi sororities. Mr. Files was graduated from Oak Ridge High school and Louisiana Polytechnic at Ruston, where he was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha.

New Orleans Church Site Of Olinde-Chapman Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Narvin Hersey Sawyer Jr., of Oak Grove, announce the marriage of their foster daughter, Miss Verline Chapman, Oak Grove, to Dr. Alfred Adolph Olinde, son of Mrs. Humphrey Olinde and the late Mr. Olinde of New Roads.

The wedding was solemnized Saturday, March 4 at 11 a.m. in the First Methodist church at New Orleans. An organ prelude of nuptial music was presented by Miss Sharon Gail Sawyer.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Sawyer, wore a gown of ivory taffeta fashioned on princess lines. A scoop neckline and bracelet length sleeves were features of the fitted bodice and a draped tunic added interest to the skirt. A cluster of soft pleats extended from the back waist line to form a court train. Appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearls enriched the neckline and sleeves and bordered the tunic. Pearls composed a coronet which held her veil of illusion.

Miss Margaret McKevit, the bride's only attendant, wore a dress of pastel green tulle and satin.

Mrs. Sawyer wore for the occasion a beige lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow and gold.

Following a reception held at a private club on Lake Ponchartrain the couple left for a two week wedding trip into Old Mexico. For travel the bride was wearing an imported linen suit of stone blue with matching accessories and the flowers from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home in New Orleans.

The bride was graduated from Louisiana State University and completed a graduate course in anesthesia. Dr. Olinde received his B. S. degree from L. S. U. and his M. D. From L. S. U's school of medicine in New Orleans, where he will complete his residency in July.

Bailey and Mrs. Rudy Ramsey served the wedding cake and Miss Helen Smith presided at the bride's book from another table which held a memory candle.

Tea girls were Miss Helen Lucille Heidingsfelder, Port Arthur, Texas; Miss Beth Moore, Alexandria; Miss Nancy Files and Miss Marcia Files, Oak Ridge, all cousins of the bridegroom; and Miss Doris Rhea Taylor, Pineville. Rice bags were distributed by the bride's nieces, Bobby Sue Lanier and Linda Jean Rester.

For a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, through Biloxi, Gulfport, and New Orleans, the bride changed to a spring wool suit in clover pink, styled with full-sleeved jacket and skirt of unpressed pleats. Her hat was of matching flowers with shoes and bag of peau de soie and a white orchid corsage. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1403 Forsythe.

Mrs. Files graduated from Ouachita Parish High school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College and is a member of Gamma Zeta and Beta Sigma Phi sororities. Mr. Files was graduated from Oak Ridge High school and Louisiana Polytechnic at Ruston, where he was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha.

New Orleans Church Site Of Olinde-Chapman Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Narvin Hersey Sawyer Jr., of Oak Grove, announce the marriage of their foster daughter, Miss Verline Chapman, Oak Grove, to Dr. Alfred Adolph Olinde, son of Mrs. Humphrey Olinde and the late Mr. Olinde of New Roads.

The wedding was solemnized Saturday, March 4 at 11 a.m. in the First Methodist church at New Orleans. An organ prelude of nuptial music was presented by Miss Sharon Gail Sawyer.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Sawyer, wore a gown of ivory taffeta fashioned on princess lines. A scoop neckline and bracelet length sleeves were features of the fitted bodice and a draped tunic added interest to the skirt. A cluster of soft pleats extended from the back waist line to form a court train. Appliques of reembroidered Alencon lace and pearls enriched the neckline and sleeves and bordered the tunic. Pearls composed a coronet which held her veil of illusion.

Miss Margaret McKevit, the bride's only attendant, wore a dress of pastel green tulle and satin.

Mrs. Sawyer wore for the occasion a beige lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow and gold.

Following a reception held at a private club on Lake Ponchartrain the couple left for a two week wedding trip into Old Mexico. For travel the bride was wearing an imported linen suit of stone blue with matching accessories and the flowers from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home in New Orleans.

The bride was graduated from Louisiana State University and completed a graduate course in anesthesia. Dr. Olinde received his B. S. degree from L. S. U. and his M. D. From L. S. U's school of medicine in New Orleans, where he will complete his residency in July.

Gala Social Events Mark Medical Assistants Meet

A luncheon and anniversary dinner were among events held Saturday during the first annual convention of the Louisiana Association of Medical Assistants held in Monroe, with a large number of out-of-town members in attendance.

The luncheon yesterday noon in the Green Room of the Penn Hotel was in honor of Miss Margaret Marks of New Orleans, outgoing president of the State association. Mrs. Myrtice Eady, president of the Ouachita Parish Chapter, presided at the affair.

An arrangement of spring flowers centered the speakers' table and individual corsages marked each place.

Carl Walker, Monroe attorney, was guest speaker. His topic was "Medicolegal Problems Affecting the Medical Assistant."

In commending Miss Marks for her service as 1959-60 president, she was presented with a gold charm engraved with the initials L.A.M.A. and date of her term of office. In addition Miss Marks was presented a scroll proclaiming her an honorary citizen of Monroe, with a gold key to the city.

GALA DINNER

An anniversary dinner, preceded by a cocktail party, was also held in the Green Room of the Penn Hotel last night for members and guests attending the convention.

Miniature birthday cakes were placed the length of the tables and on either side of the colorful floral arrangement on the speakers' table. Vanda orchids in lapel containers were at each place.

Miss Marks presided over the dinner with Mrs. Claudia Pittman of Monroe, acting as mistress of ceremonies. She introduced officers, state advisors and other official guests.

One of the highlights of the evening was an address given by Dr. S. L. Courtman of Monroe, whose subject was "The Medical Assistants as the Doctor's Public Relations Ambassador."

Miss Sisson, Cecil Hogg Wed In Baptist Church

Miss Sherrye Lee Sisson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hope Sisson of Columbia and West Monroe, became the bride of Cecil Monique Hogg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tay Hogg, in a ceremony performed Friday, March 3 at 6:30 p.m.

The vows were exchanged before an altar setting of white gladioli and stock at the Trinity Baptist church in West Monroe, with Rev. James B. White officiating.

Miss Rosemary White presented a program of appropriate nuptial selections and preceding the ceremony George Brian, speech instructor at Northeast, recited the "43rd Sonnet from the Portugese," by Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Davis Bingham, music instructor at Northeast, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother- in - law, Robert Mayo Nolen Sr., of Mer Rouge. She wore a sage green wool suit with beige accessories and carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis atop a white Bible.

Miss Martha Ann Knotts, Sicily Island, was maid of honor and wore a gold - flocked brown silk dress. Bridesmaids were Miss Ogla Kokinos of Athens, Greece, who wore an off - white imported wool dress and Miss Sue Ann Nolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nolan Sr., Mer Rouge, as junior bridesmaid, who wore a brown polished cotton frock. All carried bouquets of huge gold chrysanthemums, showered with satin streamers.

Pat Riser of West Monroe, served as best man and ushers were Max Nolan, Willy Rogers, Larry White, all of West Monroe, and Larry Hogg, brother of the bridegroom.

Rachele Hegge presided at the guest book, placed on a table, beside a memory candle.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Sisson wore a blue silk dress with black patent accessories and a white orchid and stephanotis corsage. Mrs. Pat Riser, sister of the bridegroom, wore a red wool sheath dress, with harmonizing corsage.

Mrs. Hogg is a graduate of Mer Rouge high school and Northeast Louisiana State college. Mr. Hogg, who is presently teaching at West Monroe high school, is a graduate of Dubach high school and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Easy Does It

NEW YORK (UPI) — Getting ready for a little furniture refinishing? Or have you decided to do something about that old woodwork and its umpteen coats of old, cracked paint?

When you start the paint removal step, a paint remover should be flooded onto the surface and never brushed. This is the advice of a firm (Chemical Products Inc.) making all - purpose paint and varnish remover.

Easy Does It

NEW YORK (UPI) — Getting ready for a little furniture refinishing? Or have you decided to do something about that old woodwork and its umpteen coats of old, cracked paint?

When you start the paint removal step, a paint remover should be flooded onto the surface and never brushed. This is the advice of a firm (Chemical Products Inc.) making all - purpose paint and varnish remover.

Church Ceremony Saturday Unites Mary Jo Ellington, Francis Greaves

MRS. FRANCIS LANDON GREAVES JR.

White gladioli and candelabra of cathedral tapers interspersed with English ivy formed a bridal aisle for the ceremony Saturday, March 11 which united in marriage Miss Mary Jo Ellington and Francis Landon Greaves Jr. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Ellington of Rayville, and Mr. Greaves si the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Greaves, also of Rayville.

Officiating at the 6 p.m. ceremony solemnized in the First Methodist Church at Rayville, was Rev. Oscar E. Cloyd, who was assisted by Rev. R. E. Walton. The altar was flanked with arrangements of white gladioli and snapdragons with standards of green fern on either side of the prie dieu.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Raymond Bolton, organist and Willie Andreas, whose selections included "Wedding Blessing" by Dosia Carlson and "Wedding Prayer" by Fern Dunlap.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of candle white satin with round neckline, elbow length sleeves, with fitted bodice tapered into deep folds at the hipline, extending into a full skirt which formed a cathedral train. An empire waistline was formed by a tucked midriff, adorned with tiny self - covered buttons which also extended down the back. Two satin roses centered with tiny seed pearls marked the waistline in back. Her elbow length veil was attached to a matching satin rose also centered with clusters of seed pearls. She carried a cascade arrangement of stephanotis, encircling a white catalya orchid, with a white Bible given her at birth by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Williams.

Serving as maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Linda Kay Ellington, and bridesmaids were Miss Judith Downes, Miss Jean Ellington, sister of the bride, Mrs. George Durham III, Miss Pamela Matte, Miss Patricia Richardson and Miss Frankie Stokes.

The attendants wore identical gowns of sherbet pink peau de soie, styled with fitted bodices and bell skirts. Roses of matching peau de soie, to which were attached short prayer veils formed their headdresses. Completing their costumes were pink shoes, and short white gloves. The honor attendant carried a cascade of pink hybrid tea roses and bridesmaids' bouquets were cascades of pink Doctor Tinsley's camellias.

Candlelighters were Jay Ellington, brother of the bride, and Lettie Cooper, who wore white choir robes.

George C. Purvis Jr., attended the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen were Mark C. Brown, Howard McMahon, Robert Beauchamp, Edward Ainsworth George Durham III and Huey Moreland.

Mrs. Ellington chose for her daughter's wedding a pink floral silk organza dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink hyacinths. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Greaves, wore an orchid chifton dress with white sequin hat and gloves, orchid shoes and a corsage of purple hyacinths.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. Covered with a pink linen cloth, the bride's table was centered with a crystal candelabra holding lighted tapers, encircled at the base with spring flowers in shades of pink and white. Arrangements of white gladioli and other spring blossoms were used throughout the reception room.

Presiding at the bride's book on a table, graced with a memory candle in a base of pink camellias, were Miss Ann Shirley of Bastrop and Miss Wilma Tower of Rayville. The tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Oscar Cloyd, Dallas, Texas and Mrs. A. W. Knighton of Shreveport, and alternating at the crystal punch bowl were Miss Ola Cooper, aunt of the bridegroom and Miss Jayne Lyles of Mangham.

Tea girls were Miss Charlotte McCarty, Mrs. John Thomason, Ruston and Miss Joan Williams, Monroe and junior tea girls were Carolyn Richardson and Elizabeth Ann McConnell. Rice bags were distributed by Vickie Ball and Suzonne McConnell.

Others assisting with courtesies were Mrs. Alvin McCarty, Mrs. Lester Johnson, Mrs. M. D. Stodghill, Mrs. Jim Bruce and Mrs. Robie Gryder. Background piano music was provided throughout the reception by Miss Charlotte Ann Stodghill and Mrs. James Harrell.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a beige silk linen suit with mint green flower hat, beige gloves and other accessories in black patent. Her corsage was a white orchid. Mr. Greaves is scheduled to enter the army for six months duration in the near future and Mrs. Graves will be at home temporarily in Rayville.

The bride attended Centenary College of Shreveport and received her B.A. degree in elementary education from Louisiana Tech. She was affiliated with Chi Omega sorority while at Centenary. The bridegroom is a graduate of Louisiana Tech, where he received his B.S. degree in business administration.

MRS. W. A. TURNER

Mollie Carroll Becomes Bride Of W. A. Turner

Baskets of white gladioli and tall white tapers against a background of tapers in branched candelabra, entwined with ivy, formed a setting at the altar of the Oak Ridge Methodist church for the wedding of Miss Mollie Faye Carroll of Oak Ridge and W. T. Turner of Monroe. Rev. Walter Baker officiated at the 7:30 p.m. ceremony on February 25.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. L. Lansford of Crowley and the late William Breese Carroll, Oak Grove. Mr. Turner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Turner of Monroe.

Preceding the exchange of vows a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Diann Smith, organist, who also accompanied Mrs. Robert O'Connor, as she sang "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," and "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by W. L. Lansford. She wore a gown of white delustered satin, fashioned with scalloped Sabrina neckline, appliqued in Alencon lace embellished with seed pearls. Lace appliques also adorned the bouffant skirt which fell from a basque bodice featuring long tapering sleeves, and extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a pearl headdress and she carried a cascade of cream white roses and white freezia interspersed with white nylon pouffs and showered with satin streamers, atop a white Bible.

Miss Billie Jean Carroll served as maid of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a violet silk organza frock, styled with scoop neckline, fitted bodice and draped bell skirt, adorned with a back bow, and a head buggine bot of lilacs. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow roses and orchid pompon chrysanthemums, showered with mauve satin streamers and maline.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was Darelle Turner. Ushers included Nat Troy, Steve Nichols, Fred Brinson, Jeep Sanders, and Gene Howard, all of Monroe and Joe Conger of Oak Ridge. Joe Monroe Mett III was ring bearer.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Lansford, wore a beige lace dress with matching hat and a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Turner, mother of the bridegroom, was wearing a blue lace sheath with stole, white feather hat and yellow rose corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mrs. Joe Monroe Mott Sr., with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Conger, co - hosts. The round bride's table was covered in white satin with a tulle overskirt and centered with a majestic arrangement of white roses, pompon chrysanthemums and satin ribbons, held aloft by a silver candelabra, which shed soft candlelight on the silver punch bowl and wedding cake. The arrangement was based with white glazed grapes.

Mrs. Henry Pipes Sr., and Mrs. T. L. Smith, aunt of the bride, served the cake and presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Arthur Carroll, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Neil Mott, Mrs. Virginia Sue Shepard and Miss Nancy Lillian Files, had charge of the bride's book and ten girls were Misses Mary Allen Files, Chan Barham, Nancy Kay Brown, Sally Barham, Camilla Calak and Elizabeth McElroy. Houseparty for the reception included Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mott Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Mott, Jr., Mr. and Mr. Kurt Mott, Miss Susan Smith, Mrs. Henry Pipes Jr., Miss C. G. Rolfe, Mrs. Edwin Conger, Mrs. Elmer McKee, Ben Mrs. Bill Smith, Mrs. Jack Carey, Mrs. Homer Fixan, Mrs. Norman McDuffie, Mrs. Conrad McDuffie, Mrs. Arthur Carroll and Mrs. T. L. Smith.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans, the bride was wearing a bone silk suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses and freezia lilies.

A graduate of Oak Ridge high school, Mrs. Turner attended Southeastern University at Lafayette and Northeast Louisiana State college in Monroe. Mr. Turner was graduated from Neville high school and Northeast Louisiana State College.

Out - of - town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Windsor, Mrs. Shelby White, John Rolfe Windsor and Miss Gilda Tyson, Mer Rouge; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Troy, Mrs. W. B. Hardcastle, Penny and Ginny Nichols, Mrs. L. M. Brinson, Ann Brinson, Sally Barham, Gene Howard, Bobby Johnson, Nat Troy, Steve Nichols, Fred Brinson, Jeep Sanders, all of Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Clements and Dickie, Farmerville; Mr. and Mrs. Doug Turner, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Turner, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Greene, Shreveport; Miss Judith Downes, Rayville; William C. Allen, Monroe; Gary Smith, Baton Rouge; Mr. and Mrs. James McLendon, Sterlington; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Turner, Joe, Tyrone, Johnny and Teresa Turner, of Monroe.

Mrs. Russell New Member Of Bosco Club

Mrs. Jack Russell was welcomed as a new member of the Bosco Home Demonstration Club when it met in the home of Mrs. I. Z. Cloud.

Mrs. C. W. Hair conducted the business session, during which Mrs. P. M. Jeter gave a nutrition report and Mrs. Roy Hart reported on family life.

A demonstration on the care of kitchen utensils was given by Mrs. Wheelis Dear and during the social hour Mrs. J. R. Lee won the contest prize. Refreshments were served to 12 members and the club adjourned to meet March 21 in the home of Mrs. Russell at 2 p.m.

THE HOME SHIFT

Season Offers Much Beauty

By MILDRED SWIFT

You're invited to attend either of the two demonstrations tomorrow to be given by Gregory Conway. The fee has been announced. Place — Bayou DeSiard Country Club, Monroe — Morning time 10:30 — afternoon 2:00. This is open to all who can attend. No reservations necessary on Monday.

Tuesday clinics are also open to the public, the fee has been announced: Same place, beginners class 9:30 a.m. — advanced class, 1:30 p.m. Paid reservations must be made. Gregory is brought to this area by the Monroe Garden Club.

At this time of year there is so much beauty. Haven't the purple Japanese Magnolias been gorgeous? No wonder they are called tulip trees since each plant looks like a mass of tulips. One tree can dominate a landscape.

Have you ever seen any flowering shrub more beautiful for cutting than the white flowering quince? Just two or three stems are beautiful. You'll not want for flowers for your church as long as the flowering crabapple is in bloom. Especially the flora bunda. Did you ever see a purple magnolia outside a room done in pink? Or a pink crabapple just outside a room done in blue or pink? If so — you know what the decorators mean by bringing the outside, inside.

GARDEN JOBS

You can still plant dahlias and of course gladiolus, too. Divide bearded iris (if they need it) After they bloom. When you replant, work bone meal in the soil and plant very shallow.

Do any fertilizing or transplanting that you did not get done in February. After they bloom, prune spirea, bridal wreath, weigela, forsythia, climbing roses, flowering almond, flowering quince, crabapples, pearl bush.

Start a new lawn or work over the old one. Sprig St. Augustine and centipede grass. Put out Zoysia Grass in squares. Plant Carpet Grass or Bermuda. That, of course means to take your choice of one kind of grass and put that out — not all kinds in one yard.

Work a little lime around roots of clematis and lilac. They both love a sweet soil.

If you planted sweet peas early, you could work a small amount of nitrate around the plants, now. Very small amount.

Divide and reset cannas if you want large blooms.

SEED TO PLANT

These seed may be planted this month, outdoors; sweet alyssum, Chinese forget-me-not, arctotis, candytuft, gaillardia, petunia, zinnia, portulaca, phlox Drummondi salvia (blue and red) scabiosa, verbena, early cosmos, sunflower, four o'clock, nasturtium, ageratum, balsam, marigold, moonflower, calliopsis, feverfew, periwinkle, torenia, zinnias, marigold, African golden daisy, gypsophilia.

ORNAMENTAL VINE

Hyacinth bean is a good free flowering tropical ornamental vine for this area. The vine will produce flowers six to seven months of the year.

The pea shaped blooms, smaller than sweet peas and lacking fragrance, range from a violet color to a deep purple as they age. Flowers are borne all along purple stems, some of the stems being 14 to 16 inches long. The flowers hold up well when cut.

Seed pods, some about three inches long and three quarters of an inch wide, resemble butter bean pods in shape; are purple and very shiny. The fresh seed pods can also be used in arrangements.

Seeds may be planted this month in open ground and they will flower six to eight weeks later. Planting may be made up until midsummer and still produce blooms. Plant seeds shallow in a sunny location.

Being a vine, this plant needs support. It's beautiful on a fence. It will hold to a tree but the blooms are not too many because of the shade.

This vine will grow in any good garden soil and it seems disease and insect free.

NEW

Hosiery manufacturers will soon have a new nylon hose on the market that is insured against runs for 30 days. They will have a double twist thread instead of the single bulky one now in use, and they will cost a little bit more. The guarantee of longer wear is certainly good news for all women, but they will still require the same gentle washing care that present nylons do. That is — they should be hand washed in a mild detergent before the first wearing and again after each wearing. With special care the new nylons will not only retain their shape and wear longer, but will mean a greatly reduced hosiery bill for every lady in the family.

STATEMENTS

Ladies, if your husband complains about helping you with household chores, tell him that many medical authorities now believe that lack of exercise is one of the most important factors in premature aging. They say that simply lying on the sofa and watching you work will only make him older, sooner.

But — in all fairness, maybe we should also pass along the remarks of a gentleman who celebrated his 100th birthday last month. When asked his secret of long life, he replied, "Don't let your wife put you to work when you get home from your own work. I always headed for the sofa and lots of rest. You can't let your wife push you around." You take it from there.

WATCH!

If you see tiny winged insects around the house this spring or summer you're probably being termited. Every year swarming termites leave their ground nests to start new colonies. They fly a short distance, drop their wings, select a mate and set up housekeepink. The homeowners furnishes the groceries, namely the wood in their house.

Not all flying insects are termites and it's difficult to tell the difference. It's usually cheaper in the long run to call a reliable termite inspector.

Actually, the homeowner who sees swarming termites is in a sense lucky. They're a sure warning that colonies are at work nearby. Immediate attention can stop damage to timbers, woodwork and carpeting within the house. Unlike common household pests which scurry underfoot, termites work is hidden in dark corners year round, day and night.

Termites build "shelter tubes" of mud and wood up foundation walls and concrete piers. Slab subfloors, once thought impregnable to termite attack, fail to stop them. Because they work from the inside out, the use of sprays, powders, fumigants and other common methods of insect control scarcely ever slow them down.

The system of control calls for impregnating certain wood parts of the house with chemicals. Expensive equipment and professional know-how are required.

The presence of termites can be disastrous, but it isn't nearly so bad if you beat the destructive little creature to the punch by calling in the "termite man."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Glenda Byargeon will cover purses; Tuesday, Joe Milby will demonstrate spraying for white flies, aphids and thrips; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kuleke; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

New Ghana Stamp Has High Value

The final stamp and highest value in Ghana's "definitive series" will be a one pound adhesive featuring an antelope in a graceful leap. The antelope, one of Ghana's indigenous animals, has not been shown previously on its stamps.

The colors of Ghana's flag — green, black, yellow and red — plus brown are represented on the stamp, designed by M. Shamir of Israel. The one pound value is the highest ever issued by Ghana.

Western Germany has issued a new 20 pfennig red and black stamp commemorating the 10th anniversary of the death of Hans Bockler, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Bockler, born in Bavaria in 1875, was a silversmith who became active in the German Labor Movement in 1904. After 1945 he was West Germany's voice of labor and from 1949 until his death in 1951 was president of the German Labor Union.

The New York Stamp Exchange is again making its annual offer to readers of this column interested in obtaining album pages for their United Nations collections. The pages are standard size, punched to fit any 8½ inch, three-ring binder, with illustrated spaces for all U.N. stamps up to and including 1959 with blank spaces for later issues.

These pages may be obtained by sending just 10 cents to cover the cost of postage and handling to New York Stamp Exchange, 79 Wall Street, N. Y. 5, N. Y. Boy Scout groups or stamp clubs can get 25 albums for $1.50.

A collection of United Nations stamps, and those issued by other countries to honor the U. N., may be used to fulfill one of the requirements for the Stamp Collecting Merit Badge.

To honor the 10th Lahore Stamp Exhibition, the Pakistan Posts and Telegraphs Department has announced the issuance of an overprint of the 8 anna Jammu and Kashmir postage stamp. The words "Lahore Stamp Exhibition 1961" and the emblem of the exhibition are imprinted over the old issue.

Paraguay commemorates the opening of the International Bridge linking Paraguay and Brazil with the issuance of two new stamps. The 15 centavos olive, 30 c blue, 75 c violet, and 1 g violet show a ground view of the bridge. The 3 g red, 12.45 g maroon, 18.15 g green and 35 g blue are airmails and show an aerial view.

An original Bleriot airplane (1910 vintage) will be a central attraction at the International Stamp Exhibition (INTERPREX) to be held from March 17-19 in New York City. It was this type of plane which Ovington used in 1911 to carry the first official airmail from Garden City, Long Island, to Mineola.

Last Pruning Call Issued

By AUDREY DAWSON

This is the last call for pruning roses. I am sure if you have not pruned your roses that you have noticed plenty of new growth so the very first day you can get in your garden, prune your bush roses, but wait until after the climbers bloom to prune. And while you are pruning roses, prune summer flowering and evergreen shrubs, but wait until after spring flowering shrubs bloom before pruning.

To keep mildew and blackspot from damaging roses dust once a week or every 10 days with three parts fine sulphur and one part fermate or some of the commercial products on the market.

If your cape jasmine or gardenia leaves are covered with a black sooty looking substance you may control this by spraying with malathion or dusting with five per cent DDT.

For quick blooming flowers, plant the following seed in the next 30 days: zinnia, nasturtium, pink, marigold, petunia, and white alyssum.

IMPORTANT

Another important garden job this month is fertilizing plants and lawns. Roses should be fertilized with a complete fertilizer at a rate of from ⅛ to ¼ pound per plant. Distribute the fertilizer around the plant extending about 18 inches in every direction from the crown of the plant, but be sure to keep fertilizer away from the stems of the plants as it will burn the new growth.

Fertilize camellias with ¼ to ¼ pounds of 8-8-8 or equivalent per square yard of surface area covered.

For trees, apply one - half pound to one pound of complete fertilizer such as an 8-8-8 per year of age of the tree, beginning approximately one third distance of spread of the tree in holes approximately four to six inches deep, twenty four inches apart in circles.

If you need color in your landscape plant portulaca now. It's an old standby, grows about four to six inches high and has red, yellow and white blooms. You will find few flowers as easy to grow as portulaca.

NEW FURNITURE

One of the most popular pieces of furniture today is the tall narrow chest or the "slim jims" which fit under high windows of new homes. This chest is one of the most useful forms of chest according to our house furnishing specialist. House keepers and decoraters have found the tall narrow seven - drawer chest to be a fine answer to storage and decorating problems. These chests are being shown in modern, early American, French Provincial, Italian and seven other period designs. Prices will vary, of course, depending upon the quality one wishes as is true of other furniture.

GARDEN TOUR

The 10 and 25 year Home Demonstration Club members are sponsoring a tour to Hodges Garden on March 23. The bus will leave the Agricultural Building in West Monroe at 7:30 and will return about 5:30 P.M. If you are interested in making the trip with this group call Mrs. J. G. Haynes, FA 2-2773, Mrs. E. W. Earle at FA 2-5111, or Mrs. C. C. Street at FA 3-9400.

If you have never visited this beautiful Louisiana garden yours truly recommend that you make the trip and learn more about the beauty of our very own state. The trip is well worth your time and effort.

FROZEN BREAD

Homemakers may soon by buying much of their bread frozen according to our nutrition specialist, Mrs. Irene Turner. Retail bakers have been using the freezing process one way or another for a number of years. In 1956 about 62 per cent used freezing mostly for speciality products, which enabled carrying a full line at all times. In most cases the products are defrosted before sale to the consumer.

A THOUGHT

The trouble with most of us is that we would rather be ruined by praise than saved by criticism.

Japanese Magnolia Featured In Show

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

Dr. John A. Wright featured the purple Japanese magnolia (nigra) in his flower arrangements last week.

In a modern asymmetrical vase of gold tweed finish, in green and gold, with the parabolic form, he created a vertical design. A branch of pear blossoms formed the vertical line. Three nigra magnolias were arranged near the mouth of the container following the vertical line. An interesting arrangement for a small entrance hall table.

In a tall compote of a dull purple color Dr. Wright made a curved design of magnolias. He used the natural curved branches to make this arrangement. This free - standing design was suitable for a large coffee table.

In a white flat, boat - shaped, pottery container a horizontal arrangement was made of magnolias. The ends of the horizontal design curved slightly upward, creating rhythm following the line of the container.

BLACK POTTERY

A black pottery usubata of the contemporary form was used for a spiral design. New growth of loquat formed the spiral pattern. Back of this a background was formed of clusters of large leaves of loquat.

Four unsurpassable daffodils were staggered to follow the vertical line. Accent of this lovely arrangement was on the color combination, of dark green, grey green and yellow plant materials in the black container.

The State Flower Show and Convention will be held in New Orleans, April 7, 8, 9. Convention headquarters will be Fontainbleau Hotel. Make reservations early.

On Friday afternoon, April 7, tour and tea will be held in the lake area. The Flower Show will open 7:30 p.m. Friday. The club president's breakfast will be Saturday morning. This breakfast is not closed to other convention delegates.

Mrs. M. A. Bradburn, chairman for the judges' breakfast has an interesting program planned for them. Mrs. Robert Phillips, national chairman of instructors of Malvern, Ark., will serve on this program. Her topic will be "New Trends In Flower Design." The breakfast will be held Sunday, April 9, at the Royal Orleans Hotel in the French Quarters at 8:30 a.m.

LOCAL NOTICE

Mrs. M. B. Latham will give an illustrated lecture on "Flowers All Through The House," March 28th, 2:30 p.m., in the First Methodist Church of West Monroe. Mrs. Latham, a national judge and a flower show school instructor, is sponsored by the Welcome Garden Club.

This lecture is open to the public. A nominal fee of one - dollar will be charged to non members of the Welcome Garden Club.

New Educational Building Will Be Dedicated Toay

The First Presbyterian Church today will dedicate its new educational building at Stubbs and North 14th streets.

The service, set for 7:30 p.m., will be held in the Fellowship Hall, which is being used as a temporary sanctuary.

Dr. W. H. McFadden, the pastor, will preach the dedicatory sermon and the other Presbyterian ministers in the Monroe area, together with their congregations, have been invited to attend.

The new educational building has approximately 30,000 square feet of space. It is of contemporary design, air conditioned for winter and summer, and well equipped. The sanctuary of the church will be built in the near future.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Perennials Add Variety

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Most of the planting we Southerners do on our lots is dominated by the broadleaf evergreen shrubs like camellias and azaleas. These beautiful shrubs are the real features of our gardening in the broadleaf evergreen belt. A great deal of variety can be added to evergreen landscapes, however, by growing some of the larger perennials right in with the shrubs to carry on the bloom after azalea and camellia time.

AMENABLE

Daylilies, we have found, are amenable to some shade and will bloom in all but the shadiest parts of yards and gardens. This year, southern nurseries have begun to carry several varieties of hostas, those old-fashioned "August - lilies" that grandma used to grow in tubs until she found out that they would grow outdoors and survive the winters. (Hostas used to be listed as Funkias). Hostas are real shade lovers. Their foliage comes in all sorts of greens and in variegated patterns, and the flowers are either white or lavender and come in late summer. Nothing is tougher or has handsomer leaves or is more permanent than hostas. In In Europe, they are grown in huge masses just for the beautiful foliage. The parks and public gardens in Denmark and Sweden are full of them. Groups of three, five or more clumps of hostas or other big perennials like sedum spectabile, that big succulent plant called, in the South, "house leek," will give beauty of leaf (~) flower to otherwise dull azalea and camellia plantings in summer.

The evergreen fall blooming spider - lilies, yellow sternbergias, miniature amaryllises and the summer flowering pink spider - lily that has leaves with the daffodils — all of these plus the daffiedils add color and year - round interest in the woodland planting of camellias and azaleas. Once you get interested in combining shade loving and shade tolerant plants with these popular shrubs, you will find that there are many such plants.

Even in the sun, some of the big perennials are beautiful in combination with flowering shrubs. The perennials will carry on after the shrubs, mostly spring flowering, have gone. Daylilies will flower best in the sun. Big clumps of the plume poppy (Macleonia) look like shrubs and have very handsome large silvery foliage which no shrub has. If the large grey foliaged clumps of artemisia "Silver King" have become too large for the perennial border, try them in with the shrubbery.

The new varieties of single peonies are spectacular landscape plants. They bloom before the heat gets them and will open up even where the older double types are impractical. Most of us grow mallows in with our shrubs too, but not many people have caught on to the dazzling new red - hot-pokers now in perennials nurseries. Since butterfly bushes and vitex can be cut back every year, they combine well with perennials.

Castro Courts Latin Aid In U.S. Dispute

HAVANA (UPI) — The Fidel Castro government soon will tell "friendly" Latin American governments it will accept their help in trying to arrange a settlement of Cuban-American quarrels, authoritative diplomatic sources said Saturday.

The sources said a formal communication to all Latin American diplomatic missions in Havana will state Cuba's willingness to reduce hemisphere tensions.

Any conciliatory moves, however, probably would be made outside the Organization of American States—an agency which Castro holds unable to defend Cuba from "imperialist aggression."

Brazil and Mexico were considered two likely candidates to try to lay groundwork for a settlement of Havana-Washington disputes.

THE HOME SHIFT

Season Offers Much Beauty

By MILDRED SWIFT

You're invited to attend either of the two demonstrations tomorrow to be given by Gregory Conway. The fee has been announced. Place — Bayou DeSiard Country Club, Monroe — Morning time 10:30 — afternoon 2:00. This is open to all who can attend. No reservations necessary on Monday.

Tuesday clinics are also open to the public, the fee has been announced: Same place, beginners class 9:30 a.m. — advanced class, 1:30 p.m. Paid reservations must be made. Gregory is brought to this area by the Monroe Garden Club.

At this time of year there is so much beauty. Haven't the purple Japanese Magnolias been gorgeous? No wonder they are called tulip trees since each plant looks like a mass of tulips. One tree can dominate a landscape.

Have you ever seen any flowering shrub more beautiful for cutting than the white flowering quince? Just two or three stems are beautiful. You'll not want for flowers for your church as long as the flowering crabapple is in bloom. Especially the flora bunda. Did you ever see a purple magnolia outside a room done in pink? Or a pink crabapple just outside a room done in blue or pink? If so — you know what the decorators mean by bringing the outside, inside.

GARDEN JOBS

You can still plant dahlias and of course gladiolus, too. Divide bearded iris (if they need it) After they bloom. When you replant, work bone meal in the soil and plant very shallow.

Do any fertilizing or transplanting that you did not get done in February. After they bloom, prune spirea, bridal wreath, weigela, forsythia, climbing roses, flowering almond, flowering quince, crabapples, pearl bush.

Start a new lawn or work over the old one. Sprig St. Augustine and centipede grass. Put out Zoyzia Grass in squares. Plant Carpet Grass or Bermuda. That, of course means to take your choice of one kind of grass and put that out — not all kinds in one yard.

Work a little lime around roots of clematis and lilac. They both love a sweet soil.

If you planted sweet peas early, you could work a small amount of nitrate around the plants, now. Very small amount.

Divide and reset cannas if you want large blooms.

SEED TO PLANT

These seed may be planted this month, outdoors; sweet alyssum, Chinese forget-met-not, arctotis, candytuft, garllardia, petunia, zinnia, portulaca, phlox (Drummond) salvia (blue and red) scabiosa, verbena, early cosmas, sunflower, four o'clock, nasturtium, ageratum, balsam, marigold, moonflower, calliopsis, feverfew, periwinkle, torenia, zinnias, marigold, African golden daisy, gypsophila.

ORNAMENTAL VINE

Hyacinth bean is a good free flowering tropical ornamental vine for this area. The vine will produce flowers six to seven months of the year.

The pea shaped blooms, smaller than sweet peas and lacking fragrance, range from a violet color to a deep purple as they age. Flowers are borne all along purple stems, some of the stems being 14 to 16 inches long. The flowers hold up well when cut.

Seed pods, some about three inches long and three quarters of an inch wide, resemble butter bean pods in shape; are purple and very shiny. The fresh seed pods can also be used in arrangements.

Seeds may be planted this month in open ground and they will flower six to eight weeks later. Planting may be made up until mid-summer and still produce blooms. Plant seeds shallow in a sunny location.

Being a vine, this plant needs support. It's beautiful on a fence. It will hold to a tree but the blooms are not too many because of the shade.

This vine will grow in any good garden soil and it seems disease and insect free.

NEW

Hosiery manufacturers will soon have a new nylon hose on the market that is insured against runs for 30 days. They will have a double twist thread instead of the single bulky one now in use, and they will cost a little bit more. The guarantee of longer wear is certainly good news for all women, but they will still require the same gentle washing care that present nylons do. That is — they should be hand washed in a mild detergent before the first wearing and again after each wearing. With special care the new nylons will not only retain their shape and wear longer, but will mean a greatly reduced hosiery bill for every lady in the family.

STATEMENTS

Ladies, if your husband complains about helping you with household chores, tell him that many medical authorities now believe that lack of exercise is one of the most important factors in premature aging. They say that simply lying on the sofa and watching you work will only make him older, sooner.

But — in all fairness, maybe we should also pass along the remarks of a gentelman who celebrated his 100th birthday last month. When asked his secret of long life, he replied, "Don't let your wife put you to work when you get home from your own work. I always headed for the sofa and lots of rest. You can't let your wife push you around." You take it from there.

WATCH!

If you see tiny winged insects around the house this spring or summer you're probably being termited. Every year swarming termites leave their ground nests to start new colonies. They fly a short distance, drop their wings, select a mate and set up housekeepink. The homeowners furnishes the groceries, namely the wood in their house.

Not all flying insects are termites and it's difficult to tell the difference. It's usually cheaper in the long run to call a reliable termite inspector.

Actually, the homeowner who sees swarming termites is in a sense lucky. They're a sure warning that colonies are at work nearby. Immediate attention can stop damage to timbers, woodwork and carpeting within the house. Unlike common household pests which scurry underfoot, termites work is hidden in dark corners year round, day and night.

Termites build "shelter tubes" of mud and wood up foundation walls and concrete piers. Slab subfloors, once thought impregnable to termite attack, fail to stop them. Because they work from the inside out, the use of sprays, powders, fumigants and other common methods of insect control scarcely ever slow them down.

The system of control calls for impregnanting certain wood rails of the house with chemicals. Expensive equipment and professional know-how are required.

The presence of termites can be disastrous, but it isn't nearly so bad if you beat the destructive little creature to the punch by calling in the "termite man."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Glenda Byargeon will cover purses; Tuesday, Joe Milby will demonstrate spraying for white flies, aphids and thrips; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulcke; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

New Ghana Stamp Has High Value

The final stamp and highest value in Ghana's "definitive series" will be a one pound adhesive featuring an antelope in a graceful leap. The antelope, one of Ghana's indigenous animals, has not been shown previously on its stamps.

The colors of Ghana's flag — green, black, yellow and red — plus brown are represented on the stamp, designed by M. Shamir of Israel. The one pound value is the highest ever issued by Ghana.

Western Germany has issued a new 20 pfennig red and black stamp commemorating the 10th anniversary of the death of Hans Bockler, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Bockler, born in Bavaria in 1875, was a silversmith who became active in the German Labor Movement in 1904. After 1945 he was West Germany's voice of labor and from 1949 until his death in 1951 was president of the German Labor Union.

The New York Stamp Exchange is again making its annual offer to readers of this column interested in obtaining album pages for their United Nations collections. The pages are standard size, punched to fit any 8½ inch, three-ring binder, with illustrated spaces for all U.N. stamps up to and including 1959 with blank spaces for later issues.

These pages may be obtained by sending just 10 cents to cover the cost of postage and handling to New York Stamp Exchange, 79 Wall Street, N. Y. 5, N. Y. Boy Scout groups or stamp clubs can get 25 albums for $1.50.

A collection of United Nations stamps, and those issued by other countries to honor the U. N., may be used to fulfill one of the requirements for the Stamp Collecting Merit Badge.

To honor the 10th Lahore Stamp Exhibition, the Pakistan Posts and Telegraphs Department has announced the issuance of an overprint of the 8 anna Jammu and Kashmir postage stamp. The words "Lahore Stamp Exhibition 1961" and the emblem of the exhibition are imprinted over the old issue.

Paraguay commemorates the opening of the International Bridge linking Paraguay and Brazil with the issuance of two new stamps. The 15 centavos olive, 30 c blue, 75 c violet, and 1 g violet show a ground view of the bridge. The 3 g red, 12.45 g maroon, 18.15 g green and 36 g blue are airmails and show an aerial view.

An original Bleriot airplane (1910 vintage) will be a central attraction at the International Stamp Exhibition (INTERPREX) to be held from March 17-19 in New York City. It was this type of plane which Ovington used in 1911 to carry the first official airmail from Garden City, Long Island, to Mineola.

Last Pruning Call Issued

By AUDREY DAWSON

This is the last call for pruning roses. I am sure if you have not pruned your roses that you have noticed plenty of new growth so the very first day you can get in your garden, prune your bush roses, but wait until after the climbers bloom to prune. And while you are pruning roses, prune summer flowering and evergreen shrubs, but wait until after spring flowering shrubs bloom before pruning.

To keep mildew and blackspot from damaging roses dust once a week or every 10 days with three parts fine sulphur and one part fermate or some of the commercial products on the market.

If your cape jasmine or gardenia leaves are covered with a black sooty looking substance you may control this by spraying with malathion or dusting with five per cent DDT.

For quick blooming flowers, plant the following seed in the next 30 days: zinnia, nasturtium, pink, marigold, petunia, and white alyssum.

IMPORTANT

Another important garden job this month is fertilizing plants and lawns. Roses should be fertilized with a complete fertilizer at a rate of from ⅓ to ¼ pound per plant. Distribute the fertilizer around the plant extending about 18 inches in every direction from the crown of the plant, but be sure to keep fertilizer away from the stems of the plants as it will burn the new growth.

Fertilize camellias with ⅛ to ¼ pounds of 8-8-8 or equivalent per square yard of surface area covered.

For trees, apply one - half pound to one pound of complete fertilizer such as an 8-8-8 per year of age of the tree, beginning approximately one third distance of spread of the tree in holes approximately four to six inches deep, twenty four inches apart in circles.

If you need color in your landscape plant portulaca now. It's an old standby, grows about four to six inches high and has red, yellow and white blooms. You will find few flowers as easy to grow as portulaca.

NEW FURNITURE

One of the most popular pieces of furniture today is the tall narrow chest or the "slim jims" which fit under high windows of new homes. This chest is one of the most useful forms of chest according to our house furnishing specialist. House keepers and decoraters have found the tall narrow seven - drawer chest to be a fine answer to storage and decorating problems. These chests are being shown in modern, early American, French Provincial, Italian and seven other period designs. Prices will vary, of course, depending upon the quality one wishes as is true of other furniture.

GARDEN TOUR

The 10 and 25 year Home Demonstration Club members are sponsoring a tour to Hodges Garden on March 23. The bus will leave the Agricultural Building in West Monroe at 7:30 and will return about 5:30 P.M. If you are interested in making the trip with this group call Mrs. J. G. Haynes, FA 2-2773, Mrs. E. W. Earle at FA 2-5111, or Mrs. C. C. Street at FA 3-9400.

If you have never visited this beautiful Louisiana garden yours truly recommend that you make the trip and learn more about the beauty of our very own state. The trip is well worth your time and effort.

FROZEN BREAD

Homemakers may soon by buying much of their bread frozen according to our nutrition specialist, Mrs. Irene Turner. Retail bakers have been using the freezing process one way or another for a number of years. In 1956 about 62 per cent used freezing mostly for speciality products, which enabled carrying a full line at all times. In most cases the products are defrosted before sale to the consumer.

A THOUGHT

The trouble with most of us is that we would rather be ruined by praise than saved by criticism.

Japanese Magnolia Featured In Show

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

Dr. John A. Wright featured the purple Japanese magnolia (nigra) in his flower arrangements last week.

In a modern asymmetrical vase of gold tweed finish, in green and gold, with the parabolic form, he created a vertical design. A branch of pear blossoms formed the vertical line. Three nigra magnolias were arranged near the mouth of the container following the vertical line. An interesting arrangement for a small entrance hall table.

In a tall compote of a dull purple color Dr. Wright made a curved design of magnolias. He used the natural curved branches to make this arrangement. This free - standing design was suitable for a large coffee table.

In a white flat, boat - shaped, pottery container a horizontal arrangement was made of magnolias. The ends of the horizontal design curved slightly upward, creating rhythm following the line of the container.

BLACK POTTERY

A black pottery usubata of the contemporary form was used for a spiral design. New growth of loquat formed the spiral pattern. Back of this a background was formed of clusters of large leaves of loquat.

Four unsurpassable daffodils were staggered to follow the vertical line. Accent of this lovely arrangement was on the color combination, of dark green, grey green and yellow plant materials in the black container.

Senior Boy Wins Legion Contest

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—John Cox Jr., 18-year-old senior at Springhill High School, Saturday won the statewide American Legion high school oratorical contest.

Claire LeVeque of St. Charles Academy, Lake Charles, was second, and Jack Boudreaux of Jesuit High School, New Orleans, was third.

Cox is a former governor of Boys' State.

Doctor, Fisher Say 'Liz Taylor Is Recovering

LONDON (UPI)—Elizabeth Taylor had a "bad night" Friday but is now back on the road to recovery from her near-fatal siege of pneumonia, her husband and doctors reported Saturday.

The film beauty's husband, singer Eddie Fisher, said the brief setback had only one effect — to postpone the removal of the breathing tube from Miss Taylor's throat. It originally was scheduled to be taken out Saturday.

"Elizabeth had a bad night," Fisher said, "but she has made great improvement every day and her progress continues."

Both Fisher and Miss Taylor's American physician, Dr. Carl H. Goldman denied the actress had suffered any relapse.

Fisher said his 29-year-old wife was sitting up in bed and was "just fine."

Three Men Held After Slaying

HEFLIN, Ala. (UPI) — Three Anniston men, one wounded in the chest by a Georgia tavern operator, Saturday were charged with murder and armed robbery of a nearby Fruithurst man who was fatally pistol-whipped.

Clebourne County Sheriff Fratus Owen identified the three as Wade Hardy, 28, Russell Hurley, 22, and Willis Vonson, 37. Hardy was in an Anniston hospital with a bullet wound in the chest while the other two were lodged in county jail here.

Kennedy To Get Laetare Medal

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — President Kennedy will receive the University of Notre Dame's Laetare Medal for 1961, the Catholic school's highest honor.

The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, CSC, Notre Dame president, announced Kennedy's selection Saturday night.

The award has been conferred annually since 1883 on an outstanding American Catholic layman.

Father Hesburgh said the time and place of presentation will be announced later.

Ike On Mexico Fishing Outing

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., (UPI) Former President Eisenhower flew to Mexico Saturday for a week of deep sea fishing with three other men.

Accompanying Eisenhower on the trip were Charles Jones, board chairman of Richfield Oil; Freeman Gosden, "Andy" of the "Amos 'n' Andy" radio show; and W. Alton Jones, president of City Service Utility Company.

They flew to a fishing spot south of La Paz in Baja California in the Richfield executive's private twin-engine plane, planning to return to the former chief executive's vacation spot late next week.

TOP TOY DESIGNER Marvin Glass, of Chicago, issues an order to his robot commando soldier in a preview of next Christmas' toy designs. The robot shoots rockets and can be controlled by voice through an attached microphone. Glass says: "I'm trying to develop a concept of toys that a child can actually participate in, that will allow some expression of the dynamism of his personality." (AP Wirephoto)

Woodmen Slate Local Meeting On March 18-20

More than 215 delegates and guests, representing more than 20,000 Louisiana members of Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society, will attend the annual Camp Clerks Convention March 18 - 20, at the Monroe Hotel, Monroe, it was announced Saturday by Clarence Harrison Jr., Opelousas, head counsel.

Speakers will include Woodmen President J. R. Sims and Treasurer W. H. Martin, both of Omaha, Nebr.; R. N. Dossmann, San Antonio, Tex., member of the Woodmen board of directors; Farrar Newberry, Sr., former Woodmen president; Louisiana Insurance Commissioner Rufus D. Hayes, Baton Rouge; State Senator James W. Adcock, Monroe; Public Service Commissioner John McKeithen, Columbia, La.; Commissioner of Finance and Utilities W. H. McSherry, Monroe; and Chief of Police James C. Kelly.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. March 18. At 7:30 there will be a banquet for delegates and their wives followed by a dance. Banquet speakers will be Commissioner McKeithen and Senator Adcock.

Sunday (March 19) registration is from 7 to 8:45 a.m. with the convention being opened officially at 9 a.m. by Woodmen State Manager H. D. Stricklin, Monroe. Commissioner McSherry will deliver the welcoming address and Chief of Police Kelly will respond, before Insurance Commissioner Hayes addresses the convention.

A convention feature will be the presentations of two $100 checks, one to the Northeast Louisiana Baptist Children's Home and another to the Cerebral Palsy Center. A representative of each will be present to accept the gift.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday the degree staff of Urania, (La.) Camp 506 will exemplify the Protection Degree for a large class of candidates.

Monday morning, March 20, there will be a special breakfast for the lady delegates with Mrs. Mabs Jolissant, director of Patricia Stevens Charm School, entertaining.

In business sessions, President Sims will deliver his report on the Society's activities and progress during the past two years. Delegates will report on the many fraternal and civic projects performed by the local Camps and Courts in Louisiana.

The convention will elect and install new Head Camp officers as well as delegates to the Woodmen national convention in Los Angeles, July 31 to August 4.

Theft Of Hats Is Charged To Monroe Negro

A Monroe Negro was charged with the theft of two hats yesterday after being apprehended by police and owners of the store from which the merchandise was allegedly stolen.

Booked in the theft of the hats, valued at $6, and for public drunkenness was Negro Newton Wilson, 23 of 1723 Adams St.

According to police, C. Bezz of Mansour's Department Store at 701 DeSiard Street reported that a tall Negro man came into the store and took two hats. Joseph Mansour chased the Negro when he ran from him and Wilson was apprehended with the hats.

But police weren't so lucky in a theft reported by Bill Hardy of Saul Adler's Garage at 201 South Grand St. Hardy told police that two spindle type chrome hub caps were taken from a car Friday night. He also stated that sometime during the past week, a 670-15 black tubeless tire was taken from a truck at the garage.

Officers are still investigating this theft.

Negroes Stage Protest March In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — About 100 song-singing, praying Negroes marched on city hall and the Louisiana Supreme Court building Saturday in protest to racial discrimination.

No incidents marred the demonstration, which followed a four-front picket movement in front of a grocery store and three five and dime stores.

The Negroes, with only a few white collegians in the group, are members of Congress of Racial Equality and the New Orleans Consumers' League.

It was the largest demonstration the city has seen since several thousand whites tried to storm the New Orleans public school offices last November just after two city schools were desegregated. Fire hoses were used then to break up the demonstrators.

Leaders of the equality movement read a resolution in front of the cityhall and court building Saturday. It condemned new state laws which makes picketing illegal for groups other than labor unions.

Treason Charge Cut To Larceny

GULFPORT, Miss. (UPI) — Robert G. Hill of Pascagoula was free on $1,000 bond Saturday after treason charges were changed to trespassing with intent to commit larceny at the Ingalls Shipyard.

Hill, 35, had been bound over to a grand jury by the Pascagoula city court on a treason charge after he was shot in the leg Jan. 14 while allegedly in or near the south yard of the Ingalls Shipyard at Pascagoula. The shipyard was building a nuclear submarine for the United States Navy at the time.

11 Are Booked In Gaming Case Following Raid

Three officers of the Monroe police department, in a raid in the 100 block of Renwick Street, early Saturday morning, nabbed 11 Negroes and booked 10 of them with gambling charges.

The other Negro, identified as Obie L. Harris, 25 of 5904 Hall-Summ St., was booked with conducting or assisting in conducting a gambling game. Harris was placed in the city jail on a $500 bond.

The 10 charged with gambling were being held in lieu of $350 bonds. They include Leon Herring, 25 of 1316 Adams St.; Joe Marshall, 22 of 1504 Breard St.; L. C. Perkins, 23 of 417 N. 22nd St.; Theodore Ellis, 25 of F-25 A Foster Home; Roosevelt Anderson, 26 of 712 Adams St.; C. W. Parks, 27 of 712 Dixie St.

William Harris, 25 of 603 Adams St.; Albert D. Moy, 39 of Route Four, West Monroe; Walter Lancaster, 23 of 3112 Ponder St.; and Jimmie Haywood, 25 of 1303 Flynn St.

Negro Is Booked For Burglary In West Monroe

West Monroe police booked a 23 - year - old Negro for burglary early Saturday and a Dubach man for forgery.

Being questioned in connection with some of the recent burglaries taking place in West Monroe is Robert L. White, 203 Short Coleman St., West Monroe. He was taken into custody at 1 a.m. Saturday, police said, in the vicinity of Powell's Garage and Service Station at 1107 Natchitoches St. after discovery that someone had broken into the building.

Officials said that so far, nothing seemed to be missing from the service station but that the lock on the door had been broken.

Joe Roy Davis, 42, of Route One, Dubach, was booked with forgery Saturday morning and is being held in the Ouachita Parish jail. West Monroe officials said he was booked in connection with a forged check for $100 that was cashed at a local business Thursday.

Police Searching For Lost Watch

Monroe police are aiding in the search for a $125 watch reported lost sometime Friday night by a local woman, Mrs. Alfred Gallagher of 1107 North Third St. told officers that she lost the watch between 8 and 9 p.m. Friday night somewhere between her home and the Mohawk Tavern on Louisville Avenue.

Mrs. Gallagher stated that she put the watch on upon leaving home and that she noticed it missing when she reached the Tavern. The watch was described as a Longine ladies wrist watch, white gold with a small face and 36 diamond chips surrounding the face. It was valued at $125.

FAVOR OBSERVANCE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Commission on Human Rights has recommended that the General Assembly urge all countries to observe a freedom from prejudice and discrimination year.

INDIA DETAINS 95

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Ninety-five persons were being held under the Preventive Detention Act at the end of 1960, the government reports. The 1950 act, primarily used to counter Communist activities, empowers the government to arrest and detain without trial.

Woodmen Slate Local Meeting On March 18-20

More than 215 delegates and officers, representing more than 30,000 Louisiana members of Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society, will attend the Society's Head Camp (state) convention March 18 - 20, in the Francis Hotel, Monroe, it was announced Saturday by Clarence Harmon Jr., Opelousas, head counsul.

Speakers will include Woodmen President J. R. Sims and Treasurer W. H. Martin, both of Omaha, Nebr.; R. N. Dossmann, San Antonio, Tex., member of the Woodmen board of directors; Farrar Newberry, Sr., former Woodmen president; Louisiana Insurance Commissioner Rufus D. Hayes, Baton Rouge; State Senator Jamar W. Adcock, Monroe; Public Service Commissioner John McKeithen, Columbia, La.; Commissioner of Finance and Utilities W. H. McSherry, Monroe; and Chief of Police James C. Kelly.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. March 18. At 7:30 there will be a banquet for delegates and their wives followed by a dance. Banquet speakers will be Commissioner McKeithen and Senator Adcock.

Sunday (March 19) registration is from 7 to 8:45 a.m. with the convention being opened officially at 9 a.m. by Woodmen State Manager H. D. Stricklin, Monroe. Commissioner McSherry will deliver the welcoming address and Chief of Police Kelly will respond, before Insurance Commissioner Hayes addresses the convention.

A convention feature will be the presentations of two $100 checks, one to the Northeast Louisiana Baptist Children's Home and another to the Cerebral Palsy Center. A representative of each will be present to accept the gift.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday the degree staff of Urania, (La.) Camp 306 will exemplify the Protection Degree for a large class of candidates.

Monday morning, March 20, there will be a special breakfast for the lady delegates with Mrs. Mabs Jolissant, director of Patricia Stevens Charm School, entertaining.

In business sessions, President Sims will deliver his report on the Society's activities and progress during the past two years. Delegates will report on the many fraternal and civic projects performed by the local Camps and Courts in Louisiana.

The convention will elect and install new Head Camp officers as well as delegates to the Woodmen national convention in Los Angeles, July 31 to August 4.

Theft Of Hats Is Charged To Monroe Negro

A Monroe Negro was charged with the theft of two hats yesterday after being apprehended by police and owners of the store from which hte merchandise was allegedly stoles.

Booked in the theft of the hats, valued at $6, and for public drunkenness was Negro Newton Wilson, 25 of 1723 Adams St.

According to police, C. Bezz of Mansour's Department Store at 701 DeSiard Street reported that a tall Negro man came into the store and took two hats. Joseph Mansour chased the Negro when he ran from him and Wilson was apprehended with the hats.

But police weren't so lucky in a theft reported by Bill Hardy of Saul Adler's Garage at 201 South Grand St. Hardy told police that two spindle type, chrome hub caps were taken from a car Friday night. He also stated that sometime during the past week, a 670-15 black tubeless tire was taken from a truck at the garage.

Officers are still investigating this theft.

Negroes Stage Protest March In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— About 100 song-singing, praying Negroes marched on city hall and the Louisiana Supreme Court building Saturday in protest to racial discrimination.

No incidents marred the demonstration, which followed a four-front picket movement in front of a grocery store and three five and dime stores.

The Negroes, with only a few white collegians in the group, are members of Congress of Racial Equality and the New Orleans Consumers' League.

It was the largest demonstration the city has seen since several thousand whites tried to storm the New Orleans public school offices last November just after two city schools were desegregated. Fire hoses were used then to break up the demonstrators.

Leaders of the equality movement read a resolution in front of the cityhall and court building Saturday. It condemned new state laws which makes picketing illegal for groups other than labor unions.

Treason Charge Cut To Larceny

GULFPORT, Miss. (UPI) — Robert G. Hill of Pascagoula was free on $1,000 bond Saturday after treason charges were changed to trespassing with intent to commit larceny at the Ingalls Shipyard.

Hill, 33, had been bound over to a grand jury by the Pascagoula city court on a treason charge after he was shot in the leg Jan. 14 while allegedly in or near the south yard of the Ingalls Shipyard at Pascagoula. The shipyard was building a nuclear submarine for the United States Navy at the time.

11 Are Booked In Gaming Case Following Raid

Three officers of the Monroe police department, in a raid in the 100 block of Renwick Street, early Saturday morning, nabbed 11 Negroes and booked 10 of them with gambling charges.

The other Negro, identified as Obie L. Harris, 26 of 3904 Halsell St., was booked with conducting or assisting in conducting a gambling game. Harris was placed in the city jail on a $500 bond.

The 10 charged with gambling were being held in lieu of $330 bonds. They include Leon Herring, 25 of 1818 Adams St.; Joe Marshall, 22 of 1604 Breard St.; L. C. Perkins, 23 of 417 N. 22nd St.; Theodore Ellis, 25 of F-25 -A Foster Home: Roosevelt Anderson, 26 of 712 Adams St.; C. W. Parks, 27 of 712 Dixie St.

William Harris, 25 of 608 Adams St.; Albert D. Moy, 30 of Route Four, West Monroe; Walter Lancaster, 26 of 4112 Ponder St.; and Jimmie Haywood, 25 of 1303 Flynn St.

Negro Is Booked For Burglary In West Monroe

West Monroe police booked a 23 - year - old Negro for burglary early Saturday and a Dubach man for forgery.

Being questioned in connection with some of the recent burglaries taking place in West Monroe is Robert L. White, 203 Short Coleman St., West Monroe. He was taken into custody at 1 a.m. Saturday, police said, in the vicinity of Powell's Garage and Service Station at 1107 Natchitoches St. after discovery that someone had broken into the building.

Officials said that so far, nothing seemed to be missing from the service station but that the lock on the door had been broken.

Joe Roy Davis, 42, of Route One, Dubach, was booked with forgery Saturday morning and is being held in the Ouachita Parish jail. West Monroe officials said he was booked in connection with a forged check for $100 that was cashed at a local business Thursday.

Police Searching For Lost Watch

Monroe police are aiding in the search for a $425 watch reported lost sometime Friday night by a local woman. Mrs. Alfred Gallagher of 1107 North Third St. told officers that she lost the watch between 8 and 9 p.m. Friday night somewhere between her home and the Mohawn Tavern on Louisville Avenue.

Mrs. Gallagher stated that she put the watch on upon leaving home and that she noticed it missing when she reached the Tavern. The watch was described as a Longine ladies wrist watch, white gold with a small face and 36 diamond chips surrounding the fact. It was valued at $425.

Most people are astonished to discover that the Volkswagen Station Wagon is only a few inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan and a good four feet shorter than the conventional station wagon. Yet it holds more than the largest station wagon you can buy and costs hundreds of dollars less. Come see it—and drive it—this week.

Most people are astonished to discover that the Volkswagen Station Wagon is only a few inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan and a good four feet shorter than the conventional station wagon. Yet it holds more than the largest station wagon you can buy and costs hundreds of dollars less. Come see it—and drive it—this week.

THIS HOME has everything! Planned with care, built to perfection. Constructed of American beauty brick, Canadian cypress, and concrete. Foundation constructed of fine quality wolmanized lumber. Located on a most attractive 120x150 landscaped lot with beautiful shrubs and trees, lawn, flowering trees, etc. Over 2100 sq. ft. of heated area not including carport and outside storage. Back yard completely fenced in board-on-board solid cypress for privacy. It's only 6 years old and you will like the 50 year guaranteed cedar shingle roof and the general lines of this attractive home! The interiors are semi - modern. Living room 18x32, tastefully decorated, wood - burning fireplace in white brick wall and carpeted. All ceilings 8½ ft. Entire construction is of 16 in. center. Completely air conditioned, centrally heated, completely insulated — ceilings, inside and outside walls — keeping maintainence at a low figure. Separate dining room 16x18 is possible by the addition of a planned wall. Kitchen 17x14 with beautiful birch cabinets, coral formica cabinet tops, double sink, wired and plumbed for dishwasher, separate breakfast room with pass - through food counter, floors in beautiful flagstone Armstrong. 2 full baths in main residence, maid's toilet off carport. Both baths are very large with built-in vanities, tubs and showers, double medicine cabinets, 24 ft. family room located off kitchen area, paneled in beautiful cedar, built-in couches, music cabinet, bookcases, etc., entrance to private garden, flagstone floor, woven slat roll-up blinds. The bedroom area is located in a separate wing from the living area. Sizes 12x15, 15x14, and 15x12. All windows are well planned to give good wall space. Huge walk-in closets from the front entrance to the bedroom area, lots of built-ins. Floors are carpets, flagstones, and block hardwood. Very convenient to all Northside churches and schools, bus at the front door. Flush ceiling lights. Rock - face drive and walks, service yard. Special electrical wiring for deep freeze, etc. It would be impossible to duplicate this home on this property at the asking price. It's a real buy for a family looking for a big roomy home in one of Monroe's most exclusive neighborhoods. No repairs, no decorations needed! Make an appointment with us today, so that we may show it to you!

THIS HOME has everything! Planned with care, built to perfection. Constructed of American beauty brick, Canadian cypress, and concrete. Foundation constructed of fine quality wolmanized lumber. Located on a most attractive 120x150 landscaped lot with beautiful shrubs and trees, lawn, flowering trees, etc. Over 2100 sq. ft. of heated area not including carport and outside storage. Back yard completely fenced in board-on-board solid cypress for privacy. It's only 6 years old and you will like the 50 year guaranteed cedar shingle roof and the general lines of this attractive home! The interiors are semi - modern. Living room 18x32, tastefully decorated, wood - burning fireplace in white brick wall and carpeted. All ceilings 8½ ft. Entire construction is of 16 in. center. Completely air conditioned, centrally heated, completely insulated — ceilings, inside and outside walls — keeping maintainence at a low figure. Separate dining room 16x18 is possible by the addition of a planned wall. Kitchen 17x14 with beautiful birch cabinets, coral formica cabinet tops, double sink, wired and plumbed for dishwasher, separate breakfast room with pass - through food counter, floors in beautiful flagstone Armstrong. 2 full baths in main residence, maid's toilet off carport. Both baths are very large with built-in vanities, tubs and showers, double medicine cabinets. 24 ft. family room located off kitchen area, paneled in beautiful cedar, built-in couches, music cabinet, bookcases, etc., entrance to private garden, flagstone floor, woven slat roll-up blinds. The bedroom area is located in a separate wing from the living area, sizes 12x15, 15x14, and 15x12. All windows are well planned to give good wall space. Huge walk-in closets from the front entrance to the bedroom area, lots of built-ins. Floors are carpets, flagstones, and block hardwood. Very convenient to all Northside churches and schools, bus at the front door. Flush ceiling lights. Rock - face drive and walks, service yard. Special electrical wiring for deep freeze, etc. It would be impossible to duplicate this home on this property at the asking price. It's a real buy for a family looking for a big roomy home in one of Monroe's most exclusive neighborhoods. No repairs, no decorations needed! Make an appointment with us today, so that we may show it to you!

BIGGEST SINCE 1951

British Spy Trial To Begin Monday

LONDON (UPI)—Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, the man nobody knows, goes on trial with four alleged accomplices in London's Old Bailey Court Monday accused of stealing Western naval secrets for the Soviet Union.

It promises to be Britain's most important espionage trial since that of atomic spy Klaus Fuchs in 1951.

Accused with Lonsdale, 37, are Ethel Gee, 46, and Henry Houghton, 55, both former Admiralty clerks, and American-born bookseller Peter Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47.

They are charged, among other things, with passing on to Russia secret information on Britain's only nuclear submarine, H.M.S. Dreadnaught.

Scotland Yard agents testified at a pre-trial hearing that Lonsdale carried a Canadian passport, apparently was devoted to his family, was a director of a London lock company, and was the mastermind of the alleged spy gang.

They left a blank about his background, but Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, who will prosecute the case before Britain's Lord Chief Justice Lord Parker, commented to the pre-trial court, "He seems to be a Russian."

Police said Lonsdale has said nothing but "no" since his January arrest. He smirked, snickered and laughed during the pre-trial hearing.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" was playing at London's Old Vic Theater when Scotland Yard arrested Lonsdale on the sidewalk outside. With him were Miss Gee and Houghton.

Manningham-Buller, the attorney general, charged that Lonsdale recruited Miss Gee and Houghton to steal secrets from Britain's top secret naval research base at Portsmouth.

He alleged Lonsdale carried the secrets to Kroger and his wife, who relayed the data to Russia, some of it by radio.

The Krogers lived quietly near the U.S. Air Force base at South Ruislip in a house that contained a spy thriller's quota of secret compartments, hidden radios, money under the floorboards and microdot equipment (for sending pinpoint-sized letters) in an old Bible.

According to police, Miss Gee and Houghton said Lonsdale got them to give him secret documents by posing as a U.S. Navy officer named Cmdr. Alex Johnston.

The Krogers said they did not even know Lonsdale, although police said the beetle-browed, swarthy man was seen by undercover agents visiting the Krogers' bungalow.

Lonsdale's partner in the lock company said he was "shocked and flabbergasted" by Lonsdale's arrest and pledged his help.

He said Lonsdale seemed "on the up and up."

But Scotland Yard said it had letters apparently written by Lonsdale to his family in Russia and from his wife in Russia to him. The letters, police said, expressed mutual love and the loneliness of their life apart.

The wife wrote: "Write to me how you love me and maybe I will feel better. If possible please let me have 2,500 rubles a month."

According to police, one Lonsdale letter to "My Dear Galyshia" said in part: "I hope you don't think I am an entirely hard-hearted man who gives no thought to anybody. All I am going to say is I myself have only one life, a not entirely easy one at that."

But he promised to send her the money, Scotland Yard said.

NOW I KNOW HOW THE LADS FELT AT CONCORD AND LEXINGTON!

HANNA-BARBERA'S YOGI BEAR

MISTER RANGER WOULDN'T LIKE US TO BE SITTING IN HIS HELICOPTER, YOGI!

I WONDER WHAT THIS BUTTON IS FOR, BOO BOO!

WELL, THAT ANSWERS THAT QUESTION!

YOGI! WE'RE GOING UP!

MISTER RANGER WANTS US TO COME DOWN, YOGI!

THAT MAKES THREE OF US BOO BOO... BUT I DON'T KNOW HOW!

THAT'S IT... LOWER THE ROPE, BOO BOO... OH... IT'S TOO SHORT!

GOT IT! NOW TO TIE IT AROUND THE TREE TRUNK!

3-12

OH, NO!

HELP! HELP!

RIP!

LOOK WHERE WE'RE HEADED, YOGI!

I'VE ALREADY SEEN IT, BOO BOO!

A WATERFALL, YOGI!!

HELP!

WHEN YOU'VE SEEN ONE WATERFALL, YOU'VE SEEN THEM ALL, BOO BOO!

FITTED FOR EXPLORATION, THE ATOMIC SUB DIVES INTO THE STEAMING, DEADLY SEAWAY OF VENUS JIMA...

... AND CROSSCURRENTS IN THE BUBBLING WATERS TOSS HER LIKE A BOBBING CORK..

STIRRED-UP SEDIMENT IS BLOCKING VISIBILITY! GOTTA NAVIGATE BY TV... WH... WHAT'S THAT...?!

THE VIEWING SCREEN'S GONE BLANK!

RADIOACTIVITY OUTSIDE IS JUMPING HIGH! IT COULD HAVE SHORTED THE CAMERAS OR LIGHTS!

NO, PROF.... I SAW SOMETHING BEFORE THE SCREEN BLANKED! SOME KIND OF FORMLESS NIGHTMARE.

WELL, WHATEVER IT IS, WE CAN'T GO ON BLIND! WE'D BETTER GO OUT AND SEE WHAT'S WRONG!

I'LL GO OUT THERE WITH YOU, FLASH...!

I WOULD GO TOO..B-BUT ... I CAN'T LEAVE THE CONTROLS GORDON!

MARY DISCOVERS THAT AMORY GOODFELLOW, WHOSE PLAY SHE HAS AGREED TO DO, IS SOMETHING OF A PALM READER.

WHAT HAPPENED TO AMORY?

IT WAS THE ODDEST THING! HE WAS READING MY PALM, WHEN HE SUDDENLY BLANCHED AND RAN OFF...

MEANWHILE...

WHY DIDN'T I CHECK ON MARY PERKINS BEFORE? THAT CAREER DROP INDICATED IN HER PALM COULD TAKE MY PLAY WITH IT!

... THAT STAR ON HER SUN LINE MEANS A CERTAIN PROFESSIONAL SETBACK AND IT'S DUE RIGHT ABOUT NOW! OF COURSE, THE TIME CAN'T BE PINPOINTED EXACTLY...

HEART LINE

HEAD LINE

SUN LINE

...STILL... IT'S A WARNING! I'LL HAVE TO CHECK HER THOROUGHLY!... AS I SHOULD HAVE DONE BEFORE SHE WAS CAST FOR THE ROLE! SERVES ME RIGHT! I SHOULD HAVE CHECKED!...

I SHOULD HAVE CHECKED! ...I SHOULD HAVE CHECKED! ...I SHOULD HAVE CHECKED... ...I SHOULD HAVE CHECKED...

PLEASE STAY AWAY FROM ME!

WHY ARE YOU AFTER ME? WHAT DO YOU WANT? WHO ARE YOU?

MARY PERKINS!!
